Truman Tribute Hits Snag

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Most Missouri legislators say they want to honor former President Harry S. Truman but they can't decide how to do it.

The original plan was to pass a bill designating Truman's birthday, May 8, as a legal holiday so Gov. Warren E. Hearnes could sign the bill at the Truman Library in Independence next Monday.

The Senate passed a revised version of the bill Thursday afternoon, making Truman Day a legal holiday but dropping Jefferson's birthday as a holiday. The idea was to keep state employes from getting an extra day off.

But by that time the House was embroiled in debate over another bill and didn't get around to the Truman bill before adjourning for the week.

For more than two hours the House debated a bill to license and regulate the automobile industry before advancing it to position for passage. Seventeen amendments were considered.

One scapped the entire penalty clause and another cut the power of the state revenue director to refuse a license to an automobile business.

The bill represents an effort by new car dealers to keep manufacturers from overloading them with cars.

Both houses were in recess today until Monday afternoon.

Motorcyclist Suffers Injury In Accident

Danny Cannon, 17, 723 East Gladys, was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital Thursday evening for bruises suffered when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile driven by Rosie Lee Todd, 21, 946 Lake.

The accident occurred at 5:28 p.m. when Mrs. Todd apparently drove from Pine street onto East Malone into Cannon's eastbound path, police reported.

In other police activity, Samuel Berry, 240 Thrush, was charged with peace disturbance by loud and profane language at his residence.

Burleta DeRoush, 722 Delmar, was charged with peace disturbance by loud and profane language at 11 p.m. Thursday on East Malone, police said.

Three motorists were issued summons charging careless and imprudent driving by speeding Thursday: Ellis C. Atchison Jr., 920 Allen Blvd.; Bobby Porter, 313 Prosperity, and Donald R. Jones, 403 Prosperity.

Fire Damages Mattress, Bed

A mattress and box springs were damaged by fire at the Sam Berry residence, 240 Thrush, Thursday firemen said.

Firemen were called to extinguish the fire at 1:50 p.m. Smoking in bed was believed to be the cause. Only the bed and bed clothing were damaged. Firemen returned to the station at 2:05 p.m.

Five Treated

Five persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Thursday:

Sandra Kay Underhill, ball hit hand, injuring middle finger in physical education class; Allan Gunter of Florissant, fell while running in yard; Charles W. Hampton, steel shelf fell on foot while working; L. E. King, tractor tongue fell on foot and George Washington Bass of New Madrid, cut finger on can opener.

Mattingly Defers to Age, Drops Oran Mayor Reins

BY LEO SCHADE

ORAN -- Dr. I. C. Mattingly, 74-year-old veterinarian, deciding to defer to age, has turned over the reigns of mayor of this 1,100-population Scott county city to a younger man.

"I got along well with the council," Dr. Mattingly commented on his decision to retire. His health is good.

At the April 4 election, Floyd McConnell, a member of the council and mayor protem, was chosen to fill his one-year unexpired term.

Dr. Mattingly had served as mayor 18 years since 1947 with the exception of one two-year term. Others who have been mayor of the city during the 20-year span, Dr. Mattingly recalled, were Leo Tenkhoff, Kennett Ransell and Abram Hirschowitz.

Time has placed additional burdens on guiding small cities.

"Even the running of a small city," Mattingly said, "is not an easy task any more, and takes a lot of your time, due to the many legal technicalities that you go through if you want to progress."

"Oran is a fine place to live, and we have fine people in it, who show progress and want to work together. Organizations also give it a boost."

Dr. Mattingly has spent a half century at his veterinary practice.

"I grew up on a farm," he recalled. "When I grew to manhood I decided I wasn't getting anywhere, so I decided to go to the veterinarian school in Kansas City, where I spent two years. When it closed, I had to go to St. Joseph to finish my other two years, and graduated in 1921. I spent 11 years in the western states with the cow tuberculosis eradication program.

NEVER DEFEATED in nine times as a candidate for Oran mayor, Dr. I. C. Mattingly, 74-year-old veterinarian, takes things easier in his office.

"During the depression it was hard to build up practice. I wanted to settle in Southeast Missouri. So I came back. I spent several years in St. Louis as a street car conductor."

Mattingly married the former Ethel Richardson of Anna, Ill., a nurse at a hospital there, who later became supervisor of nurses.

"I decided to move to Oran in 1931," he recalled. "The people here have been good to me and I decided to help the small city."

Oran two years ago attempted to get a medical doctor but the effort, led by Dr. Mattingly, did not succeed. Dr. Mattingly said that Dr. F. A. McCormack, a young osteopath, was doing a "fine job" taking care of the ill in the community.

The Mattinglys have two sons, Charles Mattingly, a pre-medical student who studied in New York but who now is enrolled at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau; Terry Mattingly, an army corporal stationed in Korea, and Eileen, Mrs. James O'Brien, who is a registered nurse in Houston.

Has Dr. Mattingly retired permanently?

"Not exactly," he said, "today I vaccinated three dogs and about 20 head of cattle. Of course, I have let up quite a lot and when a hard job comes along, I usually take a helper along."

N.Y. Newspaper Stops Operating

NEW YORK (AP) — The eight-month-old World Journal Tribune announced in a newsroom notice this morning that it was ceasing publication with today's editions.

The announcement, which throws 2,500 persons out of work, also took the Scripps-Howard and Hearst organizations out of New York City journalism.

The new paper had been formed from Scripps-Howard's World Telegram & The Sun, Hearst's Journal - American, and the independent Herald Tribune.

At one time, Hearst had three dailies in New York.

At the time of its death, the World Journal Tribune was in negotiations with 10 newspaper unions.

Lengthy negotiations had led to a settlement between the printers union and the New York Daily News, expected to set a pattern for the other papers and unions. The Daily News called the settlement the most expensive in its history.

Actually formed March 21, 1966, the World Journal Tribune had been through a previous long dispute with the same unions before it was able to actually begin publication on Sept. 12 last year.

The newspaper claimed a circulation of about 700,000 daily and more than 800,000 on Sunday.

The management of the newspaper met behind closed doors as the notice went up in the newsroom.

The World Journal Tribune statement to the staff said:

"It is with a real sense of personal regret that I must tell you that the World Journal Tribune is permanently ceasing publication with today's issue.

"Your employment must terminate at that time."

"We deeply appreciate the services that so many of you have rendered, and I will cherish the memory of our collective but unsuccessful effort to bring New York the kind of evening and Sunday newspaper we feel it deserved.

"It is our sincere hope that you will speedily obtain other employment. To facilitate this the company offers its full cooperation. We are setting up as quickly as possible at Barclay Street an employment service which will help you to find other employment.

"We plan to communicate with other employers and to make known the fact that many experienced and competent people are available. If you wish to avail yourself of this service, you may register your name at our employment office. This office will be maintained as long as we feel it can be helpful.

"Arrangements are also being made to pay you as soon as possible such sums as may be due you.

"Again let me express regret that our joint efforts to create a fine newspaper could not be successful."

Fellowships Set up In Astronauts' Memory

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Graduate fellowships honoring three U.S. astronauts killed while training for the Apollo manned mission will be established at Washington University in St. Louis.

The fellowships to be funded by the McDonnell Aerospace Foundation will be established in memory of astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee. The three died Jan. 27 when flames consumed their Apollo spacecraft during a training exercise at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Astronauts Grissom and White made their first flights in Gemini spacecraft built by the McDonnell Co. of St. Louis.

Winning Editor Calls ABA Threat to Free Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The American Bar Association poses a serious threat to a vital area of the people's right to know by championing greater secrecy in arrest and trial, an award - winning editor said Friday.

"There are many enemies of truth in the world," said Robert White II. "Some are cold, deliberate, dedicated like the Communists — like the far left and the far right, too. Some are even well-meaning, like the bar association in the area of secret arrest and secret trial."

White is editor and publisher of the Mexico, Mo., Evening Ledger and president of Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalism fraternity.

His remarks were prepared for the presentation of Missouri honor awards for distinguished service in journalism.

The awards, made annually by the University of Missouri, went this year to two newspaper publishers, an advertising executive, two newspapers and a television station.

Individual recipients of the bronze medals and citations were Paul Miller, Rochester, N. Y., president of the Associated Press and of the Gannett Co. Inc. newspaper chain; Marvin D. McQueen, vice president of D'Arcy Advertising Co., St. Louis; and White. White's father and grandfather got the award in previous years.

The other recipients are the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, with acceptance by Richard H. Amberg, publisher; Die Welt of Berlin, Germany, with acceptance by publisher Axel Springer, and WCKT-TV of Miami, Fla., with acceptance by Sidney D. Ansin.

The citations to the award winners were to be read at the ceremonies by Dean Earl F. English of the journalism school.

White said Communists are enemies of the truth, but they are not winning and are not a major danger to freedom of the press.

"They won't be until one of two things happens," White said.

"One would be for them to start winning limited wars against us and thus build up for a military takeover. I don't think that can happen."

"The other would be for them to start winning the political battles here at home and thus turn our legislative branch and our executive branch and even our judicial branch into a wonderland of those peaceniks, hippies, beatniks and other ilk who find more that they like in the Communist definition of freedom than in the American definition."

In the judicial branch, White said, "I do feel freedom of the press is losing a battle there now. It is with the Reardon Committee of the American Bar Association."

The committee issued a 265 page document last October recommending severe restrictions on news coverage of criminal cases.

"Their plan is not to seek laws passed by the representatives of the people. They know such laws would never be passed," White said.

"If the Reardon report is adopted by the American Bar Association this summer . . . it will take many years of difficult, expensive and often vicious local battles to win again for the people the information they need and desire about their police protection and about the conduct of their courts."

Cyclist Dies of Injuries

Michael H. McFarland, 17, Poplar Bluff, who was injured in a motorcycle accident Sunday on route NN in Butler County, died last night at 10:45 p.m. in Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

The state patrol said that McFarland was drag racing with another motorcyclist, pulled out to pass it and struck an approaching car, driven by Francis R. Miller of Poplar Bluff.

McFarland's skull was fractured by contact with the car's windshield. He suffered brain damage and two broken legs.

Two passengers in the car, Sally Miller, 10, and Norma Davidson, 11, were injured and taken to the Poplar Bluff hospital.

Last night at 9:30 p.m. at the intersection of Interstate 55 and highway 61, three miles south of New Madrid, a 1963 Mack tractor-trailer driven by Leroy W. Stiles, 33, Memphis, pulled up to a stop sign, when his brakes failed. The vehicle rolled backward, ran off the road and overturned on its side. The truck was loaded with meat owned by the Central and Southern Company, Memphis.

The driver was arrested on a charge of having defective brakes.

A two-truck collision Thursday at 3:45 p.m. on highway 80, two miles east of East Prairie resulted in no injuries to the drivers.

A 1962 Ford Dump truck, driven by Owen Witty, 46, East Prairie, was going slowly while he watched state mowers along the highway.

H. L. Arington, 81, East Prairie, driving a 1962 Dodge pickup truck, was blinded by the sun and struck the Arington truck in the rear.

In a one -car accident in East Prairie last night at 10:50 p.m. a 1958 Chevrolet, driven by Ronald Ray, 23, East Prairie, failed to speed around a corner and struck a utility pole.

Ray received a cut on his lip and was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

He was arrested on charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Population Loss Blamed For Schools? Problems

BY WARREN SOKOLIS

NEW MADRID - The declining population in the county has greatly hindered the county schools in providing pupils with an adequate education, four members of the state department of education reported last night.

The report was made following a two-day feasibility study of reorganization of county schools by the state department of education. The study had been requested by the county board of education.

State department officials speaking at the court house last night were Arthur L. Summers, Dr. George D. Englehart, Homer E. Bolen and Randall W. Tedlock, all from Jefferson City. About 75 persons, including school superintendents and school board members from county districts attended.

Summers, director of district reorganization and pupil transportation, division of administration, pointed out that the population in the county had declined 20 per cent in 10 years.

The 1959-60 school year was the peak year for total pupil enrollment in the county during the last 11 years, he continued. A total of 9,316 pupils were enrolled in county schools. The 1966-67 enrollment totaled 7,488, a decline of 1,828 pupils since 1959-60.

This is a decrease of 19.6 per cent, Summers noted, or an average decrease of 200 pupils a year.

The decline in pupil enrollment in county school districts from their peak years to the present shows:

Portageville R-1 - 1,542 pupils enrolled in peak year of 1957-58; 1,382 enrolled in 1966-67 a decline of 160 pupils or 10 per cent of the school enrollment.

Risco R-2 - 1,055 in peak year of 1959-60; 616 in 1966-67, a decline of 439 pupils or 41.6 per cent.

Parma R-3 - 817 in peak year of 1959-60; 667 in 1966-67, a decline of 150 or 18 per cent.

Lilbourn R-4 - 1,726 enrolled in 1959-60 and 1960-61; 1,427 in 1966-67, a decline of 299 or 17 per cent.

Matthews R5 - 1,183 in 1959-60; 816 in 1966-67, a decline of 367 or 31 per cent.

New Madrid R-6 - 1,499 in peak year of 1958-59; 1,207 in 1966-67, a decrease of 292 or 19.5 per cent.

Gideon 37 - 1,239 in 1956-57; 888 in 1966-67, a decrease of 351 or 28.3 per cent.

Morehouse C-12 - 501 in 1957-58; 467 in 1966-67, a decrease of 34 or 7 per cent.

Higgerson 24 - figures not available for all years, but enrollment in 1960-61 was 34; in 1966-67 enrollment was 17, a decrease of 17 or 50 per cent.

Bolen, director of general supervision, division of instruction, said that the trend in Missouri schools is toward larger districts with larger enrollments because the smaller schools are not meeting the educational demands of modern society.

"What do you want of your children? What is important for their generation?" Bolen asked.

Because of the influx in knowledge since the turn of the century, no one is able to comprehend all modern knowledge.

Each person must select some area of knowledge and specialize in it. Specialization is vital if the individual is to earn an effective and a comfortable wage, Bolen explained.

How is New Madrid county meeting the educational needs of its pupils? he asked. "It is obvious that the number of pupils enrolled and the assessed valuation of a district affect the number of credits offered."

A small enrollment does not mean that the quality of a particular course is poor, he said. The quality of the course depends on the ability of the teacher.

Total units of credit offered by area high schools are:

Portageville, 42; Risco, 29 1/2: Parma, 32 1/2; Lilbourn, 32 3/4; Matthews, 41; New Madrid, 38; Gideon, 31 1/4, and Morehouse, 28 3/4.

Not all schools in the county offer the same courses. For example, Portageville and Parma are the only county schools offering a course in journalism. If a student wanted to study journalism, he would have to live in the Portageville or Parma district.

Often the district will offer courses which are in the greatest demand by the students. However, it is more than likely that the curriculum is determined by what courses the faculty is qualified to teach, Bolen explained.

Many classes with small enrollments also add to the cost of education, he continued. For example, some classes have three or four pupils enrolled. Thus the district must pay for a teacher, who has only a small number of pupils enrolled in his classes. Consolidation of districts would be more economical since more pupils would be enrolled in that particular class, Bolen said.

Reorganization does not reduce the cost of education because the curriculum is usually expanded as the school district is enlarged, he noted. Once a district begins to offer quality education, curriculum is usually expanded to offer even more courses, which will boost the cost of education.

"The program must meet the individual needs of every pupil or his potential will never be known," Bolen said.

He pointed out some of the advantages of having a vocational education program in the home school district. County students in this program are now bused to the vocational schools at Malden and Sikeston.

"The high school vocational program must give the student the background to develop quickly into a quality artisan so he can make a good living," Bolen said.

Not only should training be provided for those interested in vocational occupations, but education must also be provided for the gifted child and the retarded child, he noted.

Tedlock, director of school finance and statistics, division of administration, said that that the combined assessed valuation of county school districts exceeds $57 million. Only two districts - Portageville and Gideon - have a higher current cost per pupil than the state average of $470.23.

The county also is below the state average in local receipts, non-revenue receipts (which includes sale of bonds), expenditure for plant maintenance, fixed charges and capital outlay.

Dr. Englehart, director of school building services, division of administration, reported on the group's study of school buildings and facilities in the county.

He pointed out that the two days which the group spent surveying the schools was not enough time to make a total evaluation of each school plant.

"Each school district has high school facilities that are reasonably good," he said. Most of the high schools in the county have been built in recent years.

"However, the elementary school plants run the gauntlet from excellent to poor. Some elementary schools have poor facilities," Dr. Englehart said.

Changes in the current school districts would provide better programs, he noted. The districts do a good job on the high school level, but some are limited in the number of courses offered to meet the needs of the students, he added.

"About one-third of the pupils in the county entered college after graduation last year. Thus, 70 out of every 100 graduates terminated their formal education after graduation," he pointed out.

It is the 70 per cent who do not go on to college who are not equipped with the necessary training and salable skills to make a good wage; he said. The county schools are failing to provide a good training program for those students not going to college, and the districts should "take a careful look at what they can do that they are not doing now for those 70 per cent," Dr. Englehart said.

Trade schools at Malden and Sikeston are available for use by students from New Madrid county, he noted, but these schools are limited in the number of students they can accept for enrollment.

Another limitation in the county's districts is the number of classes with exceedingly small enrollment. A class with only three or four pupils enrolled limits the use of that teacher. It would be more economical if more pupils were enrolled in that class, which would result from enlarged school districts, he explained. If the county were consolidated into one district about 2,000 students would be enrolled in the high school.

There are advantages in the small school, but larger schools do a better job of educating students, he said. Critics of the large district point out that the smaller school offers a personal relationship between the student and the teacher, but large schools can also have this direct relationship because they can employ guidance counseling teams, Dr. Englehart observed.

If the local school boards decided to reorganize their districts, none of the good school buildings in the county would have to be discarded, he pointed out. The present high schools could be converted to junior high schools.

Even though a present high school building has had facilities for science or home economics laboratories installed, these facilities would not be wasted. The trend in junior high education is toward teaching more sophisticated courses in such subjects as science and home economics, so the facilities at the high school could be used to improve the quality of education on the junior high level, he explained.

World War II Vet First To Shoot Down 2 MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — Col. Robin Olds is 44 in a young man's Air Force but he's still one of the hottest pilots of the Vietnam war.

A World War II ace with 24½ enemy planes to his credit then, he shot down his second Communist MIG21 Thursday to become the first double MIG killer of the Vietnam conflict.

"It was a great experience," he said when he returned to his base, Ubon airfield in Thailand.

"It was a mission to keep the MIGs off the 105s (F105 Thunderchiefs) and we did just that. We spotted four MIG17s later, but they didn't want to mix it up."

Olds' flight of F4C Phantoms was escorting the F105 Thunderchiefs whose mission was to bomb the Hanoi transformer site seven miles north of the center of the Communist capital.

Olds said that as his flight got near the Phuc Yen airfield "two MIG21s were spotted at 10 o'clock high heading for the last formation of 105s."

"We broke into them," Olds related, "and when they saw us they quickly forgot what they were there for. One disappeared and the other got nailed. He was burning when I left him. An F105 pilot saw him go into the ground and I didn't see him bail out."

Olds, graduated in 1943 from West Point where he was an outstanding tackle on the football team, comes from a long line of military men. One member of his family was a colonel on Gen. George Washington's staff. His father, Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, was commander of the 2nd Air Force during World War II.

Olds, of Washington, D.C., is married to former movie actress Ella Raines. They have two daughters, Chris, 15, and Susan, 13.

He came to Southeast Asia from Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and took command of the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing at Ubon, which calls itself the "Wolfpack Gang" because it has downed more than half of the 37 MIGs claimed by the Air Force in aerial duels. Navy pilots have downed the other 12 MIGs claimed by U.S. pilots.

Olds shot down his first MIG over the Red River Valley last Jan. 2, the day Air Force pilots downed seven Communist interceptors for the highest single-day kill of the war in aerial duels.

Both of Olds' MIG kills have been made with air-to-air missiles. The Russian-designed MIG21 is a bigger prize than the earlier MIG17, since it is faster and more maneuverable.

Only one other U.S. pilot, Lt. Hugh Wisely, a Navy flyer from Wayne, N.J., is credited with two enemy planes shot down, one a propellor-driven plane early this year and the other a MIG17 on April 24.

Olds flew 107 missions with the 8th Air Force in World War II and won two Distinguished Flying Crosses, two Silver Stars, the Air Medal with 27 oak leaf clusters, the British Distinguished Flying Cross and the French Croix de Guerre.

During the Korean War, he was in the Air Defense Command and, as he says, "missed the fighting."

Truckers Settle Dispute

CHICAGO (AP) — A renegotiated contract for 500,000 truck drivers across the nation was approved Thursday night. The pact could end the 11-day strike-lockout of more than 45,000 drivers which has crippled freight transportation in the Chicago area.

Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the Teamsters Union, said he was confident that Chicago truck drivers would be back to work by Monday.

Announcement of the reworked contract came amid published reports that control of the Teamsters has been shifted from the national headquarters back to local leaders, ending one-man rule of the powerful labor organization.

The revolt against the system established by James R. Hoffa, now serving an eight-year term in federal prison, was reported by the Los Angeles Times in a story from its Chicago bureau. It means the 1.8-million member union is returning to its historic fragmented power structure.

The decision reportedly was voted by the union's general executive board during a secret session Thursday in Chicago.

Fitzsimmons, emerging from a bargaining session with negotiators for the trucking industry, said the new contract will be submitted to union members across the country for a mailed vote.

The renegotiated agreement supersedes a national pact agreed on April 12.

Ratification of the April 12 agreement was stalled by the walkout of Chicago Teamsters Local 705 and the independent Chicago Truck Drivers Union. The national pact called for a 70-cent hourly package over a three-year span and Chicago drivers were demanding a 90-cent package.

Fitzsimmons said the new agreement could give long-haul drivers as much as 78 cents an hour over the next three years.

He said the contract includes 55 cents in "hard money," an improved cost of living plan and other benefits including vacations and a two-day funeral leave.

"This is the largest money package ever negotiated by the Teamsters Union," Fitzsimmons said.

Edward Fenner, president of the 11,000 member independent Chicago union, left the session after a "no comment" reply to questions about whether his group is in accord with Fitzsimmons' views.

Fitzsimmons said a decision at Chicago on the contract is a local matter, "I cannot say how they (Local 705) will vote," he said.

Louis Peick, head of Local 705 and chief negotiator for Chicago-area drivers, said the new contract was "the best deal we ever had."

Spokesmen for management were quoted as saying they will continue their lockout of Chicago truck drivers at least until midnight Friday so they will not have to pay the drivers for a 40-hour week.

No meetings were scheduled between the Chicago local and management before a vote is taken, Teamster officials said.

The Chicago Association of Commerce estimated earlier that the trucking stoppage put nearly 200,000 employes out of work in factories and construction work because of a shortage of supplies.

Cape Bank Charged With Discrimination

CAPE GIRARDEAU-The First National Bank of Cape Girardeau was accused of "discriminating between employes on the basis of sex," in violation of the fair labor standards act, in a civil injunction suit on file today in U.S. district court.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz charged that the bank pays some of its tellers less than it pays others of the opposite sex for equal work on jobs requiring equal skill, effort, and responsibilities.

In addition to requiring compliance with the statute, the injunction sought would order the payment of back wages withheld in violation of the statute. It also would require the maintenance of adequate time and pay records by the bank.

The suit followed an investigation carried out under the supervision of Jack R. Younce, head of the labor department's wage - hour office in St. Louis.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

International Telephone and Telegraph and the American Broadcasting Company want to merge.

They were given the all clear signal by the Federal Communications Commission but the Justice Department intervened and approval has been withheld at least temporarily.

Precedent for the consolidation may have been established by Radio Corporation of America, which owns the National Broadcasting Company.

Because of its worldwide operations some fears have been expressed that ITT might try to influence the handling of international news.

ITT has repeatedly assured federal authorities that it will not tamper with network news presentations.

That is what ITT says. Now let's look at the record.

During the merger negotiations both ITT and ABC public relations men have put heavy handed pressure on news media.

Eileen Shanahan, a New York Times reporter, testified that ITT public relations men read a company statement to her in "accusatory and angry tones" and told her that he expected to "read it high up in your story."

On another occasion, a high company public relations official demanded to see a story that she had written before publication. She refused to give it to him.

While still writing a story on the merger, Stephen M. Aug, Associated Press reporter, testified that the ABC had protested to his New York office the first paragraph of his story, which had appeared on a news wire.

There were other complaints of pressure all defended as being within the companies' right to protest.

What ITT and ABC does is more important than what they say.

The experience of reporters with the companies indicates that they would not hestitate to influence the type of coverage they received in any story which involved them. In such a diversified giant as ITT the opportunities for well doctored news stories are numerous.

The application for the merger should be denied.

If you were suddenly to find yourself confined to a wheelchair for the remainder of your life, what would you give to be able to walk again? Think about it!

Fortunately most of us are able to walk on our own two feet. But there are an estimated 500,000 Americans who have multiple sclerosis or related neurological disorders and many of them are in wheelchairs. Couldn't you give a little of your time to help these MS patients?

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society needs men and women to volunteer to canvass their neighbors for the MS Hope Chest Drive. The monies raised support research into the cause, prevention and treatment of this crippling disease, and provide local patient services for those afflicted, as well as community and professional education.

The cause of this debilitating disorder remains unknown. There is no apparent cure. But scientists are working day and night seeking an answer to MS. That is why volunteers are needed - to enable the Society to raise finds to finance this vital research.

Think about it! Don't you have some time to give to the Sikeston Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society so that they can help those less fortunate than yourself.

A new roadside safety feature is appearing in Kansas and elsewhere in the nation.

Large directional reflective signs along Interstate 70 in Topeka, Kans. are mounted on posts that break harmlessly away when accidentally struck by a speeding vehicle. The same kind of break-away sign also is being tested on other Kansas roads in an effort to keep pace with a record high volume of traffic, according to the State Highway Commission.

Such signs, installed in nine Topeka area locations, are designed with "slip plates" just above the ground and immediately below the sign.

On impact, the slip plates separate, the sign supports are pushed forward, and the sign flies harmlessly over the top of the vehicle, thus reducing the injury-causing factors in the accident.

Other signs are being moved behind existing guard rails. Where they can not be moved, slip joints are being installed in the steel posts.

When an average vehicle hits a breakaway post at a speed in excess of 35 miles per hour, posts equipped with slip plates will separate.

Breakaway signs also are being tested in Texas, and Pennsylvania.

Among other developments being tested or considered in Kansas:

1. Slopes to ditches are being reduced so drivers, if forced to leave the highway, can more easily control their vehicles.
2. Edge striping along all two-lane routes is being considered.
3. To encourage better construction and material controls, a new book of standard specifications has been published. Highway plans for future construction also are being reviewed to reduce roadside obstacles.

WHAT IS A FLAG?

Flags everywhere - on public buildings - in private homes - in stores - fluttering in the summer breeze - flags everywhere - American flags!

Passers-by, on the busy streets of the city, hurry on their way, minds intent on their own small affairs. They look idly at the flags - but do they really see them?

That oblong piece of cloth, with its bright dyes, is the visible symbol of America today - an America more precious, more wonderful than ever before, because the gifts it has given us are threatened, as never before, with loss and destruction? It is the thrilling heart of America - the sign of our inheritance - the presence of all we hold most dear!

The courage and strength of the pioneers - the pathfinders who met trial and hardship dauntlessly, in the days when we were beginning to be a nation - are in the red of its stripes!

The high and stainless purity of mind and motive - the whiteness of the souls of great men - Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson, and many others, who strove selflessly to hold high their beliefs in the greatness of this nation, and who dedicated their lives to its service - are in the white of its stripes!

The truth that will not stoop to lie - the integrity of the principles that underlie our commonwealth, the unshakable faith and trust in God, that has come down to us from those long gone before, who have held high the light, that we might walk safely - are in the blue of its field of stars!

And every one of those stars shines with a new splendor of meaning - the symbol of a free people, living their lives in the blessings of Freedom - Freedom to worship God as they choose, Freedom to work, to laugh, to love, to live - God's most precious gift to man, to be guarded sacredly forever!

What is a Flag?

It is the soul of America - and it shall never die!

BERLIN (AP) — Singer Ray Charles wiped the sweat of an evening's performance from his brow and said: "I love my talent. I wouldn't trade it for anything, not even to have my sight."

As a child Georgia-born Charles was blinded by an optic nerve disease but went on to become a popular performer in the world with his own brand of "soul music."

This week, after a performance in West Berlin's Sportpalast, he talked about his blindness and his music. If he had the power to control things, would he give up his talent for his sight?

"That's crazy," was his surprisingly quick answer.

"There's no reason for me to give up my talent. It makes people happy. I love it and as long as I love it I wouldn't change it.

"What is left for me to see? I was blinded when I was 6. I know what the moon and stars and other things look like. There's nothing earth-shattering left to see."

Charles, who accompanies himself on the piano, plays a brilliant saxophone and also composes most of his hit songs, added: "Seeing or not seeing doesn't have anything to do with my music."

Barry Rilera of Santa Ana, Calif., who plays guitar in the Charles orchestra, said, "Charles has a fantastic ear. It doesn't matter when or on what level but if you make a mistake he'll hear it. He makes us play better."

Charles and his troop of bandsmen and "Raelets" — four girl singers — easily won over the Berlin audience with such songs as "I Got a Woman," "Georgia on My Mind," "Hallelujah, I Could Love Her So," a particularly suggestive "Baby, It's Cold Outside," and a stirring blues monologue done by Charles.

The 35-year-old Negro is known as a soulful musician and he was asked to explain what the soul in his music is.

"I tell you," he said, "the word is greatly overused. I've heard records that are supposed to be soul but they didn't do anything to me. Soul — that's when it makes your heart do something. When it touches you inside.

"When you play happy, then those that are listening feel your joy. When you play sad, they feel your sadness.

"My music comes from the way I feel."

TAX LIFE AND TIMES OF CHARLIE GREEN

Six years ago, Tax Foundation, Inc., traced the effect of the trends of government spending and taxing on Charlie Green, an imaginary but fairly typical white collar worker. In this issue of Monthly Tax Features, the Foundation assays anew Charlie's situation in the light of government spending and taxing trends since 1955.

Charlie, a married man, has a 12-year-old daughter in elementary school and a 14-year old son in junior high. He has worked hard to get ahead and now earns $10,000 a year (about $2,000 more than the average U. S. family of four receives). It is considerably more than the $6,800 he earned in 1955. Like most in his position, he suffers more than the averabe employee from inflation and high taxes. Charlie owns his home in a metropolitan suburb; it is now valued at $25,000. He commutes to work in the nearby city.

Total direct taxes (not counting hidden taxes) now take almost 30 percent of Charlie's income, compared with 24 percent of his smaller earnings ten years ago.

Inflation has knocked a big hole in the several raises Charlie has had in the past ten years. Since 1955 the Consumer Price Index has risen 17 percent, wiping out $1,037 of his after-tax increase.

Since another $1,242 of his increased income (since 1955) has gone for higher taxes, Charlie's net increase in income, after inflation and taxes, the Foundation points out, is not $3,200, but only $921!

"Do you owe a big gambling debt, boy? Don't worry, I'll pay it."

"No, no, father, I've turned queer."

H.L. Hunt Says

"FEDERAL SERVICE" CREDIT FOR PRISONERS

Many times it has seemed to the observers of the Washington wonderland of bureaucracy that a supreme peak of absurdity had been reached, which could never be surpassed. Just as often we have soon learned that each new peak could be overtopped by yet another and still more amazing twist of the bureaucratic mind.

Another one of these moments has come with the disclosure by the able and conscientious Senator John Williams of Delaware that convicts are now obtaining credit for "federal service" for work done while in prison. This credit makes them eligible for the same federal benefits that go to civil servants hired in the normal way, who have not run afoul of the law. If a prisoner should obtain civil service employment after his release, he could actually count his time in prison as part of the period of service which would eventually qualify him for early retirement.

A few years ago a ruling by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that prison terms would be held equivalent to civil service employment would have been utterly incredible. But nowadays there are so many examples of this kind of thinking that we tend to become resigned to them.

This is a temptation to which we must not give away. American freedom can never be preserved if our people lose their capacity for healthy indignation along with an awareness of the fantastic foolishness of such a policy as giving civil service retirement credit for a prison term. This and other examples of its kind should be held up to public view until major policy changes are made. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

KENNEDY, VIETNAM AND THE GOP

June 5, 1966, Drew Pearson reported that the United States got bogged down in Vietnam after Kennedy suffered his "humiliating experience" at the Bay of Pigs and "decided to throw the military of the United States behind the small Catholic minority in South Vietnam. And from Eisenhower's total of only one thousand military advisers, Kennedy rapidly escalated American troops. . to 33,000 Americans in South Vietnam."

On May 1, 1967, the Senate Republican policy committee, diagnosing the causes of the Vietnam impasse, stated that American troops increased from 700 men under Eisenhower to several thousand under Kennedy after the Bay of Pigs, and that "it became apparent that the Kennedy administration had opted for military intervention."

WASHINGTON -- The strongest opposition to Nelson Rockefeller as candidate for President is coming, not from his bitter Republican foe Barry Goldwater, but from his friend Jacob Javits, the liberal Republican from New York.

Most people don't know it, but after Maryland's Gov. Spiro Agnew sent up the first trial balloon for Rockefeller, Javits burned up the wires to the state house in Annapolis.

In high excitement, Javits insisted Rockefeller was not a candidate, and urged Agnew to drop the Rockefeller - for-president idea. The moderates should unite, said Javits, around Michigan's Gov. George Romney.

Inside reason why the GOP Senator from New York opposes Rockefeller for President is that Javits is hungry to become the first Jew in history to become Vice President of the United States. If Rockefeller should be nominated Javits would be out, because two New Yorkers could not run on the same ticket.

Knowing this, Sen. Javits played his cards very shrewdly. He began making noises about running for Governor of New York himself. This was before Nelson had made up his mind whether to run for a third term. And, while making up his mind, he found Sen. Javits making speeches all over the state indicating that he was not adverse to running for governor himself.

A "SACRED DEAL"

Finally the two Republicans, always good friends, got together. Nelson suggested that Javits stop nudging him for governor, and Javits, in turn, made a frank confession that he wanted to run for vice president. He was willing to support Rockefeller for governor if Rockefeller would support him for vice president.

Rockefeller agreed. According to Javits's friends, he also made a "sacred pledge" that he would put his money on Gov. George Romney of Michigan, thus giving the Republicans a well - balanced ticket -- a Midwesterner for president and a New Yorker for vice president.

Rockefeller's most able professional, Leonard Hall, then took over the Romney campaign, and Rockefeller was emphatic both in private and in public about his determination not to run for president.

Recently, however, the "sacred deal" appears not too sacred after all. Two things have happened. LBJ's ratings have dropped, and Rockefeller admirers, led by Gov. Agnew, have cooled toward Romney after personal exposure.

The Maryland governor is now trying to persuade Rockefeller to change his mind. When Agnew went to see Rocky in Albany, the latter stuck to his Javits pledge. His friends, however, are still hoping, and Javits is still fuming. A pledge is a pledge, says Javits, and he expects Rockefeller to keep his.

JAVITS AND NAZI VICTIMS

Meanwhile, Sen. Javits, who has a fine record in congress, has had some sour reaction from Jewish leaders because of his championship of Gen. Julius Klein, close friend of Sen. Tom Dodd, in the argument over a $75 million contract with Rheinmetall for a 20 MM gun for the U. S. Armed Forces.

Klein, a Chicago public relations man, acted as the paid agent for Rheinmetall even though that company had used Nazi slave labor during the war and had refused to make restitution to survivors of those horrible concentration camps.

Because Rheinmetall had refused to pay restitution to slave labor camp survivors, the West German defense minister had recommended that the United States refuse to sign the 20 MM contract. The closing of the historic Springfield Arsenal was also involved. The U. S. Defense Department had followed this advice and the U. S. State Department had also taken a firm stand that Rheinmetall must pay restitution to slave labor victims.

Gen. Julius Klein, however, though a former commander of the Jewish War Veterans, protested that the company was "innocent of such charges as have been alleged." The Jewish War Veterans, in turn, threatened to expel him.

Even though fully aware of the seriousness of the state department's Nazi claims against Rheinmetall, and even the Senate Ethics Committee had already begun its probe of Klein and Sen. Dodd, Javits wrote Klein this letter:

"Within the context of your representation of West German business concerns and individuals -- which is itself a matter of your business judgment and your personal disposition and not for me to pass on -- I feel you have done your utmost to secure justice for the victims of Nazism and a measure of reparation through aid to Israel."

Many Jews wonder what Klein did to get Javits to write such a letter at the very time Klein was under investigation by the ethics committee. They have their fingers crossed regarding Javits for vice president.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

FEAR LBJ '68 DEFEAT

Secret Poll Taken by AFL-CIO leaders Reveals Rank and File Set to Rebel Against Old Chiefs.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: -- A worried national labor leadership now knows why there are chain - reaction rebellions amongst millions of their rank and file.

It took a secret poll -- for which they paid -- by the John Kraft opinion sampling organization actually to reaffirm what the land's most famous union chiefs already suspected.

Most of their rank and file just don't know them except as headline names and news-photos taken in some distant metropolis or capital.

The Kraft poll disclosed that there is a vast chasm between the leaders and the new class -- mostly the youth of the nation. That's why the rank and file has rejected more than one out of every ten compacts negotiated with their employers by their leaders.

The Kraft survey startled the leadership for political reasons as well as for the internal problems it raised.

Unless the trend is reversed, the AFL-CIO's political experts believe the rank and file will not follow labor's leadership in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Should this happen, they say candidly that President Johnson will be defeated.

And with him will go many of the liberal "friends" on whom the American labor movement depends for legislative power up on the Hill.

"The Kraft polls basically shows," said one high AFL-CIO official who helped arrange it, "that the younger members of the trade union movement are under 30. They have no memory of the depression, World War II, or the Korean war, for that matter. They don't remember the time there were virtually no vacations, no automatic pay increase, no hospitalization. They are little aware of the long trade - union battles and they take for granted all those jury contracts and always expect more."

This problem is not new to Walter Reuther, half of whose 1.5 million members are under 29. Swiftly this is becoming a problem even to the man of the hustings, I. W. "Abe" Abel, president of the United Steelworkers.

"Our members, young and older, are united," he said the other day. "But you can search mighty carefully through the Burns Harbor (Indiana) Bethlehem Steel plant and you won't find many -- or even one -- over 30. About a quarter of our 1.1 million members now are in that young age bracket."

What to do to build bridges to the young, only a few of whom are the mellow - yellow banana skin crowd?

There's one labor leader -- an old shortstop -- who's trying new tactics to mix with the new society. Recently he went out to some of his Pennsylvania shops. They knew he was coming, so they baked some cakes. They picketed him with signs saying "Welcome, rookie of the year." They danced in the aisles in some plants. They got one mayor to give him the keys to the city.

He is Louis Stulberg, "rookie" president of one of the land's -- and the world's -- most influential policy-making unions, the International Ladies Garment Workers. He's been in office just one year -- successor to the illustrious and perpetually peppery Dave Dubinsky.

"They" are part of the 455,000 members of this union which mans and ladys the thousands of shops that make every stitch of female clothing for a huge $15 billion dollar market.

"I'm a traveling salesman, now", says Lou Stulberg. "I've been through New England and I'm returning. I've gone into New Jersey and Pennsylvania. This is just the beginning. Right now I'm covering half our membership, personally -- going into the plants, listening to my people's problems. Sure I shake hands. Sure I'm delighted when a cutter comes up and says, 'Thanks Mr. Stulberg for shaking hands right in the shop.'

"You can bet I'll continue it across the nation until I get to all our people. I want to see what's doing in every corner of our union.

"The rank and file is changing and I want their relationship with the union officers and with me to be a personal one. There is no such thing as a runaway rank and file. If they know you want to do right by them and if you prove you have an interest in their welfare, they're with you.

"It's hard on the feet and body. But it's good for the soul. I'm enjoying it. All leaders should go out and see their people. How else can one lead?"

Perhaps the rest of labor should let the ladies garment leader set the fashions in leadership. They could save so much time and money. They would need no polls, no review of their public relations techniques such as they are now making.

They could get it firsthand, like that rookie, onetime shortstop, Lou Stulberg.

Mrs. Perkins Will Speak At Tea

Mrs. Marlin Perkins of St. Louis will speak at the annual tea of the extension councils of Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid counties at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the junior high school auditorium.

She will illustrate her talk with slides.

Mrs. Perkins travels with her husband, Marlin Perkins, director of the St. Louis Zoo, when he goes to many parts of the world to photograph his television program, Wild Kingdom. Mrs. Perkins is the still photographer on these journies, making a record for herself and her husband of the events of the journey.

She has written and illustrated "The Shattered Skull," the story of the search for prehistoric men in Africa. The material for this book was gathered from the Perkins' journey to Olduvai Gorge. In collaboration with her husband, Mrs. Perkins wrote "I Saw You From Afar," an account of their visit with the Bushmen of the Kalahari Desert in Africa. Pictures taken by Mrs. Perkins have appeared in two children's books, "Mogul Finds a Friend," and "The Lion Twins," both written by Elizabeth Stewart.

"Little Pierre," Mrs. Perkins' most recent book, has been the best selling children's book in St. Louis since its publication in August. It is the true story of a remarkable chimp growing up in the zoo.

Mrs. Perkins has returned from leading a four weeks safari across East Africa, and is now making plans to take another group to that continent in June of 1968.

The public is invited to the tea.

Two mounted duelists swung mighty saber blows.
What pity that such gallant blood was spilled.
I mean, the horses they accidentally killed.

RE-ENTRY PROBLEMS

A German factory makes non-rattling plastic keys with special locks that permit husbands to return home late and enter noiselessly (NANA-WINS). . . . A French wife, on the other hand, had a gadget installed in the door lock. When her husband inserts his key, it breaks a switch that stops an electric clock and tells the wife next morning just what time her errant spouse came in (Noel Anthony)

Change Made Without Influence

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — As she describes it, her change from atheism to belief in God came about without any identifiable cause or influence. It simply welled up, from some hidden spring within.

It was as if a "person was blind" and "one day his eyes become open and he can see the world," said Svetlana Alliluyeva, the daughter of the Soviet Union's late dictator, Joseph Stalin. "It is like this. It is the feeling that comes to you one day."

As to where it came from, or why, she said she didn't know. Yet her experience had biblical antecedents. And theology maintains that God often works incognito in people, even where He is unknown and unnamed.

"The true light that enlightens every man," the Gospel of John calls it. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it."

That was the situation of Stalin's daughter, reared and trained in an atmosphere not only of no religion but of vigorous antagonism to it.

"I was brought up in a family where there was never any talk of God," she said, except in a negative sense. "Since my childhood, I have been taught communism, and I did believe in it, as we all did, in my generation."

Then what sparked the religious turn in her? By her accounts, it had no origin that could be specified or explained. She said there was no persuasion, conversation, literature, teaching or even suggestion that led to it.

"It was not writing and not personal contacts," she said at her news conference last week. "Perhaps it is just what one may call religious feeling which some people have."

Whatever it was, she said, "I came to that conclusion myself without anybody's help or preaching."

A subtle and intriguing phenomenon. Yet in a theological contact, it is recognized as a regular operational mode of God, stirring even among men who are unaware of it, and without religious indoctrination, influence or institutions.

"It's something basic within man" commented the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Rapp, an Episcopal clergyman of Port Washington, N.Y. "Man is innately religious and can't help being religious. It's his nature, the way he was made. And it works in him, no matter what his circumstances."

As the World Council of Churches once put it, there is a "ceaseless work of the Holy Spirit among men" going on everywhere. "God has not left Himself without witnesses, even among men who do not yet know it.

"Wherever we go in the world, God is there before us. His light has preceded the bearers of the good news into the darkest places."

Only after Mrs. Alliluyeva had turned toward religion without outside inducements did she begin studying it, she said. "After that, I began to read more."

Five years ago, in May 1962, she was baptized in Moscow into the Russian Orthodox Church, a communion which stresses the mysteries of God's sovereignty in contrast to Western Christianity's tendency to try to codify and define it.

Illuminated Dresses Shown

NEW YORK AP -- It was all systems go for Diana Dew Thursday. Undulating models presented an illuminating demonstration of her electric dresses.

Twenty-three-year-old Diana -- who is also making paper dresses decorated with flower-seeds so that they may be disposed of in the garden and take root -- introduced prototypes of her brilliant ideas last January.

Now the bugs have been straightened out and the flashing battery-operated miniskirts and bell bottoms are ready for the current market.

"Some designers only have to worry about fabric deliveries," sighed Diana, who was glowing in neon-orange stockings and a fluorescent print dress though unwired.

"I have to worry about war priorities and strikes to get the transistor equipment I need."

The turn-on garments will retail for $125 to $250.

The 48 or so tubes and programmed computer systems of one dress, however, may be installed in another. In case of a switch, a shock or a blow-out, call your neighborhood TV-radio repairman, Diana advises.

Because Diana thinks fashion should communicate, one of her designs contains a pole-like throbbing red heart properly placed on a white Dr. Kildare minidress. A white star flashes on and off at naval level on a black and white short dress. On other minidresses are numerous square windows computerized to blink on and off like an apartment house complex at night.

Miss Nunnelee To Study In Europe

CHARLESTON - Judy Nunnelee will study abroad this summer as a member of the fifth Oklahoma Baptist University sponsored European Study Tour, June 12-Aug. 17.

The 10-week tour is divided into a short orientation session on the Shawnee campus, four weeks on the European continent, four weeks at Spurgeon's College in London and a nine-day tour of England and Scotland.

Eighteen hours of credit will be offered on the tour and each student is allowed to enroll in nine hours of classes.

Miss Nunnelee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nunnelee.

A curmudgeon to British publishing finally decided to retire at age 70. He was given the usual dinner. Associates, joyous at the prospect of his leaving, vied in elaborate praise. When the time came to respond, the old gentleman got up and said, "I had no idea I was held in such esteem, I shall stay on."

A strong-minded wife took her husband to a psychiatrist. "Herman has a very severe inferiority complex," she told the doctor.

"Now, just how do you know that?" inquired the psychiatrist testily.

"Because I gave it to him," replied the wife.

STICK-IN-THE-MUD: REPRISE

Damascus Derby Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The betting public probably will give its main support to Damascus in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, but longshot Dawn Glory will be in a kind of favorite's role, too.

The colt who brought his Puerto Rican owners to the world's most glamorous horse race in their first fling at the sport will be carrying saddle cloth No. 8. That's the one that crossed the finish line first the past two years.

Every post position has been a winner at one time or another in the 92 Derbys, but for several it has been 25 years or more.

And for at least one, Lightning Orphan, the last win for post position No. 11 could be more than slightly prophetic.

It was in 1933 that Brokers Tip and Head Play roared down the home stretch while their riders flailed at each other with their whips in the only violent roughhouse in Derby history.

Since the invention of the film patrol, jockeys have avoided such tactics.

Civil rights leaders have threatened to disrupt this year's Derby and have hinted demonstrators might spread to the track.

Going from the inside post position that produced its last winner, Chateaugay, in 1963, will be Louis Rowan's Ruken, winner of his last three starts and victor in the Santa Anita Derby.

Mrs. Edith Bancroft's Damascus, carrying Bill Shoemaker in his 16th consecutive Derby ride, starts from the same No. 2 slot that sent Tim Tam to victory in 1958. Odds now have Damascus as the 2-1 favorite.

Perne L. Grissom's second try in the run for the roses, Dr. Isby, goes from the No. 3 gate which hasn't produced a winner for 25 years. Bill Hartack will be aboard, seeking his fifth Derby victory in eight rides.

Diplomat Way, Harvey Peltier's surprise winner in the Blue Grass Stakes, will start as No. 4, the position that sent Decidedly to victory in 1962. That was the year after Diplomat Way's rider, John Sellers, won his Derby on Carry Back.

Barbs Delight, owned by a trio of young Lexington horsemen, goes from gate No. 5, without a winner since Count Fleet and Johnny Longden turned the trick in 1943.

Wheatley Stable's Successor, the juvenile champion of 1966 who is still looking for his first win of 1967, starts as No. 6, which had its last winner in 1957 when Iron Liege nipped Gallant Man.

Proud Clarion, Darby Dan Farm's effort for two Derby victories in as many tries, will start from No. 7, last a winner in 1964 when Hartack got his fourth astride Northern Dancer.

Outside Dawn Glory, who will be wearing the number carried by both Lucky Debonair in 1965 and Kauai King last year, will be Field Master, seeking the first victory for No. 9 since Venetian Way in 1960.

Gentleman James, Michael Phipps' first entry in the Derby, will start from the same No. 10 gate that Dark Star left in his smashing defeat of Native Dancer in 1953.

Outside of Freeman Keyes' Lightning Orphan will be Second Encounter, wearing the same No. 12 that Hoop Jr. carried in 1945 and starting from the No. 12 gate that held Kauai King last year when addition of a mutuel field garbled saddle cloth numbers and post positions.

Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail will leave from Jet Pilot's No. 13 gate with Charles F. Parker's Ask The Fare going from the same No. 14 position that Carry Back had.

If all 14 start in the 4:30 p.m., EST, Derby, the race will gross $162,200 and hand the winner $119,700 for about two minutes work.

The 93rd Derby will be televised (CBS) from 4-5 p.m., EST, and broadcast by radio (CBS) from 4:15-4:45.

Dexter's David Cowan was medalist for the match. He carded a three over par 38. Other Dexter scores were David Agey 43, Kevin Bay 44, David Rendlemay 46, L. W. Trammell 47, and Mick Lynch 48.

The Bulldogs will travel to Cape Girardeau Monday to compete in the SEMO District match, which starts at 1 P.M. Coach Gene Dawson is uncertain about which boys will go. Each team will send four boys.

The number one team and the top two individuals will qualify to compete in the state finals in Columbia May 22. Sikeston has a strong chance of winning Monday but will face strong competition from the teams from Cape Girardeau Central and Poplar Bluff.

The Dogs have one more match in the 1967 campaign. The golfers will play host to the Tigers of Cape Central May 15.

SEMO Thinclads Travel To Washington University

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State track team will wind up its road schedule Saturday, meeting Washington University at St. Louis Saturday. The Indians will be looking for their fifth dual meet win against only two losses.

The Southeast tracksters recently overwhelmed a Harding team noted for its fine distance men. Sophomore miler Bill Wirtz of Overland turned in his finest performance in setting a school record of 4:13.7. Freshman pole-vaulter Dwain Bridges of Granite City, Ill., also got into the act, vaulting to a new school record of 14'9".

Indian trackmen have excelled in other events this season, with soph Terry Coff of St. Louis tossing the shot a record distance of 53'9". Senior record-holder Gene McClellan, also of St. Louis, has a career-best in the javelin throw with 209'.

In the high jump, Curtis Williams of Cape Girardeau has come within one-fourth inch of his own record of 6'8 3/4". In the 100-yard dash, Walt Smallwood of Webster Groves has tied his old record of 9.7.

The Indians will host the MIAA outdoor meet, to be held here May 12-13.

Pirates Rally To Beat LA; Three Way Tie For Second In NL

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Hart may be the biggest Met fan since Casey Stangel. Not for what the Mets do to the opposition. Which isn't much. For what he does to them.

And what he does to the Mets is amazin', absolutely amazin'.

"I can't explain it," the San Francisco Giants' third baseman said. "I just go up there swinging."

Whatever the cause, if Hart could play all his games against the Mets he'd probably break all of baseball's most cherished records.

He had a homer and scored twice Thursday night in the Giants' 3-1 victory over the Mets, boosting his season average against New York to .400.

But that isn't surprising. Last season he hit .415 against the Mets, collecting nine of his 33 homers and 20 of his 93 runs batted in. The season before, eight of his 23 homers came off Met pitching.

Two of his three homers this year have been against the Mets. The ninth-inning solo shot Thursday clinched it for the Giants, ho had to survive a mild Met threat in the eighth.

Pittsburgh rallied for a seven-run seventh inning and whipped Los Angeles 9-3 while Houston took Philadelphia 4-1 in the only other major league games played. Chicago at Atlanta in the National League was rained out. There were no games scheduled in the American League.

Hart started it against the Mets' Don Cardwell—who allowed only four hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh—with a walk in the second. Singles by Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes got one run.

The Mets tied it against Mike McCormick in the fourth, but the Giants went to 2-1 in the sixth on a double by Jesus Alou, a ground out and Willie Mays' ground single up the middle.

McCormick, who had a three-hitter going into the eighth, got into a jam with two pinch singles after one was out. Frank Linzy came on, got the next man to ground into an inning-ending double play and retired New York in order in the ninth.

The Pirates vaulted into second place, tied with St. Louis and Atlanta, two games back of idle Cincinnati, on the strength of their comeback victory against the Dodgers. Maury Wills was the big gun against his old Dodger mates with two singles and a double.

!!HOOKY!!

WHATEVER happened to the old American tradition of playing hooky to go fishing?

Remember the days when a lazy afternoon on the crick bank with a cane pole and gob of worms was far more important than geography. . . .science. . . .or math? When the smell of damp willows excited the nostrils more than chalk dust in a drowsy classroom? And the occasional flirtations of Mr. Whiskers whetted a guy's senses quicker than the flick of pigtails at the desk just ahead?

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

A lot of things have changed over the years. These days many youngsters know of piscatorial adventures only through the pages of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn.

Opening Day used to be the day in spring, schools in many parts of the land simply made the best of a bad thing and released all and sundry to play their various degrees of Calcutta skill upon local fish populations. This acceptance of opening day hooky relieved the pressures which spring imposed on school boys.

Today's school kids aren't so lucky . . .Each single day of school seems to have more importance than in bygone eras and fishing is depreciated. It is suggested, in other words, that the youngster is better off staying in school.

THINK A MINUTE!

Maybe so, but the thought has occurred to many ex-hooky players that the one day a year he spent at the old crick or pond each year did him more good than it did him harm.

Still, things have changed and the chance of school officialdom winking at a high incidence of hooky on the first. . .or any day of the fishing season is slight. So much for tradition.

About all a father can offer as a substitute for the day of hooky is a suggestion that he and junior get to their favorite fishing spot on weekends.

It won't be quite as much fun for the lad, but if he's imaginative, he can always pretend it's a school day.

We know that many school officials would like to take that day of hooky playing along with the student.....I would.

WEATHER

THE SPRING weather started out so good for high school sports this year and turned so sour all of a sudden that we wonder if its all worth trying to squeeze in baseball, tennis, track and golf meets in between rainy - cold and just down right bad days as far as the weather is concerned.

We understand that rain is forecast for the weekend..... and that cancels mine and many other HARD WORKERS free day fishing.....

What's next....maybe snow.....

THE CONNALLY ACT

Published announcements state that the National Council of Churches will start a "drive to repeal the so - called Connally Act." This undoubtedly refers to the resolution providing for the adherence of the United States to the World Court of the United Nations. The Connally resolution provides that our country cannot be brought before the World Court unless our government gives prior consent to the action. It is not generally known that no communist nation adheres to the World Court, yet every communist nation may have one of its nationals elected to serve as a judge on that court. There are 15 judges, and 9 constitute a quorum. In case there were 9 judges sitting, 5 could render a decision. It might well happen that all five would be communists.

What would happen to our country if we were tried by a World Court having a majority of communist judges? Suppose the USSR should claim Alaska, or Mexico should claim the southwestern part of our country. These territories formerly belonged to Russia and Mexico. Communist judges would of course authorize their return. Suppose we were hauled before the court charged with aggression in Vietnam. Suppose China brought an action in the World Court for the return of Taiwan, accusing the United States of seizing that portion of her territory. As long as we have the Connally resolution, we need not submit such cases to the jurisdiction of the World Court. But if that resolution is repealed, we would be the victim of the court's decision, not only in those cases, but in any other case that our enemies chose to bring against us.

If the Connally resolution is repealed, our country might well be dismembered and our sovereignty destroyed. The maintenance of that resolution is essential to the safety of the United States of America and its people.

THE BLUSHING BRIDE

They tell of the blushing bride
Who to the altar goes,
Down the aisles of the church
Between the friend - filled rows,
There's Billy whom she motored with
And Bob with whom she swam;
There's Jack, she used to golf with him--
And Steve who called her "lamb."
There's Ted, the football man she owned
And Dan of tennis days,
There's Herbert too, and blonde Eugene
They took her to the plays;
And there is Harry, high school beau,
With whom she used to mush
No wonder she's a blushing bride,
Ye Gods! She ought to blush.

Researcher Claims Studies Link Smoking to Cancer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cancer can be induced in dogs by training them to smoke cigarettes, and the rate of growth parallels that of cancer in humans who smoke, a researcher says.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach called the results of his research "pathological evidence" that cigarette smoking causes cancer.

The tobacco industry maintains that only statistical, rather than pathological, proof has been offered linking cigarettes to cancer.

Auerbach, senior medical investigator at the Veterans Administration hospital at East Orange, N.J., told of his findings Wednesday at the American Cancer Society's 1967 scientific meeting.

"It shows without question that cigarette smoking in dogs produces exactly the same changes as in humans," Auerbach said.

In his 14-month study he used 10 beagles as a control group for a second group of 10 beagles which he taught to smoke up to 12 cigarettes a day.

He performed a tracheotomy and attached to each dog's trachea a tube connected to a smoking machine outside its pen. After the first day, the dogs smoked on their own, Auerbach said.

Autopsies showed the nonsmokers had no physical disabilities. The smoking dogs began to die of varying allments after the first two weeks until five of the 10 smokers had died after 412 days, Auerbach said.

Autopsies showed the dogs who died first had slight changes in the tissue around the lungs and those who died or were killed during the last days of the research had advanced cancer cells lining the entire tract, he said.

Auerbach compared the stages of advancing cancer with tissue taken from humans who had been light, moderate or heavy smokers and found the profiles parallel, he said.

A new study began Tuesday, Auerbach said, using 96 dogs to seek to learn the differences between smoking filter and non-filter cigarettes and the length of time needed for smoke-damaged tissue to be repaired once smoking stops.

It was partly because of Auerbach's earlier research that the cancer society concluded that cigarette smoking was a principal cause of cancer.

Auerbach said the new research may indicate if development of "a safe cigarette" is possible.

Medieval European craft guilds were usually composed of three classes of members: the masters, journeymen and apprentices. The purpose of the guild was to maintain the quality of consumer goods, educate new members of the profession, regulate wages and prices, and form a monopoly of the town market against the intrusion of outsiders. In time, The World Almanac research finds, many of the guilds also became social and benefit clubs that produced plays, held feasts and colorful parades, and generally looked after the needs of their members.

Cotton Institute Applies For Marketing Role

MEMPHIS -- The newly organized Cotton Producers Institute is applying to the Cotton Board for a contract to develop and conduct an expanded market development program for cotton as authorized under the cotton research and promotion order.

This would implement the plan approved by growers in a referendum last December providing for uniform assessment of $1 per bale for research and promotion.

The trustees, who convened here, had been selected earlier by certified cotton producer organizations in each state. They unanimously agreed to continue to utilize the staff and services of the National Cotton Council to carry out 1967 activities and develop plans for 1968.

Authority was granted also for the officers and executive committee to work with a special study committee of the council in determining recommendations for future operations.

Russell Giffen, Fresno, Calif., was elected president of the board of trustees, Monday, as transfer of existing CPI programs to the new Beltwide organization was effected.

Howard Alford, Lubbock, Texas, was elected vice president; C. R. Sayre, Greenwood, Miss., secretary; and William L. Lanier, Macon, Ga., treaurer.

These officers and the following will make up the executive committee: Kenneth E. Frick, Arvin, Calif.; Keith Walden, Tucson, Ariz.; H. M. (Mark) Rickman, La Mesa, N. M.

Roy Forkner, Lubbock, Texas.; Joe B. Pate, Jr., Lubbock, Texas.; Woodrow W. Hart, Sinton, Texas.; Jess G. Stratton, Clinton, Okla.

W. T. Robertson, Holly Ridge, Miss.; Harold F. Ohlendorf, Osceola, Ark.; A. L. Story, Charleston, Mo.; Paul Ransom, Monroe, La.

Hervey Evans, Jr., Laurinburg, N. C.; J. E. Mayes, Mayesville, S. C.; and P. R. Smith, Winder, Ga.

The Institute's current programs were thoroughly reviewed and opportunities for expanding research and promotion were outlined. Specific projects for 1968 will be adopted at a subsequent meeting later this year.

MOTHER'S DAY AND THE CARNATION

For hundreds of years flowers have been known to have a language of their own . . . certain flowers say certain things . . . each unique in the message they bear.

The red carnation has long been accepted as the flower to say: "We admire you." The pink carnation is said to say, "we admire you, tenderly."

It is no wonder, then, the carnation has become the nationally accepted flower to represent "Mother's Day". What better means could we use to express our love to a person as noble as our mothers.

A lovely floral gift for your mother is just as close as your telephone. Call GR1-5777, we will see that they are delivered to her door.

AMONG PANELISTS who discussed motorist vision at convention of Missouri Optometric Association from left, were Jack Stapleton, chairman of Missouri State Highway Commission; Raymond I. Harris, St. Louis County coroner, and Dr. Merrill Allen, professor of optometry at Indiana University.

Night Drivers Should Be Able to See Well

CLAYTON -- Persons with only 20/40 vision should not be permitted to drive at night without eyeglasses that correct to 20/20, Dr. Merrill Allen said at a symposium on motorist vision.

Dr. Allen, professor of optometry at Indiana University and an authority on motorist vision, addressed the convention of the Missouri Optometric Association.

"It is unreasonable to expect a driver to operate a vehicle safely by day with 20/40 or less acuity. By night, no person with only 20/40 day acuity should ever be permitted to drive," he declared.

Although this may cause an outcry from many persons with 20/40 vision, he said, their vision can be corrected with eyeglasses.

Dr. Allen said studies also show that persons with color defects in their vision require twice as long to recognize and act on electric traffic signals and auto tail lights.

These persons also should not drive at night, he said. However, the color problem can be alleviated by changing the vehicle light system to green tail lights and bright orange red brake lights, he said.

He declared that tinted windshields cut down light transmission by 50 per cent, causing a hazard in night driving. About 95 per cent of the most expensive automobiles have these windshields, he said.

Noise also affects motorist vision, he said, because it affects the nervous system responsible for interpreting the image the eye transmits to the brain. This noise may come from a radio or children in the car, he added.

Jack Stapleton, chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission, said he believes painting reflectorized stripes on the center and sides of the road would be well worth the cost of $27 per mile. He noted, however, that the stripes lose their brightness in the rain.

Dr. Oscar Richards, head of the Biological Optics Research Division of American Optical Co., said the stripes tend to keep drivers four more inches away from the centerline.

St. Louis County Coroner Raymond I. Harris said of the 1000 fatality cases he has handled, he could not link a single one to glare. About 50 to 70 per cent of the fatalities involve persons under the influence of alcohol, he said.

Gains Made in M.U. Faculty

COLUMBIA -- Chancellor John W. Schwada of the University of Missouri, Columbia, said that the University is making gains in quality and quantity in faculty. He noted gains in the faculty-student ration in the last five years, gains that will continue this year, and said moreover that more classes are being taught by staff members of higher rank.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Columbia Rotary club today, the chancellor in answer to vague charges that the University is facing a "brain drain" pointed out that the faculty increase has exceeded enrollment growth on a percentage basis over the past few years.

"This growth has enabled us to strengthen our offerings in many areas," he said. "Of course we have not been able to do all that we would like toward the strengthening and expansion of existing programs. We operate with a finite budget which requires the making of many difficult choices in the allocation of funds."

On the question of "turnover," Chancellor Schwada said that the University rate has averaged less than five per cent annually over the last five years.

"Indications are that it will remain at that level this year," he said. "This rate is about equal to, or a little below, that experienced by comparable Big 8 and Big 10 universities with whom we checked."

The chancellor said that the University faculty had grown numerically from 652 in 1963 to 938 in 1966-67. Authorized resources will make it possible to add some 100 new positions for the next academic year, he said.

"We are obtaining the services of many excellent men and women, ranging from young teachers who have shown high potential to established scholars who have already proven themselves," he continued. "For example, four full professors (the top academic rank on the faculty) are leaving, but we are adding 18 at that rank.

"Virtually every divisional dean will testify that he has had the most successful year in recent history in recruiting distinguished new faculty."

The chancellor added that the University is not complacent about its progress and that he realizes "we will encounter occasional disappointments as well as successes" as we go about the undertaking of building a superior university.

Citing some figures on faculty gains and losses during the year, he said that Arts and Science will lose nine faculty members this year, but has already added 18 new teachers considered to have unusual ability; Education is losing five, but gaining 10; Engineering reports five resignations and eight replacements; the Medical School is losing three, gaining 12; and the School of Veterinary Medicine reports no losses and a gain of four new teachers. Recruiting has included faculty members from Stanford, Illinois, Florida, Southern Methodist, Michigan State, Texas, Pennsylvania, State, Rice, Purdue, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota university.

"In addition, I know at first hand that quite a number of our faculty have received and turned down attractive offers from other good universities."

Caruthersville Club Wins State Award

SPRINGFIELD -- Three of Missouri's Federated Women's clubs were honored at the Assemblies of God Auditorium for helping young people to gain a better education.

Awards totaling $1,000 were presented to the winning clubs at the annual state federation convention here by James Bird, Missouri sales supervisor for an oil company, sponsor of the program.

First-place award of $500 went to the Art and Literature Club of Parkville, second- and third-place awards of $300 and $200 respectively were presented to the Woman's Club and Civic Association of Caruthersville and the Better Homes Club of Butler.

The cash prizes, which are used by clubs to further their education programs, are among 150 state and three national awards being made this year through the General Federation of Women's clubs and the oil company's educational program.

The Woman's Club & Civic won its award for providing educational and cultural opportunities for young people and its contributions to community fund drives. The club awarded a $500 scholarship to a student who plans a teaching career. It also sponsored a Girl's State representative, helped support the work of the community youth center and contributed funds to the Retarded Children's Center.

Now in its fifth year, the GFWC Oil Company educational program has been expanded to include three national awards totaling $5,000 in addition to the $50,000 in cash available to state winners.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Monsignor James H. Fitzpatrick, one of the new breed of activist priests, is director of The Health and Hospital Division, Catholic Charities of Brooklyn. With the sanction of his superior, Bishop McEntegart, Father Fitzpatrick conceived and started up the monumental $60 million Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens, and is a medical missionary to the sick and needy of every race and creed in one of the country's most populated urban areas.

Father Fitzpatrick believes that medicine should be taken to the people by the people. Less than 10 per cent of his undertaking is with government money.

His father, a New York fireman, died when he was 12. To get his education he worked as a detective at a race track and as a laborer on excavation projects for the Navy. His whole life as a priest has been in hospital work, which he feels is the forerunner of ecumenism.

Father Fitzpatrick says, "God created mankind for God, and God created man for man!" or as St. John said, "Little children love one another."

TV Show Mortality Rate High This Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1966-67 television season is history, its races run, its victors hailed. Until the reruns started it was a pretty rough time with an extraordinarily high mortality rate for new shows.

When the season started in September, 34 new series were bidding for favor in the evening schedules of the three major networks. By midseason, 12 already had been canceled and replaced. Among the early dropouts were some illustrious show business names -- Garry Moore, Milton Berle, Jean Arthur and Tammy Grimes among them.

By next September, only nine of the original 1966 starters will have survived. Several which will disappear over the summer were permitted to totter along only because the networks had nothing better with which to replace them.

The single most interesting fact is that the well-established old-timers continued to lead the popularity lists. They were "Bonanza," Red Skelton, Lucy, Jackie Gleason and "Beverly Hillbillies," to mention a few. Not a single new show climbed into the season's top ten.

Two new ones, "Family Affair" and "Rat Patrol" managed to get into the top 20, and two midseason replacements, "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" and a new "Dragnet" series also have done well.

Viewers responded in impressive numbers to one-shot shows in a range from the Academy Awards show and Bob Hope's Christmas show-perennial hits —to variety hours starring such stars as Dick Van Dyke, Lucille Ball and Jim Nabors.

The networks were impressed. All three are promissing more specials than ever next season.

There were some interesting success stories. Jackie Gleason's show, which had fallen into something of a slump, pulled itself up by a series of musicals built around the old "Honeymooners" shows and became one of the most popular shows on the air.

"Mission Impossible," an action-adventure series was drooping miserably in a Saturday evening spot behind the wobbly "Pistols 'n' Petticoats." Then the network switched the positions of the shows and the program shot up into the upper third of the popularity list.

THE PRACTICE OF PROGRESS

Less than 200 years ago in Europe, architects and builders -- as they checked the progress of their construction jobs -- often gave on-the-spot instructions to foremen in charge of groups of building craftsmen. Perhaps it was the pitch of the roof which was not quite right. . . or the quality of the tile being used. Just as in today's world of construction, old-time builders did their best to please their patron's every wish.

At the beginning of the 19th century, construction men began more independently to try to develop new methods to meet new and varied demands from more people, rather than merely accepting what might been handed down from father to son as "correct." This was the beginning of the age of scientific analysis and research into many new branches of knowledge, including building techniques. From these early stirrings of independent thought and trial and error have blossomed, in five short generations, the mighty outpourings of improved materials and methods that so well meet the challenge of today's diversified building needs.

THE PROBLEM

'DON'T give it a thought,' you said,
And I knew you meant
A thought of fear or doubt,
Or of discontent.

So I gave it thoughts of hope
And of quietude.
I gave it thoughts of love--
And they worked for good.

BULLDOG BARKER

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Barker Staff Feels Elation As Year's End Approaches

GRADUATION NEARS and everyone begins to make plans for the summer and fall. Barker staffers have only one more issue to follow this, and the newspaper tasks for this year will be over.

This is the 27th issue of the Bulldog Barker, and as it goes to press the staff feels the closeness of graduation and the twinge of dismay because this is nearing the close of their high school journalism career.

Since the staff printed its first newspaper on September 16, each member of the staff has undergone various trials.

Staff devoted Thursday afternoons for the work at the printers, all the mistakes they made throughout the year seem routine as the staff looks back on the may days of work spent in preparation of this newspaper for the students and faculty.

Pressure of completing stories on time, having to rewrite and completely alter some of them, have been felt since the first working day of the journalism class.

When the newspaper is completed and ready for press, the yearbook deadline must be met. Journalism has been a never-ending job this year, but the reward is the pleasure of seeing the finished product on Friday afternoon.

Barker results can be seen every Friday, but the highlight of the year for the staffers will be the arrival of the 1965 Growlers in Aguust. This event will make all the work and problems worthwhile.

Next year's group of journalists will find the same problems and frustrations facing them in the fall. They will believe it impossible to meet all the deadlines in a short time, but they, too, will soon learn the routine.

Staffers hope that the future journalists will derive as much benefit and satisfaction from their journalism work as they have.

Sophs, Juniors Take Note Of College Admission Tests

NOW IS THE TIME for underclassmen to begin taking action regarding admission to college.

A majority of college-bound students mistakenly believe that by browsing through a few catalogues, filling out a few forms, and taking a few tests they can smoothly make the transition from high school to college.

A conference with the counselor, early in the student's high school career, is a good beginning.

The counselor will probably recommend that the student take the Premliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test or the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test and possibly both in his junior year.

Scores from these two tests give the student an idea of how he compares scholastically with his peers throughout the nation.

Counselors will also recommend that the student become familiar with the large collection of the most recent catalogues from colleges and universities in all parts of the country.

Most colleges require either the American College Test of the Scholastic Aptitude Test plus three of the CEEB Achievement Tests.

Most of these achievement tests are intended to be taken in the senior year, but others cover subjects usually offered for only one year.

Some students should be aware that many colleges have "early admission" and "early decision" programs for outstanding applicants. These programs usually require that applications and necessary test scores be filed by the end of the student's junior year.

Students must not wait until their senior year to begin filing college and scholarship applications.

With the assistance of a counselor, he can plan far in advance and he may know the security of having been accepted by the school of his choice, months in advance of graduation.

Senior Joe Schuhart Has Boat Of The Week

"Car of the Week" gives in to spring this week and features a boat instead of a car. The boat belongs to Joe Schuchart and his brother Emil. Joe is an active senior and a football letterman. His brother is a former graduate of Sikeston high school and now a student in the University of Missouri.

Joe's boat is a seventeen foot "Blackhawk Runabout" terestingly enough Blackhawk boats were manufactured in Sikeston. The boats of fiberglass construction and has a semi-vee hull that not only provides good cornering but high speed.

The Blackhawk is powered by a 90 horsepower Johnson outboard. This is an 89 cubic inch V-4 engine with a four barrel carb. When Joe and his brother purchased the boat, it had a 40-horsepower Johnson on which it was traded in 1965 for the 90. Joe either got a fast motor or he had a fast boat because his rig is very fast for the horsepower and size.

Those who have knowledge of boats and motors will know that of the major brands Johnson and Evinrude are usually noted for dependability more than speed. Joe's rig has outrun more than a few 100 and 110 horsepower Mercurys on boats of equal size. This is really outstanding since Mercury outboards are considered very fast motors.

Joe's boat has done 40 miles per hour plus with three people and full gas tanks aboard.

Joe's boat has many other features too. Some of these are a convertible top, built in 12 gallon gas tank, folding windshield, running lights, spotlight, dual electric horns and single lever gearshift control. One of the more prominent features is the dashboard. On it are a cigarette lighter, 24-hour rally clock, fuel guage, perature gauge, electric choke control and light and horn controls.

Students Receive Certificates Of Merit

JUNIOR MARY JANE COPE is the recipient of the merit award from Bruce Lewis, member of the Board of Education.

Are To Speak At Graduation

Students Select Theme For Commencement Introductions. May 26

Nine speakers have been chosen to participate in the commencement program on Friday, May 26.

In order of the amount of votes received from the judges the speakers will be Vicki Schindler, Charles Stamp, Tom Phillips, Brian Underwood, Steve Spear, Darla Scoles, Sally Faulkner, Mary Anne Bruce and Doris Ray.

These seniors will choose a theme for the program and the addresses will coincide with this theme.

Judges were Robert Walker, director of speech activities; Mrs. Jack Yount, sponsor of the senior class; Mrs. Catherine Matthews, chairman of the social studies department and Lawrence Aeschlimann, chairman of the English department.

Douglas Morrison and Jerry Smithers, seniors in Southeast Missouri State College and student teachers in Sikeston high school, were also judges.

Gary Grant, highest ranking junior in National Forensic League, represented the students as judge.

Speakers will have specific duties, consisting of main speeches, prayer, and introductions according to their rank on the list of nine.

Principal speakers will select a theme consisting of four parts. Each address will be five minutes in length.

Introductions will be made for the president of the board of education, Dr. A. D. Martin, Supt. Lynn Twitty, and Principal Roger Sherman.

Benediction and invocation will also be given by the students.

Seniors gave a two-minute address appropriate for commencement, and it was recorded on a tape. Judges listened to the tape and rated the students with special notice given to voice quality and content.

Gary Wiss To Attend Convention

Gary will also be a participant in the summer workshop of the councils at the University of Missouri, June 12-15.

Later on in the summer he will go to Pennsylvania to take part in the national conference.

Gary represented the high school on the sophomore pilgrimate to jefferson City last year.

He was president of the sophomore class, and he is now the junior class president.

Gary has been a member of the student council representing his homeroom for the past two years.

He was the top scorer on Sikeston's basketball squad this past year, and he played baseball and was a member of the team the last two years in high school.

"Hearts that are delicate and and kind and tongues that are neither --- these make the finest company in the world."

Staff Works To Finish Yearbook Pages

Great surprises are in store for all the persons who purchased a '67 Growler. It will be a book of priceless memories and countless experiences.

Growler this year will feature colored end sheets, tinted pages, and a uniquely decorative cover. Approximately three-fourths of the pages are complete and have been shipped to the Paragon Press in Montgomery, Ala.

Senior, junior, and sophomore individual pages have been alphabetized and identified.

Group pictures of the '67 football and basketball squads have been completed.

Miss Sikeston and high school royalty pages have been designed and sent to the publisher. Outstanding students from all three classes have had their pictures snapped in unusual background settings and these pages are finished.

Group pictures of specific organizations have been taken. Sophomore and junior class officers pages are finished, and the senior officers will be taken shortly.

Journalism students will work on into the summer after school has been dismissed in order to make the Growler "just what the students want."

Approximately 30 pages, consisting of track, baseball, graduation, NFL, FHA, will be completed and mailed withinthe next few weeks.

Events Mark School End; On May 26

Seating for the public will be on the bleachers set up in front of the outdoor stage for the band concert.

All the athletes of Sikeston high school will be treated to the "all-sports chicken fry" on Tuesday evening, May 16, in the high school cafeteria.

Annual Sikeston high school awards assembly is scheduled for Wednesday, May 17, at 2:30, and the last hour will be dropped.

Various awards will be published in the Barker that will be distributed on Friday, May 19, the senior edition.

Seniors will practice for the baccalaureate services on Friday, May 19, and the services will be Sunday evening, May 21.

Wayne Limbaugh Receives Numerous Athletic Honors

Senior Wayne Limbaugh has proved in his high school career to be one of the most active and outstanding athletes in school.

He participated in football, basketball, and baseball, winning recognition in each sport.

Wayne lettered three years in football. He was third-string quarterback during his sophomore year, second-string quarterback his junior year, and first - string quarterback his senior year.

During the past gridiron season Wayne scored more points than any other football player in both the Northern and Southern Divisions.

He was voted All-Conference first - string quarterback and awarded a trophy for scoring the most points in the Northern Division.

Wayne scored 14 touchdowns (new school record) and ended the season with a total of 84 points. He also set a school record by carrying the ball 78 times for a total of 813 yards.

Bulldogs ended the season with a 7-1-1 record, finishing second in the conference.

Wayne was starting guard for the Bulldogs during the basketball season, and he scored 205 points. He also won honorable mention All-Conference honors and lettered during his junior year.

Wayne lettered the past three years in baseball, and he played the shortstop position for the Bulldogs.

Wayne played with the baseballers last year during the sub-district, district, sectional and regional championships before they lost in the state competition.

He has hopes to attend Southeast Missouri State College or Murray State next year.

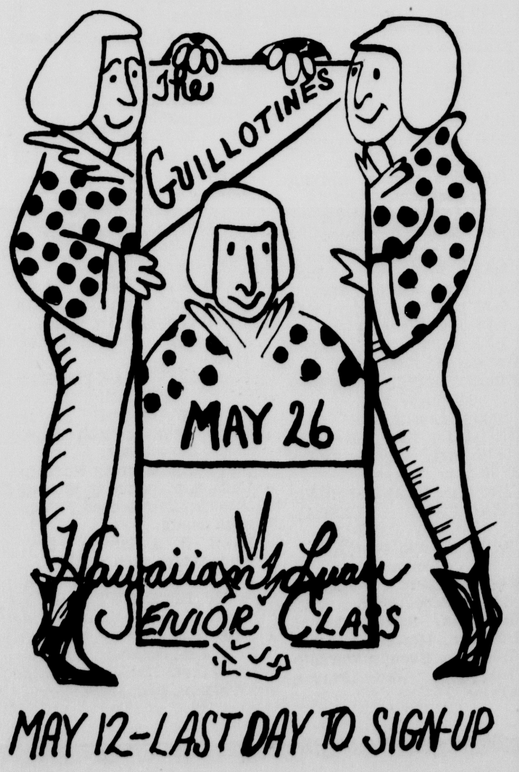
Senior Girls Receive Invite For Breakfast

Reception breakfast for senior girls is to be held next Tuesday morning.

All senior girls who are planning to attend college in the fall are cordially invited to attend this breakfast given by the American Association of University Women.

In previous years, the American Association of University Women have sponsored various different types of entertainment in honor of senior girls. They have given luncheons, teas and ordinary "jam sessions."

Mrs. Mildred Robinson is the president of this organization.



Eight Students Represent FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America are holding their state convention at Lindbergh high school in St. Louis today and tomorrow.

Competition among students will take place today and tomorrow.

Several students left for St. Louis yesterday with Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, sponsor of the local FBLA, to organize business displays and make accomodations in motels for students from all over the state.

Approximately 500 students are expected to participate in the convention.

Janet Butrum, Peggy Tanner and Mike Andrews have entered the Mr. and Miss FBLA contest.

Phonda Snow will take part in the spelling competition.

Eureda Powers, Betty Powers, Larry Proffer and Steve Jones, under the supervision of Jim Cornett, director of vocational education, will compete in parliamentary procedure.

Winners of the state contests will be sent to San Francisco in June for the national convention.

Students will return to Sikeston tomorrow afternoon.

Rumor has it Mr. Collins has decided to omit the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" on the eve of graduation. However, seniors refuse to believe this report knowing the late division band, composed mainly of seniors, helped win an excellent rating at the music contest in Cape.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L. L. D.

THE CASE OF THE SMILING BUTCHER

Dorothy went to Schultz' Butcher Shop and discovered that Schultz' son, who was waiting on her, was a gyp off the old block. While he smiled at her, like a ham actor, she detected him putting a metal disc on the scale to increase the weight of her purchase.

Returning the smile pleasantly, Dorothy said nothing about the skulduggery. Instead, she paid her bill and made a bee-line for the nearest police station where she filed charges against Schultz' son for obtaining money under false pretenses. In Court, Dorothy was vehement.

"I saw him put the extra weight on the scale," she told the judge. "But like any crook, I figured if I gave him enough rope he'd tie himself up."

"It's absurd," answered Schultz's son. "I didn't obtain any money under false pretenses. When Dorothy paid her bill, she knew the weight was wrong. The only one who may have been fooled was me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you tip the scale of justice against the scale tipping butcher by convicting him?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in order for money to be obtained under false pretenses, the person deceived must have relied upon a false representation believing it to be true. In this case, concluded the judge, Dorothy knew the weight was off before she paid her bill but paid it anyway.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you made the statement that interfaith marriage is risky at best and you are against it.

Now I would like to ask what you think about one party changing over and accepting the religious faith of the other. My husband is very devout and I am lukewarm about my religion. My parents would not like the idea of my changing over, but this would not bother me.

So far as I know you have never expressed an opinion on this. Will you please do so in print? --- DIFFERENT IDEAS

Dear Different: A mixed marriage stands a much better chance if the lukewarm party changes over and joins the devout one. Serious difficulties often develop when both parties are strong believers and each closes one eye and pretends there is no problem. The children of such marriages are the real victims. Often they are left to choose between the mother's religion and the father's religion. This can produce guilt, ambivalence and anxiety.

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend I took a girl skiing, out to dinner and to a dance. This set me back $14.00 which is not exactly a drop in the bucket for a 16-year-old boy who has to work for every cent.

I had a good time and so did the girl. But on the way home, after dropping her off, I came to a very startling realization. What was it all for, anyway? Here I spent $14.00 and had nothing to show for it. Is it too much to expect a token of gratitude instead of a mere: "Good night; I had a very nice time"?

I think I was taken for a sucker and I am pretty burned up about it. What's your opinion? ---JIM

Dear Jim: I don't know what you mean by "a token of gratitude" but it seems to me the girl expressed her gratitude adequately when she told you she had a very nice time. I gather you feel she should have smooched it up a little in exchange for the $14.00. If you would settle for a girl who hangs such a cheap price tag on herself you can't be worth much, Buddy.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from the grandmother who tried to protect her grandchild from an angry mother when the youngster picked a rose from the neighbor's garden.

I am not a mother, but I was a grade school teacher for 30 years and I have helped train hundreds of children.

When a child brought me flowers which I suspected had been snatched along the way we would have a class discussion about respect for the property of others and plain, everyday honesty.

If the mothers of these children had spent a little time explaining these important principles of behavior, the youngsters would not have helped themselves to someone else's property.

Unfortunately it's the children who suffer when parents fail to teach them the basic rules of society. And, today, we see an appalling amount of evidence that far too many parents have failed. --- RETIRED MARM

Dear Friend: Too bad you retired. From the sound of your letter your wisdom is badly needed.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen - Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Sikeston students attending the state music meet at Columbia last week made an excellent showing, getting second ratings in all events entered in competition with high school students from all over the state. Catherine Ann Cook entered in violin, Eddie Orear in trombone, and Bill Van Horne in voice and baritone horn.

On Friday of last week principal Wm. E. Mahew presented small and large Bulldogs to students in the high school winning the honor by achievements in scholastic, athletic and musical and dramatic sides of school life. The only large Bulldog awarded this year, and signifying the highest achievement in extracurricular and scholastic work, went to John Webb Bowman. Small Bulldogs were awarded to Peggy Donnell, Mack Roberts, Hazel Gray, Bill Van Horne, Mary Jane Sikes, and Mary Louise Montgomery. Moore Greer will be awarded a small Bulldog later.

More than 4,000 WPA and volunteer workers labored in mud and water Thursday to prevent a second inundation in four months of more than half of the Birds Point-New Madrid spillway. Flood conditions and local rains had so softened the ground around the 4,000-foot ring levee hastily thrown up around the 1,000 foot crevasse in the old front line levee just south of Ringo's Store that three large tractors were completely submerged in the soft mud and poles were set up to mark the spots where they had disappeared.

There Is One Who Knows

HOWEVER self-sufficient we may appear to be, most of us want to be understood. We want at least one person to know us as we think and hope we really are. Then we feel that perhaps we can more nearly become, in our daily living, what we wish to be.

"Know thyself" is an ancient adage generally attributed to Socrates. We try to apply it to ourselves, but too often we become lost in the maze of contradictions and confusions we discover. St. Paul must have known this, for he says, "I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want; but I do the very thing I hate" (Romans 7:15, Revised Standard Version).

Few take the time or the trouble or care enough to discover, behind the defensive facade often presented to the world, the real person within. Motives are misinterpreted, words and actions misconstrued. Deeds, too, often reveal facets of character which would repel and alienate rather than attract.

Nevertheless, there are those who see beyond the curtness, the shyness, the brashness or the withdrawnness, to the real person within. Often they make discoveries of rare and lovely treasure and are able to set free this hidden beuaty to make glad the lives of others and to enrich their own.

However, no matter how much we understand of ourselves, and how much we are understood, there remains, deep in the heart of man, that which perplexes and baffles. It is difficult perhaps to be completely honest with ourselves. Our friends, at least when they are with us, tend to gloss over our faults. Therefore, in our desire to understand ourselves and to be understood, there seems to be no fixed point of judgment.

But there is One "who knows my heart's most secret depths, yet loves me without end." For countless generations man has known this in his heart, and some of the most beautiful verses in the Bible speak of God's loving understanding of man. Here is what some of the writers have said:

"Thou, O Lord, knowest me . . .He knoweth our frame; He remembereth that we are dust. . .The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man. . .O God, Thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from Thee. . . He knoweth the secrets of the heart. . .Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, Thou understandest my thought afar off," or, to quote the Revised Standard Version, "Even before a word is on my tongue, lo, O Lord, Thou knowest it altogether."

With this knowledge that there is One who knows the "man within" as none other in all the world, comes the dawning of a new faith for ourselves, giving us a sense of assurance and confidence, so that when we hear His voice saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it," we are able to follow that inner voice, for we realize that there are strengths within, unknown to ourselves, and a core of goodness and of truth that we do not quite realize.

Although still seeing through a glass darkly, we are able to say with St. Paul, "Now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." Or, as it has been so beautifully translated, "Then shall I understand, as all along I have myself been understood."

Know thyself! Perhaps we never shall, but we can rest in His assurance that He knows so well our weakness, our power, the very essence of our being, and that as our day and our special needs are, so shall be our strength. Because He knows and loves and recognizes that which is good and lovely in our lives, we shall be more than conqueror through Him who loves us because we know that all along we are being understood.

-By Brigadier Christine E. McMillan

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. (Psalm 23:4)

PRAYER: Our gracious and loving Father, we express our heartfelt gratitude for Thy loving care, protection and guidance through times of danger, sorrow, and loneliness. We beseech Thee to help us to lead others to Christ by being Christians ourselves. We ask Thee in the name of Jesus, our Redeemer. Amen.

STABILITY

Each year I need spring's sure return
More than I did the year before;
Our way of life is changing fast,
We know not what may lie in store;
For UFOs are all about
And men will soon fly to the moon;
And jet around the earth in hours;
Our world sings to a changing tune.
These changes came so very fast
They've made me just a little dizzy
And future ones, I have no doubt,
Will leave me spinning in a tizzy.
I know that I shall learn to live
With these new ways, though they are strange;
I also know that spring will come,
For Nature, bless her! does not change.

Former Resident's Husband Killed

Ellis Strong, 36, route two, Celina, Tenn., a farmer, was fatally injured in an accident Saturday at 7:30 a.m. He was the husband of the former Thelma Mitchell, a former resident of Sikeston.

The state patrol reported that three men, all single, had passed a curve at a high rate of speed, lost control of their car on the highway two miles south of Moss, Tenn., and seven miles from Celina.

Strong was standing across the street and had delivered strawberry crates and was talking to a store neighbor, when the car left the road tore down a gas pump and came across the street and struck Strong and a friend. Strong died instantly. The friend is in serious condition.

The highway patrol and sheriff's office of Clay county investigated, and according to Mrs. Strong a charge of second degree murder, intoxication and several other charges have been filed.

The statement was signed by Matt Meyer, president of the newspaper.

The demise of the World Journal Tribune leaves the New York Post as the city's only Manhattan afternoon newspaper. The New York Times and the New York Daily News are morning newspapers.

For many of those affected by the closing, it was the second day of mourning in less than a year.

On August 15 last year the owners of the World Journal Tribune announced that the Herald Tribune, which was to have been the morning member of the merged company, had ceased publication.

The Herald Tribune at the time had not been published for 114 days because of labor difficulties.

The Herald Tribune, formed by a merger in 1924, actually dated back to the early 19th century. James Gordon Bennett established the Herald in 1835 and Horace Greeley's Tribune was born in 1841.

The merger of the morning Herald Tribune with the two afternoon dailies, the World Telegram and The Sun and the Journal - American, was announced after months of rumors.

John Hay Whitney, former ambassador to Britain and owner of the Herald Tribune; Jack Howard, president and general editorial manager of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, and William Randolph Hearst Jr., chairman of the Hearst Corp., joined in a partnership incorporated as the World Journal Tribune, Inc.

In addition to the morning Herald Tribune, it planned to publish the evening World Journal and a Sunday edition, the World Journal Tribune.

When the daily Herald Tribune folded, the new afternoon paper became the World Journal Tribune.

The federal government studied the proposed merger, looking for possible antitrust violations, then announced it would not stand in the way. Later the government was to order the World Journal Tribune to make some of its syndicated columns from the three merged papers available to the city's other afternoon daily, the New York Post.

In the discussion that followed Summers told the audience that the school boards should determine future trends of the county's educational needs and population. By studying these trends, piecemeal reorganization from time to time until the county has only one or two districts can be avoided.

The study would show whether the county would eventually need to have only one or two districts and could take this as the initial step in the reorganization plan.

If reorganization is planned for the county, some parts of county school districts might better serve the students if these districts became part of districts not in New Madrid county, Summers said.

For example, the northern part of the Matthews district might want to join the Sikeston district since Sikeston would be closer than a centrally located school in New Madrid county. A similar situation might exist with students in the Parma district who live close to Malden.

It is not always practical to follow county boundaries to make up one district, he said.

Lyle Bird, president of the county school board, said that the county board had no intention of calling for the reorganization of districts as a result of the group's survey. He pointed out that the study was made only for the information of the school boards and that the individual boards would have to be the ones to propose any reorganizations.

Students Demonstrate U.S. Policy Loyalty

ATCHISON, Kan. (AP) - A loyalty parade was staged Thursday by 250 St. Benedict's College students who marched around the campus and downtown, carrying signs reading "The U.S. For Us."

Leading the march was the Atchison High School band. The parade was organized by John Settich and John Bolderson, sophomores from St. Louis. They said final exams held down the number of marchers.

"This loyalty parade," Bolderson said in a brief speech at the end of the march, "witnesses our concurrence with the United States' commitment to preserve self - determination for people of Southeast Asia against communist aggression."

About 50 dissenters countered at the rally with pamphlets and signs such as this, "Opposition To Government Policy Does Not Equal Disloyalty."

The two groups dispersed quietly.

Truman Tribute Hits Snag

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Most Missouri legislators say they want to honor former President Harry S. Truman but they can't decide how to do it.

The original plan was to pass a bill designating Truman's birthday, May 8, as a legal holiday so Gov. Warren E. Hearnes could sign the bill at the Truman Library in Independence next Monday.

The Senate passed a revised version of the bill Thursday afternoon, making Truman Day a legal holiday but dropping Jefferson's birthday as a holiday. The idea was to keep state employes from getting an extra day off.

But by that time the House was embroiled in debate over another bill and didn't get around to the Truman bill before adjourning for the week.

For more than two hours the House debated a bill to license and regulate the automobile industry before advancing it to position for passage. Seventeen amendments were considered.

One scapped the entire penalty clause and another cut the power of the state revenue director to refuse a license to an automobile business.

The bill represents an effort by new car dealers to keep manufacturers from overloading them with cars.

Both houses were in recess today until Monday afternoon.

In other police activity, Samuel Berry, 240 Thrush, was charged with peace disturbance by loud and profane language at his residence.

Burleta DeRoush, 722 Delmar, was charged with peace disturbance by loud and profane language at 11 p.m. Thursday on East Malone, police said.

Three motorists were issued summons charging careless and imprudent driving by speeding Thursday: Ellis C. Atchison Jr., 920 Allen Blvd.; Bobby Porter, 313 Prosperity, and Donald R. Jones, 403 Prosperity.

Mattingly Defers to Age, Drops Oran Mayor Reins

BY LEO SCHADE

ORAN -- Dr. I. C. Mattingly, 74-year-old veterinarian, deciding to defer to age, has turned over the reigns of mayor of this 1,100-population Scott county city to a younger man.

"I got along well with the council," Dr. Mattingly commented on his decision to retire. His health is good.

At the April 4 election, Floyd McConnell, a member of the council and mayor protem, was chosen to fill his one-year unexpired term.

Dr. Mattingly had served as mayor 18 years since 1947 with the exception of one two-year term. Others who have been mayor of the city during the 20-year span, Dr. Mattingly recalled, were Leo Tenkhoff, Kennett Ransell and Abram Hirschowitz.

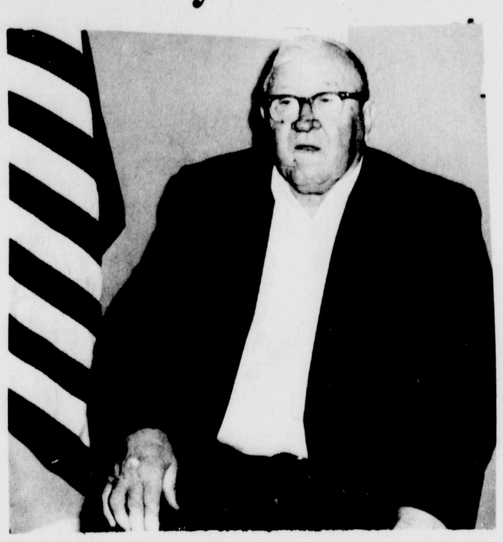
Time has placed additional burdens on guiding small cities.

"Even the running of a small city," Mattingly said, "is not an easy task any more, and takes a lot of your time, due to the many legal technicalities that you go through if you want to progress."

"Oran is a fine place to live, and we have fine people in it, who show progress and want to work together. Organizations also give it a boost."

Dr. Mattingly has spent a half century at his veterinary practice.

"I grew up on a farm," he recalled. "When I grew to manhood I decided I wasn't getting anywhere, so I decided to go to the veterinarian school in Kansas City, where I spent two years. When it closed, I had to go to St. Joseph to finish my other two years, and graduated in 1921. I spent 11 years in the western states with the cow tuberculosis eradication program.



NEVER DEFEATED in nine times as a candidate for Oran mayor, Dr. I. C. Mattingly, 74-year-old veterinarian, takes things easier in his office.

"During the depression it was hard to build up practice. I wanted to settle in Southeast Missouri. So I came back. I spent several years in St. Louis as a street car conductor."

Mattingly married the former Ethel Richardson of Anna, Ill., a nurse at a hospital there, who later became supervisor of nurses.

"I decided to move to Oran in 1931," he recalled. "The people here have been good to me and I decided to help the small city."

Oran two years ago attempted to get a medical doctor but the effort, led by Dr. Mattingly, did not succeed. Dr. Mattingly said that Dr. F. A. McCormack, a young osteopath, was doing a "fine job" taking care of the ill in the community.

The Mattinglys have two sons, Charles Mattingly, a premedical student who studied in New York but who now is enrolled at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau; Terry Mattingly, an army corporal stationed in Korea, and Eileen, Mrs. James O'Brien, who is a registered nurse in Houston.

Has Dr. Mattingly retired permanently?

"Not exactly," he said, "today I vaccinated three dogs and about 20 head of cattle. Of course, I have let up quite a lot and when a hard job comes along, I usually take a helper along."

N. Y. Newspaper Stops Operating

NEW YORK (AP) — The eight-month-old World Journal Tribune announced in a newsroom notice this morning that it was ceasing publication with today's editions.

The announcement, which throws 2,500 persons out of work, also took the Scripps-Howard and Hearst organizations out of New York City journalism.

The new paper had been formed from Scripps-Howard's World Telegram & The Sun, Hearst's Journal - American, and the independent Herald Tribune.

At one time, Hearst had three dailies in New York.

At the time of its death, the World Journal Tribune was in negotiations with 10 newspaper unions.

Lengthy negotiations had led to a settlement between the printers union and the New York Daily News, expected to set a pattern for the other papers and unions. The Daily News called the settlement the most expensive in its history.

Actually formed March 21, 1966, the World Journal Tribune had been through a previous long dispute with the same unions before it was able to actually begin publication on Sept. 12 last year.

The newspaper claimed a circulation of about 700,000 daily and more than 800,000 on Sunday.

The management of the newspaper met behind closed doors as the notice went up in the newsroom.

The World Journal Tribune statement to the staff said:

"It is with a real sense of personal regret that I must tell you that the World Journal Tribune is permanently ceasing publication with today's issue.

"Your employment must terminate at that time."

"We deeply appreciate the services that so many of you have rendered, and I will cherish the memory of our collective but unsuccessful effort to bring New York the kind of evening and Sunday newspaper we feel it deserved.

"It is our sincere hope that you will speedily obtain other employment. To facilitate this the company offers its full cooperation. We are setting up as quickly as possible at Barclay Street an employment service which will help you to find other employment.

"We plan to communicate with other employers and to make known the fact that many experienced and competent people are available. If you wish to avail yourself of this service, you may register your name at our employment office. This office will be maintained as long as we feel it can be helpful.

"Arrangements are also being made to pay you as soon as possible such sums as may be due you.

"Again let me express regret that our joint efforts to create a fine newspaper could not be successful."

Fellowships Set up In Astronauts' Memory

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Graduate fellowships honoring three U.S. astronauts killed while training for the Apollo manned mission will be established at Washington University in St. Louis.

The fellowships to be funded by the McDonnell Aerospace Foundation will be established in memory of astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee. The three died Jan. 27 when flames consumed their Apollo spacecraft during a training exercise at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Astronauts Grissom and White made their first flights in Gemini spacecraft built by the McDonnell Co. of St. Louis.

Winning Editor Calls ABA Threat to Free Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The American Bar Association poses a serious threat to a vital area of the people's right to know by championing greater secrecy in arrest and trial, an award - winning editor said Friday.

"There are many enemies of truth in the world," said Robert White II. "Some are cold, deliberate, dedicated like the Communists — like the far left and the far right, too. Some are even well-meaning, like the bar association in the area of secret arrest and secret trial."

White is editor and publisher of the Mexico, Mo., Evening Ledger and president of Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalism fraternity.

His remarks were prepared for the presentation of Missouri honor awards for distinguished service in journalism.

The awards, made annually by the University of Missouri, went this year to two newspaper publishers, an advertising executive, two newspapers and a television station.

Individual recipients of the bronze medals and citations were Paul Miller, Rochester, N. Y., president of the Associated Press and of the Gannett Co. Inc. newspaper chain; Marvin D. McQueen, vice president of D'Arcy Advertising Co., St. Louis; and White. White's father and grandfather got the award in previous years.

The other recipients are the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, with acceptance by Richard H. Amberg, publisher; Die Welt of Berlin, Germany, with acceptance by publisher Axel Springer, and WCKT-TV of Miami, Fla., with acceptance by Sidney D. Ansin.

The citations to the award winners were to be read at the ceremonies by Dean Earl F. English of the journalism school.

White said Communists are enemies of the truth, but they are not winning and are not a major danger to freedom of the press.

"They won't be until one of two things happens," White said.

"One would be for them to start winning limited wars against us and thus build up for a military takeover. I don't think that can happen."

"The other would be for them to start winning the political battles here at home and thus turn our legislative branch and our executive branch and even our judicial branch into a wonderland of those peaceniks, hippies, beatniks and other ilk who find more that they like in the Communist definition of freedom than in the American definition."

In the judicial branch, White said, "I do feel freedom of the press is losing a battle there now. It is with the Reardon Committee of the American Bar Association."

The committee issued a 265 page document last October recommending severe restrictions on news coverage of criminal cases.

"Their plan is not to seek laws passed by the representatives of the people. They know such laws would never be passed," White said.

"If the Reardon report is adopted by the American Bar Association this summer . . . it will take many years of difficult, expensive and often vicious local battles to win again for the people the information they need and desire about their police protection and about the conduct of their courts."

Cyclist Dies of Injuries

Michael H. McFarland, 17, Poplar Bluff, who was injured in a motorcycle accident Sunday on route NN in Butler County, died last night at 10:45 p.m. in Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

The state patrol said that McFarland was drag racing with another motorcyclist, pulled out to pass it and struck an approaching car, driven by Francis R. Miller of Poplar Bluff.

McFarland's skull was fractured by contact with the car's windshield. He suffered brain damage and two broken legs.

Two passengers in the car, Sally Miller, 10, and Norma Davidson, 11, were injured and taken to the Poplar Bluff hospital.

Last night at 9:30 p.m. at the intersection of Interstate 55 and highway 61, three miles south of New Madrid, a 1963 Mack tractor-trailer driven by Leroy W. Stiles, 33, Memphis, pulled up to a stop sign, when his brakes failed. The vehicle rolled backward, ran off the road and overturned on its side. The truck was loaded with meat owned by the Central and Southern Company, Memphis.

The driver was arrested on a charge of having defective brakes.

A two-truck collision Thursday at 3:45 p.m. on highway 80, two miles east of East Prairie resulted in no injuries to the drivers.

A 1962 Ford Dump truck, driven by Owen Witty, 46, East Prairie, was going slowly while he watched state mowers along the highway.

H. L. Arington, 81, East Prairie, driving a 1962 Dodge pickup truck, was blinded by the sun and struck the Arington truck in the rear.

In a one -car accident in East Prairie last night at 10:50 p.m. a 1958 Chevrolet, driven by Ronald Ray, 23, East Prairie, failed to speed around a corner and struck a utility pole.

Ray received a cut on his lip and was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

He was arrested on charge of careless and imprudent driving.

The chance for showers will continue with thunderstorms a possibility through Saturday night over most of the state.

Highs Saturday are expected to be in the upper 50s to low 60s. Lows tonight will range from 45 to the mid 50s.

High temperatures Thursday ranged from 57 at Kirksville to 75 at West Plains and Cape Girardeau. Lows were from 44 at Kirksville and West Plains to 54 at Sikeston.

Population Loss Blamed For Schools? Problems

BY WARREN SOKOLIS

NEW MADRID - The declining population in the county has greatly hindered the county schools in providing pupils with an adequate education, four members of the state department of education reported last night.

The report was made following a two-day feasibility study of reorganization of county schools by the state department of education. The study had been requested by the county board of education.

State department officials speaking at the court house last night were Arthur L. Summers, Dr. George D. Englehart, Homer E. Bolen and Randall W. Tedlock, all from Jefferson City. About 75 persons, including school superintendents and school board members from county districts attended.

Summers, director of district reorganization and pupil transportation, division of administration, pointed out that the population in the county had declined 20 per cent in 10 years.

The 1959-60 school year was the peak year for total pupil enrollment in the county during the last 11 years, he continued. A total of 9,316 pupils were enrolled in county schools. The 1966-67 enrollment totaled 7,488, a decline of 1,828 pupils since 1959-60.

This is a decrease of 19.6 per cent, Summers noted, or an average decrease of 200 pupils a year.

The decline in pupil enrollment in county school districts from their peak years to the present shows:

Portageville R-1 - 1,542 pupils enrolled in peak year of 1957-58; 1,382 enrolled in 1966-67 a decline of 160 pupils or 10 per cent of the school enrollment.

Risco R-2 - 1,055 in peak year of 1959-60; 616 in 1966-67, a decline of 439 pupils or 41.6 per cent.

Parma R-3 - 817 in peak year of 1959-60; 667 in 1966-67, a decline of 150 or 18 per cent.

Lilbourn R-4 - 1,726 enrolled in 1959-60 and 1960-61; 1,427 in 1966-67, a decline of 299 or 17 per cent.

Matthews R5 - 1,183 in 1959-60; 816 in 1966-67, a decline of 367 or 31 per cent.

New Madrid R-6 - 1,499 in peak year of 1958-59; 1,207 in 1966-67, a decrease of 292 or 19.5 per cent.

Gideon 37 - 1,239 in 1956-57; 888 in 1966-67, a decrease of 351 or 28.3 per cent.

Morehouse C-12 - 501 in 1957-58; 467 in 1966-67, a decrease of 34 or 7 per cent.

Higgerson 24 - figures not available for all years, but enrollment in 1960-61 was 34; in 1966-67 enrollment was 17, a decrease of 17 or 50 per cent.

Bolen, director of general supervision, division of instruction, said that the trend in Missouri schools is toward larger districts with larger enrollments because the smaller schools are not meeting the educational demands of modern society.

"What do you want of your children? What is important for their generation?" Bolen asked.

Because of the influx in knowledge since the turn of the century, no one is able to comprehend all modern knowledge.

Each person must select some area of knowledge and specialize in it. Specialization is vital if the individual is to earn an effective and a comfortable wage, Bolen explained.

How is New Madrid county meeting the educational needs of its pupils? he asked. "It is obvious that the number of pupils enrolled and the assessed valuation of a district affect the number of credits offered."

A small enrollment does not mean that the quality of a particular course is poor, he said. The quality of the course depends on the ability of the teacher.

Total units of credit offered by area high schools are:

Portageville, 42; Risco, 29 1/2: Parma, 32 1/2; Lilbourn, 32 3/4; Matthews, 41; New Madrid, 38; Gideon, 31 1/4, and Morehouse, 28 3/4.

Not all schools in the county offer the same courses. For examole, Portageville and Parma are the only county schools offering a course in journalism. If a student wanted to study journalism, he would have to live in the Portageville or Parma district.

Often the district will offer courses which are in the greatest demand by the students. However, it is more than likely that the curriculum is determined by what courses the faculty is qualified to teach, Bolen explained.

Many classes with small enrollments also add to the cost of education, he continued. For example, some classes have three or four pupils enrolled. Thus the district must pay for a teacher, who has only a small number of pupils enrolled in his classes. Consolidation of districts would be more economical since more pupils would be enrolled in that particular class, Bolen said.

Reorganization does not reduce the cost of education because the curriculum is usually expanded as the school district is enlarged, he noted. Once a district begins to offer quality education, curriculum is usually expanded to offer even more courses, which will boost the cost of education.

"The program must meet the individual needs of every pupil or his potential will never be known," Bolen said.

He pointed out some of the advantages of having a vocational education program in the home school district. County students in this program are now bused to the vocational schools at Malden and Sikeston.

"The high school vocational program must give the student the background to develop quickly into a quality artisan so he can make a good living," Bolen said.

Not only should training be provided for those interested in vocational occupations, but education must also be provided for the gifted child and the retarded child, he noted.

Tedlock, director of school finance and statistics, division of administration, said that that the combined assessed valuation of county school districts exceeds $57 million. Only two districts - Portageville and Gideon - have a higher current cost per pupil than the state average of $470.23.

The county also is below the state average in local receipts, non-revenue receipts (which includes sale of bonds), expenditure for plant maintenance, fixed charges and capital outlay.

Dr. Englehart, director of school building services, division of administration, reported on the group's study of school buildings and facilities in the county.

He pointed out that the two days which the group spent surveying the schools was not enough time to make a total evaluation of each school plant.

"Each school district has high school facilities that are reasonably good," he said. Most of the high schools in the county have been built in recent years.

"However, the elementary school plants run the gauntlet from excellent to poor. Some elementary schools have poor facilities," Dr. Englehart said.

Changes in the current school districts would provide better programs, he noted. The districts do a good job on the high school level, but some are limited in the number of courses offered to meet the needs of the students, he added.

"About one-third of the pupils in the county entered college after graduation last year. Thus, 70 out of every 100 graduates terminated their formal education after graduation," he pointed out.

It is the 70 per cent who do not go on to college who are not equipped with the necessary training and salable skills to make a good wage; he said. The county schools are failing to provide a good training program for those students not going to college, and the districts should "take a careful look at what they can do that they are not doing now for those 70 per cent," Dr. Englehart said.

Trade schools at Malden and Sikeston are available for use by students from New Madrid county, he noted, but these schools are limited in the number of students they can accept for enrollment.

Another limitation in the county's districts is the number of classes with exceedingly small enrollment. A class with only three or four pupils enrolled limits the use of that teacher. It would be more economical if more pupils were enrolled in that class, which would result from enlarged school districts, he explained. If the county were consolidated into one district about 2,000 students would be enrolled in the high school.

There are advantages in the small school, but larger schools do a better job of educating students, he said. Critics of the large district point out that the smaller school offers a personal relationship between the student and the teacher, but large schools can also have this direct relationship because they can employ guidance counseling teams, Dr. Englehart observed.

If the local school boards decided to reorganize their districts, none of the good school buildings in the county would have to be discarded, he pointed out. The present high schools could be converted to junior high schools.

Even though a present high school building has had facilities for science or home economics laboratories installed, these facilities would not be wasted. The trend in junior high education is toward teaching more sophisticated courses in such subjects as science and home economics, so the facilities at the high school could be used to improve the quality of education on the junior high level, he explained.

World War II Vet First To Shoot Down 2 MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — Col. Robin Olds is 44 in a young man's Air Force but he's still one of the hottest pilots of the Vietnam war.

A World War II ace with 24½ enemy planes to his credit then, he shot down his second Communist MIG21 Thursday to become the first double MIG killer of the Vietnam conflict.

"It was a great experience," he said when he returned to his base, Ubon airfield in Thailand.

"It was a mission to keep the MIGs off the 105s (F105 Thunderchiefs) and we did just that. We spotted four MIG17s later, but they didn't want to mix it up."

Olds' flight of F4C Phantoms was escorting the F105 Thunderchiefs whose mission was to bomb the Hanoi transformer site seven miles north of the center of the Communist capital.

Olds said that as his flight got near the Phuc Yen airfield "two MIG21s were spotted at 10 o'clock high heading for the last formation of 105s."

"We broke into them," Olds related, "and when they saw us they quickly forgot what they were there for. One disappeared and the other got nailed. He was burning when I left him. An F105 pilot saw him go into the ground and I didn't see him bail out."

Olds, graduated in 1943 from West Point where he was an outstanding tackle on the football team, comes from a long line of military men. One member of his family was a colonel on Gen. George Washington's staff. His father, Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, was commander of the 2nd Air Force during World War II.

Olds, of Washington, D.C., is married to former movie actress Ella Raines. They have two daughters, Chris, 15, and Susan, 13.

He came to Southeast Asia from Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and took command of the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing at Ubon, which calls itself the "Wolfpack Gang" because it has downed more than half of the 37 MIGs claimed by the Air Force in aerial duels. Navy pilots have downed the other 12 MIGs claimed by U.S. pilots.

Olds shot down his first MIG over the Red River Valley last Jan. 2, the day Air Force pilots downed seven Communist interceptors for the highest single-day kill of the war in aerial duels.

Both of Olds' MIG kills have been made with air-to-air missiles. The Russian-designed MIG21 is a bigger prize than the earlier MIG17, since it is faster and more maneuverable.

Only one other U.S. pilot, Lt. Hugh Wisely, a Navy flyer from Wayne, N.J., is credited with two enemy planes shot down, one a propellor-driven plane early this year and the other a MIG17 on April 24.

Olds flew 107 missions with the 8th Air Force in World War II and won two Distinguished Flying Crosses, two Silver Stars, the Air Medal with 27 oak leaf clusters, the British Distinguished Flying Cross and the French Croix de Guerre.

During the Korean War, he was in the Air Defense Command and, as he says, "missed the fighting."

Truckers Settle Dispute

CHICAGO (AP) — A renegotiated contract for 500,000 truck drivers across the nation was approved Thursday night. The pact could end the 11-day strike-lockout of more than 45,000 drivers which has crippled freight transportation in the Chicago area.

Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the Teamsters Union, said he was confident that Chicago truck drivers would be back to work by Monday.

Announcement of the reworked contract came amid published reports that control of the Teamsters has been shifted from the national headquarters back to local leaders, ending one-man rule of the powerful labor organization.

The revolt against the system established by James R. Hoffa, now serving an eight-year term in federal prison, was reported by the Los Angeles Times in a story from its Chicago bureau. It means the 1.8-million member union is returning to its historic fragmented power structure.

The decision reportedly was voted by the union's general executive board during a secret session Thursday in Chicago.

Fitzsimmons, emerging from a bargaining session with negotiators for the trucking industry, said the new contract will be submitted to union members across the country for a mailed vote.

The renegotiated agreement supersedes a national pact agreed on April 12.

Ratification of the April 12 agreement was stalled by the walkout of Chicago Teamsters Local 705 and the independent Chicago Truck Drivers Union. The national pact called for a 70-cent hourly package over a three-year span and Chicago drivers were demanding a 90-cent package.

Fitzsimmons said the new agreement could give long-haul drivers as much as 78 cents an hour over the next three years.

He said the contract includes 55 cents in "hard money," an improved cost of living plan and other benefits including vacations and a two-day funeral leave.

"This is the largest money package ever negotiated by the Teamsters Union," Fitzsimmons said.

Edward Fenner, president of the 11,000 member independent Chicago union, left the session after a "no comment" reply to questions about whether his group is in accord with Fitzsimmons' views.

Fitzsimmons said a decision at Chicago on the contract is a local matter, "I cannot say how they (Local 705) will vote," he said.

Louis Peick, head of Local 705 and chief negotiator for Chicago-area drivers, said the new contract was "the best deal we ever had."

Spokesmen for management were quoted as saying they will continue their lockout of Chicago truck drivers at least until midnight Friday so they will not have to pay the drivers for a 40-hour week.

No meetings were scheduled between the Chicago local and management before a vote is taken, Teamster officials said.

The Chicago Association of Commerce estimated earlier that the trucking stoppage put nearly 200,000 employes out of work in factories and construction work because of a shortage of supplies.

Cape Bank Charged With Discrimination

CAPE GIRARDEAU-The First National Bank of Cape Girardeau was accused of "discriminating between employes on the basis of sex," in violation of the fair labor standards act, in a civil injunction suit on file today in U.S. district court.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz charged that the bank pays some of its tellers less than it pays others of the opposite sex for equal work on jobs requiring equal skill, effort, and responsibilities.

In addition to requiring compliance with the statute, the injunction sought would order the payment of back wages withheld in violation of the statute. It also would require the maintenance of adequate time and pay records by the bank.

The suit followed an investigation carried out under the supervision of Jack R. Younce, head of the labor department's wage - hour office in St. Louis.

Truman Tribute Hits Snag

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Most Missouri legislators say they want to honor former President Harry S. Truman but they can't decide how to do it.

The original plan was to pass a bill designating Truman's birthday, May 8, as a legal holiday so Gov. Warren E. Hearnes could sign the bill at the Truman Library in Independence next Monday.

The Senate passed a revised version of the bill Thursday afternoon, making Truman Day a legal holiday but dropping Jefferson's birthday as a holiday. The idea was to keep state employes from getting an extra day off.

But by that time the House was embroiled in debate over another bill and didn't get around to the Truman bill before adjourning for the week.

For more than two hours the House debated a bill to license and regulate the automobile industry before advancing it to position for passage. Seventeen amendments were considered.

One scapped the entire penalty clause and another cut the power of the state revenue director to refuse a license to an automobile business.

The bill represents an effort by new car dealers to keep manufacturers from overloading them with cars.

Both houses were in recess today until Monday afternoon.

Motorcyclist Suffers Injury In Accident

Danny Cannon, 17, 723 East Gladys, was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital Thursday evening for bruises suffered when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile driven by Rosie Lee Todd, 21, 946 Lake.

The accident occurred at 5:28 p.m. when Mrs. Todd apparently drove from Pine street onto East Malone into Cannon's eastbound path, police reported.

In other police activity, Samuel Berry, 240 Thrush, was charged with peace disturbance by loud and profane language at his residence.

Burleta DeRoush, 722 Delmar, was charged with peace disturbance by loud and profane language at 11 p.m. Thursday on East Malone, police said.

Three motorists were issued summons charging careless and imprudent driving by speeding Thursday: Ellis C. Atchison Jr., 920 Allen Blvd.; Bobby Porter, 313 Prosperity, and Donald R. Jones, 403 Prosperity.

Fire Damages Mattress, Bed

A mattress and box springs were damaged by fire at the Sam Berry residence, 240 Thrush, Thursday firemen said.

Firemen were called to extinguish the fire at 1:50 p.m. Smoking in bed was believed to be the cause. Only the bed and bed clothing were damaged. Firemen returned to the station at 2:05 p.m.

Five Treated

Five persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Thursday:

Sandra Kay Underhill, ball hit hand, injuring middle finger in physical education class; Allan Gunter of Florissant, fell while running in yard; Charles W. Hampton, steel shelf fell on foot while working; L. E. King, tractor tongue fell on foot and George Washington Bass of New Madrid, cut finger on can opener.

Mattingly Defers to Age, Drops Oran Mayor Reins

BY LEO SCHADE

ORAN -- Dr. I. C. Mattingly, 74-year-old veterinarian, deciding to defer to age, has turned over the reigns of mayor of this 1,100-population Scott county city to a younger man.

"I got along well with the council," Dr. Mattingly commented on his decision to retire. His health is good.

At the April 4 election, Floyd McConnell, a member of the council and mayor pro-tem, was chosen to fill his one-year unexpired term.

Dr. Mattingly had served as mayor 18 years since 1947 with the exception of one two-year term. Others who have been mayor of the city during the 20-year span, Dr. Mattingly recalled, were Leo Tenkhoff, Kennett Ransell and Abram Hirschowitz.

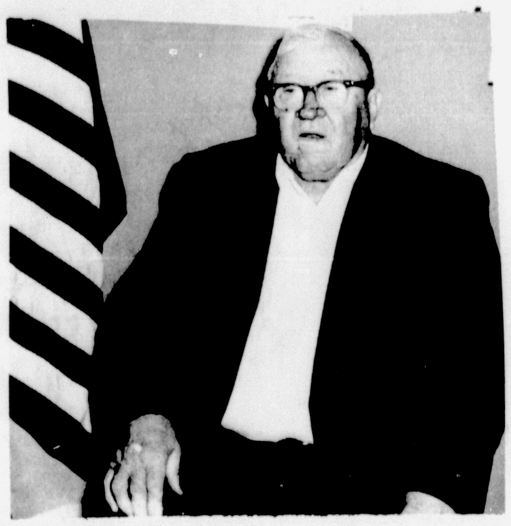
Time has placed additional burdens on guiding small cities.

"Even the running of a small city," Mattingly said, "is not an easy task any more, and takes a lot of your time, due to the many legal technicalities that you go through if you want to progress."

"Oran is a fine place to live, and we have fine people in it, who show progress and want to work together. Organizations also give it a boost."

Dr. Mattingly has spent a half century at his veterinary practice.

"I grew up on a farm," he recalled. "When I grew to manhood I decided I wasn't getting anywhere, so I decided to go to the veterinarian school in Kansas City, where I spent two years. When it closed, I had to go to St. Joseph to finish my other two years, and graduated in 1921. I spent 11 years in the western states with the cow tuberculosis eradication program.



NEVER DEFEATED in nine times as a candidate for Oran mayor, Dr. I. C. Mattingly, 74-year-old veterinarian, takes things easier in his office.

"During the depression it was hard to build up practice. I wanted to settle in Southeast Missouri. So I came back. I spent several years in St. Louis as a street car conductor."

Mattingly married the former Ethel Richardson of Anna, Ill., a nurse at a hospital there, who later became supervisor of nurses.

"I decided to move to Oran in 1931," he recalled. "The people here have been good to me and I decided to help the small city."

Oran two years ago attempted to get a medical doctor but the effort, led by Dr. Mattingly, did not succeed. Dr. Mattingly said that Dr. F. A. McCormack, a young osteopath, was doing a "fine job" taking care of the ill in the community.

The Mattinglys have two sons, Charles Mattingly, a pre-medical student who studied in New York but who now is enrolled at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau; Terry Mattingly, an army corporal stationed in Korea, and Eileen, Mrs. James O'Brien, who is a registered nurse in Houston.

Has Dr. Mattingly retired permanently?

"Not exactly," he said, "today I vaccinated three dogs and about 20 head of cattle. Of course, I have let up quite a lot and when a hard job comes along, I usually take a helper along."

N. Y. Newspaper Stops Operating

NEW YORK (AP) — The eight-month-old World Journal Tribune announced in a newsroom notice this morning that it was ceasing publication with today's editions.

The announcement, which throws 2,500 persons out of work, also took the Scripps-Howard and Hearst organizations out of New York City journalism.

The new paper had been formed from Scripps-Howard's World Telegram & The Sun, Hearst's Journal - American, and the independent Herald Tribune.

At one time, Hearst had three dailies in New York.

At the time of its death, the World Journal Tribune was in negotiations with 10 newspaper unions.

Lengthy negotiations had led to a settlement between the printers union and the New York Daily News, expected to set a pattern for the other papers and unions. The Daily News called the settlement the most expensive in its history.

Actually formed March 21, 1966, the World Journal Tribune had been through a previous long dispute with the same unions before it was able to actually begin publication on Sept. 12 last year.

The newspaper claimed a circulation of about 700,000 daily and more than 800,000 on Sunday.

The management of the newspaper met behind closed doors as the notice went up in the newsroom.

The World Journal Tribune statement to the staff said:

"It is with a real sense of personal regret that I must tell you that the World Journal Tribune is permanently ceasing publication with today's issue.

"Your employment must terminate at that time."

"We deeply appreciate the services that so many of you have rendered, and I will cherish the memory of our collective but unsuccessful effort to bring New York the kind of evening and Sunday newspaper we feel it deserved.

"It is our sincere hope that you will speedily obtain other employment. To facilitate this the company offers its full cooperation. We are setting up as quickly as possible at Barclay Street an employment service which will help you to find other employment.

"We plan to communicate with other employers and to make known the fact that many experienced and competent people are available. If you wish to avail yourself of this service, you may register your name at our employment office. This office will be maintained as long as we feel it can be helpful.

"Arrangements are also being made to pay you as soon as possible such sums as may be due you.

"Again let me express regret that our joint efforts to create a fine newspaper could not be successful."

Fellowships Set up In Astronauts' Memory

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Graduate fellowships honoring three U.S. astronauts killed while training for the Apollo manned mission will be established at Washington University in St. Louis.

The fellowships to be funded by the McDonnell Aerospace Foundation will be established in memory of astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee. The three died Jan. 27 when flames consumed their Apollo spacecraft during a training exercise at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Astronauts Grissom and White made their first flights in Gemini spacecraft built by the McDonnell Co. of St. Louis.

Winning Editor Calls ABA Threat to Free Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The American Bar Association poses a serious threat to a vital area of the people's right to know by championing greater secrecy in arrest and trial, an award - winning editor said Friday.

"There are many enemies of truth in the world," said Robert White II. "Some are cold, deliberate, dedicated like the Communists — like the far left and the far right, too. Some are even well-meaning, like the bar association in the area of secret arrest and secret trial."

White is editor and publisher of the Mexico, Mo., Evening Ledger and president of Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalism fraternity.

His remarks were prepared for the presentation of Missouri honor awards for distinguished service in journalism.

The awards, made annually by the University of Missouri, went this year to two newspaper publishers, an advertising executive, two newspapers and a television station.

Individual recipients of the bronze medals and citations were Paul Miller, Rochester, N. Y., president of the Associated Press and of the Gannett Co. Inc. newspaper chain; Marvin D. McQueen, vice president of D'Arcy Advertising Co., St. Louis; and White. White's father and grandfather got the award in previous years.

The other recipients are the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, with acceptance by Richard H. Amberg, publisher; Die Welt of Berlin, Germany, with acceptance by publisher Axel Springer, and WCKT-TV of Miami, Fla., with acceptance by Sidney D. Ansin.

The citations to the award winners were to be read at the ceremonies by Dean Earl F. English of the journalism school.

White said Communists are enemies of the truth, but they are not winning and are not a major danger to freedom of the press.

"They won't be until one of two things happens," White said.

"One would be for them to start winning limited wars against us and thus build up for a military takeover. I don't think that can happen."

"The other would be for them to start winning the political battles here at home and thus turn our legislative branch and our executive branch and even our judicial branch into a wonderland of those peaceniks, hippies, beatniks and other ilk who find more that they like in the Communist definition of freedom than in the American definition."

In the judicial branch, White said, "I do feel freedom of the press is losing a battle there now. It is with the Reardon Committee of the American Bar Association."

The committee issued a 265 page document last October recommending severe restrictions on news coverage of criminal cases.

"Their plan is not to seek laws passed by the representatives of the people. They know such laws would never be passed," White said.

"If the Reardon report is adopted by the American Bar Association this summer . . . it will take many years of difficult, expensive and often vicious local battles to win again for the people the information they need and desire about their police protection and about the conduct of their courts."

Cyclist Dies of Injuries

Michael H. McFarland, 17, Poplar Bluff, who was injured in a motorcycle accident Sunday on route NN in Butler County, died last night at 10:45 p.m. in Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

The state patrol said that McFarland was drag racing with another motorcyclist, pulled out to pass it and struck an approaching car, driven by Francis R. Miller of Poplar Bluff.

McFarland's skull was fractured by contact with the car's windshield. He suffered brain damage and two broken legs.

Two passengers in the car, Sally Miller, 10, and Norma Davidson, 11, were injured and taken to the Poplar Bluff hospital.

Last night at 9:30 p.m. at the intersection of Interstate 55 and highway 61, three miles south of New Madrid, a 1963 Mack tractor-trailer driven by Leroy W. Stiles, 33, Memphis, pulled up to a stop sign, when his brakes failed. The vehicle rolled backward, ran off the road and overturned on its side. The truck was loaded with meat owned by the Central and Southern Company, Memphis.

The driver was arrested on a charge of having defective brakes.

A two-truck collision Thursday at 3:45 p.m. on highway 80, two miles east of East Prairie resulted in no injuries to the drivers.

A 1962 Ford Dump truck, driven by Owen Witty, 46, East Prairie, was going slowly while he watched state mowers along the highway.

H. L. Arington, 81, East Prairie, driving a 1962 Dodge pickup truck, was blinded by the sun and struck the Arington truck in the rear.

In a one -car accident in East Prairie last night at 10:50 p.m. a 1958 Chevrolet, driven by Ronald Ray, 23, East Prairie, failed to speed around a corner and struck a utility pole.

Ray received a cut on his lip and was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

He was arrested on charge of careless and imprudent driving.

The chance for showers will continue with thunderstorms a possibility through Saturday night over most of the state.

Highs Saturday are expected to be in the upper 50s to low 60s. Lows tonight will range from 45 to the mid 50s.

High temperatures Thursday ranged from 57 at Kirksville to 75 at West Plains and Cape Girardeau. Lows were from 44 at Kirksville and West Plains to 54 at Sikeston.

Population Loss Blamed For Schools? Problems

BY WARREN SOKOLIS

NEW MADRID - The declining population in the county has greatly hindered the county schools in providing pupils with an adequate education, four members of the state department of education reported last night.

The report was made following a two-day feasibility study of reorganization of county schools by the state department of education. The study had been requested by the county board of education.

State department officials speaking at the court house last night were Arthur L. Summers, Dr. George D. Englehart, Homer E. Bolen and Randall W. Tedlock, all from Jefferson City. About 75 persons, including school superintendents and school board members from county districts attended.

Summers, director of district reorganization and pupil transportation, division of administration, pointed out that the population in the county had declined 20 per cent in 10 years.

The 1959-60 school year was the peak year for total pupil enrollment in the county during the last 11 years, he continued. A total of 9,316 pupils were enrolled in county schools. The 1966-67 enrollment totaled 7,488, a decline of 1,828 pupils since 1959-60.

This is a decrease of 19.6 per cent, Summers noted, or an average decrease of 200 pupils a year.

The decline in pupil enrollment in county school districts from their peak years to the present shows:

Portageville R-1 - 1,542 pupils enrolled in peak year of 1957-58; 1,382 enrolled in 1966-67 a decline of 160 pupils or 10 per cent of the school enrollment.

Risco R-2 - 1,055 in peak year of 1959-60; 616 in 1966-67, a decline of 439 pupils or 41.6 per cent.

Parma R-3 - 817 in peak year of 1959-60; 667 in 1966-67, a decline of 150 or 18 per cent.

Lilbourn R-4 - 1,726 enrolled in 1959-60 and 1960-61; 1,427 in 1966-67, a decline of 299 or 17 per cent.

Matthews R 5 - 1,183 in 1959-60; 816 in 1966-67, a decline of 367 or 31 per cent.

New Madrid R-6 - 1,499 in peak year of 1958-59; 1,207 in 1966-67, a decrease of 292 or 19.5 per cent.

Gideon 37 - 1,239 in 1956-57; 888 in 1966-67, a decrease of 351 or 28.3 per cent.

Morehouse C-12 - 501 in 1957-58; 467 in 1966-67, a decrease of 34 or 7 per cent.

Higgerson 24 - figures not available for all years, but enrollment in 1960-61 was 34; in 1966-67 enrollment was 17, a decrease of 17 or 50 per cent.

Bolen, director of general supervision, division of instruction, said that the trend in Missouri schools is toward larger districts with larger enrollments because the smaller schools are not meeting the educational demands of modern society.

"What do you want of your children? What is important for their generation?" Bolen asked.

Because of the influx in knowledge since the turn of the century, no one is able to comprehend all modern knowledge.

Each person must select some area of knowledge and specialize in it. Specialization is vital if the individual is to earn an effective and a comfortable wage, Bolen explained.

How is New Madrid county meeting the educational needs of its pupils? he asked. "It is obvious that the number of pupils enrolled and the assessed valuation of a district affect the number of credits offered."

A small enrollment does not mean that the quality of a particular course is poor, he said. The quality of the course depends on the ability of the teacher.

Total units of credit offered by area high schools are:

Portageville, 42; Risco, 29 1/2: Parma, 32 1/2; Lilbourn, 32 3/4; Matthews, 41; New Madrid, 38; Gideon, 31 1/4, and Morehouse, 28 3/4.

Not all schools in the county offer the same courses. For example, Portageville and Parma are the only county schools offering a course in journalism. If a student wanted to study journalism, he would have to live in the Portageville or Parma district.

Often the district will offer courses which are in the greatest demand by the students. However, it is more than likely that the curriculum is determined by what courses the faculty is qualified to teach, Bolen explained.

Many classes with small enrollments also add to the cost of education, he continued. For example, some classes have three or four pupils enrolled. Thus the district must pay for a teacher, who has only a small number of pupils enrolled in his classes. Consolidation of districts would be more economical since more pupils would be enrolled in that particular class, Bolen said.

Reorganization does not reduce the cost of education because the curriculum is usually expanded as the school district is enlarged, he noted. Once a district begins to offer quality education, curriculum is usually expanded to offer even more courses, which will boost the cost of education.

"The program must meet the individual needs of every pupil or his potential will never be known," Bolen said.

He pointed out some of the advantages of having a vocational education program in the home school district. County students in this program are now bused to the vocational schools at Malden and Sikeston.

"The high school vocational program must give the student the background to develop quickly into a quality artisan so he can make a good living," Bolen said.

Not only should training be provided for those interested in vocational occupations, but education must also be provided for the gifted child and the retarded child, he noted.

Tedlock, director of school finance and statistics, division of administration, said that that the combined assessed valuation of county school districts exceeds $57 million. Only two districts - Portageville and Gideon - have a higher current cost per pupil than the state average of $470.23.

The county also is below the state average in local receipts, non-revenue receipts (which includes sale of bonds), expenditure for plant maintenance, fixed charges and capital outlay.

Dr. Englehart, director of school building services, division of administration, reported on the group's study of school buildings and facilities in the county.

He pointed out that the two days which the group spent surveying the schools was not enough time to make a total evaluation of each school plant.

"Each school district has high school facilities that are reasonably good," he said. Most of the high schools in the county have been built in recent years.

"However, the elementary school plants run the gauntlet from excellent to poor. Some elementary schools have poor facilities," Dr. Englehart said.

Changes in the current school districts would provide better programs, he noted. The districts do a good job on the high school level, but some are limited in the number of courses offered to meet the needs of the students, he added.

"About one-third of the pupils in the county entered college after graduation last year. Thus, 70 out of every 100 graduates terminated their formal education after graduation," he pointed out.

It is the 70 per cent who do not go on to college who are not equipped with the necessary training and salable skills to make a good wage; he said. The county schools are failing to provide a good training program for those students not going to college, and the districts should "take a careful look at what they can do that they are not doing now for those 70 per cent," Dr. Englehart said.

Trade schools at Malden and Sikeston are available for use by students from New Madrid county, he noted, but these schools are limited in the number of students they can accept for enrollment.

Another limitation in the county's districts is the number of classes with exceedingly small enrollment. A class with only three or four pupils enrolled limits the use of that teacher. It would be more economical if more pupils were enrolled in that class, which would result from enlarged school districts, he explained. If the county were consolidated into one district about 2,000 students would be enrolled in the high school.

There are advantages in the small school, but larger schools do a better job of educating students, he said. Critics of the large district point out that the smaller school offers a personal relationship between the student and the teacher, but large schools can also have this direct relationship because they can employ guidance counseling teams, Dr. Englehart observed.

If the local school boards decided to reorganize their districts, none of the good school buildings in the county would have to be discarded, he pointed out. The present high schools could be converted to junior high schools.

Even though a present high school building has had facilities for science or home economics laboratories installed, these facilities would not be wasted. The trend in junior high education is toward teaching more sophisticated courses in such subjects as science and home economics, so the facilities at the high school could be used to improve the quality of education on the junior high level, he explained.

World War II Vet First To Shoot Down 2 MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — Col. Robin Olds is 44 in a young man's Air Force but he's still one of the hottest pilots of the Vietnam war.

A World War II ace with 24½ enemy planes to his credit then, he shot down his second Communist MIG21 Thursday to become the first double MIG killer of the Vietnam conflict.

"It was a great experience," he said when he returned to his base, Ubon airfield in Thailand.

"It was a mission to keep the MIGs off the 105s (F105 Thunderchiefs) and we did just that. We spotted four MIG17s later, but they didn't want to mix it up."

Olds' flight of F4C Phantoms was escorting the F105 Thunderchiefs whose mission was to bomb the Hanoi transformer site seven miles north of the center of the Communist capital.

Olds said that as his flight got near the Phuc Yen airfield "two MIG21s were spotted at 10 o'clock high heading for the last formation of 105s."

"We broke into them," Olds related, "and when they saw us they quickly forgot what they were there for. One disappeared and the other got nailed. He was burning when I left him. An F105 pilot saw him go into the ground and I didn't see him bail out."

Olds, graduated in 1943 from West Point where he was an outstanding tackle on the football team, comes from a long line of military men. One member of his family was a colonel on Gen. George Washington's staff. His father, Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, was commander of the 2nd Air Force during World War II.

Olds, of Washington, D.C., is married to former movie actress Ella Raines. They have two daughters, Chris, 15, and Susan, 13.

He came to Southeast Asia from Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and took command of the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing at Ubon, which calls itself the "Wolfpack Gang" because it has downed more than half of the 37 MIGs claimed by the Air Force in aerial duels. Navy pilots have downed the other 12 MIGs claimed by U.S. pilots.

Olds shot down his first MIG over the Red River Valley last Jan. 2, the day Air Force pilots downed seven Communist interceptors for the highest single-day kill of the war in aerial duels.

Both of Olds' MIG kills have been made with air-to-air missiles. The Russian-designed MIG21 is a bigger prize than the earlier MIG17, since it is faster and more maneuverable.

Only one other U.S. pilot, Lt. Hugh Wisely, a Navy flyer from Wayne, N.J., is credited with two enemy planes shot down, one a propellor-driven plane early this year and the other a MIG17 on April 24.

Olds flew 107 missions with the 8th Air Force in World War II and won two Distinguished Flying Crosses, two Silver Stars, the Air Medal with 27 oak leaf clusters, the British Distinguished Flying Cross and the French Croix de Guerre.

During the Korean War, he was in the Air Defense Command and, as he says, "missed the fighting."

Truckers Settle Dispute

CHICAGO (AP) — A renegotiated contract for 500,000 truck drivers across the nation was approved Thursday night. The pact could end the 11-day strike-lockout of more than 45,000 drivers which has crippled freight transportation in the Chicago area.

Frank Fitzsimmons, acting president of the Teamsters Union, said he was confident that Chicago truck drivers would be back to work by Monday.

Announcement of the reworked contract came amid published reports that control of the Teamsters has been shifted from the national headquarters back to local leaders, ending one-man rule of the powerful labor organization.

The revolt against the system established by James R. Hoffa, now serving an eight-year term in federal prison, was reported by the Los Angeles Times in a story from its Chicago bureau. It means the 1.8-million member union is returning to its historic fragmented power structure.

The decision reportedly was voted by the union's general executive board during a secret session Thursday in Chicago.

Fitzsimmons, emerging from a bargaining session with negotiators for the trucking industry, said the new contract will be submitted to union members across the country for a mailed vote.

The renegotiated agreement supersedes a national pact agreed on April 12.

Ratification of the April 12 agreement was stalled by the walkout of Chicago Teamsters Local 705 and the independent Chicago Truck Drivers Union. The national pact called for a 70-cent hourly package over a three-year span and Chicago drivers were demanding a 90-cent package.

Fitzsimmons said the new agreement could give long-haul drivers as much as 78 cents an hour over the next three years.

He said the contract includes 55 cents in "hard money," an improved cost of living plan and other benefits including vacations and a two-day funeral leave.

"This is the largest money package ever negotiated by the Teamsters Union," Fitzsimmons said.

Edward Fenner, president of the 11,000 member independent Chicago union, left the session after a "no comment" reply to questions about whether his group is in accord with Fitzsimmons' views.

Fitzsimmons said a decision at Chicago on the contract is a local matter, "I cannot say how they (Local 705) will vote," he said.

Louis Peick, head of Local 705 and chief negotiator for Chicago-area drivers, said the new contract was "the best deal we ever had."

Spokesmen for management were quoted as saying they will continue their lockout of Chicago truck drivers at least until midnight Friday so they will not have to pay the drivers for a 40-hour week.

No meetings were scheduled between the Chicago local and management before a vote is taken, Teamster officials said.

The Chicago Association of Commerce estimated earlier that the trucking stoppage put nearly 200,000 employes out of work in factories and construction work because of a shortage of supplies.

Cape Bank Charged With Discrimination

CAPE GIRARDEAU-The First National Bank of Cape Girardeau was accused of "discriminating between employes on the basis of sex," in violation of the fair labor standards act, in a civil injunction suit on file today in U.S. district court.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz charged that the bank pays some of its tellers less than it pays others of the opposite sex for equal work on jobs requiring equal skill, effort, and responsibilities.

In addition to requiring compliance with the statute, the injunction sought would order the payment of back wages withheld in violation of the statute. It also would require the maintenance of adequate time and pay records by the bank.

The suit followed an investigation carried out under the supervision of Jack R. Younce, head of the labor department's wage - hour office in St. Louis.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

International Telephone and Telegraph and the American Broadcasting Company want to merge.

They were given the all clear signal by the Federal Communications Commission but the Justice Department intervened and approval has been withheld at least temporarily.

Precedent for the consolidation may have been established by Radio Corporation of America, which owns the National Broadcasting Company.

Because of its worldwide operations some fears have been expressed that ITT might try to influence the handling of international news.

ITT has repeatedly assured federal authorities that it will not tamper with network news presentations.

That is what ITT says. Now let's look at the record.

During the merger negotiations both ITT and ABC public relations men have put heavy handed pressure on news media.

Eileen Shanahan, a New York Times reporter, testified that ITT public relations men read a company statement to her in "accusatory and angry tones" and told her that he expected to "read it high up in your story."

On another occasion, a high company public relations official demanded to see a story that she had written before publication. She refused to give it to him.

While still writing a story on the merger, Stephen M. Aug, Associated Press reporter, testified that the ABC had protested to his New York office the first paragraph of his story, which had appeared on a news wire.

There were other complaints of pressure all defended as being within the companies' right to protest.

What ITT and ABC does is more important than what they say.

The experience of reporters with the companies indicates that they would not hestitate to influence the type of coverage they received in any story which involved them. In such a diversified giant as ITT the opportunities for well doctored news stories are numerous.

The application for the merger should be denied.

If you were suddenly to find yourself confined to a wheelchair for the remainder of your life, what would you give to be able to walk again? Think about it!

Fortunately most of us are able to walk on our own two feet. But there are an estimated 500,000 Americans who have multiple sclerosis or related neurological disorders and many of them are in wheelchairs. Couldn't you give a little of your time to help these MS patients?

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society needs men and women to volunteer to canvass their neighbors for the MS Hope Chest Drive. The monies raised support research into the cause, prevention and treatment of this crippling disease, and provide local patient services for those afflicted, as well as community and professional education.

The cause of this debilitating disorder remains unknown. There is no apparent cure. But scientists are working day and night seeking an answer to MS. That is why volunteers are needed - to enable the Society to raise finds to finance this vital research.

Think about it! Don't you have some time to give to the Sikeston Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society so that they can help those less fortunate than yourself.

A new roadside safety feature is appearing in Kansas and elsewhere in the nation.

Large directional reflective signs along Interstate 70 in Topeka, Kans. are mounted on posts that break harmlessly away when accidentally struck by a speeding vehicle. The same kind of break-away sign also is being tested on other Kansas roads in an effort to keep pace with a record high volume of traffic, according to the State Highway Commission.

Such signs, installed in nine Topeka area locations, are designed with "slip plates" just above the ground and immediately below the sign.

On impact, the slip plates separate, the sign supports are pushed forward, and the sign flies harmlessly over the top of the vehicle, thus reducing the injury-causing factors in the accident.

Other signs are being moved behind existing guard rails. Where they can not be moved, slip joints are being installed in the steel posts.

When an average vehicle hits a breakaway post at a speed in excess of 35 miles per hour, posts equipped with slip plates will separate.

Breakaway signs also are being tested in Texas, and Pennsylvania.

Among other developments being tested or considered in Kansas:

1. Slopes to ditches are being reduced so drivers, if forced to leave the highway, can more easily control their vehicles.

2. Edge striping along all two-lane routes is being considered.

3. To encourage better construction and material controls, a new book of standard specifications has been published. Highway plans for future construction also are being reviewed to reduce roadside obstacles.

WHAT IS A FLAG?

Flags everywhere - on public buildings - in private homes - in stores - fluttering in the summer breeze - flags everywhere - American flags!

Passers-by, on the busy streets of the city, hurry on their way, minds intent on their own small affairs. They look idly at the flags - but do they really see them?

That oblong piece of cloth, with its bright dyes, is the visible symbol of America today - an America more precious, more wonderful than ever before, because the gifts it has given us are threatened, as never before, with loss and destruction? It is the thrilling heart of America - the sign of our inheritance - the presence of all we hold most dear!

The courage and strength of the pioneers - the pathfinders who met trial and hardship dauntlessly, in the days when we were beginning to be a nation - are in the red of its stripes!

The high and stainless purity of mind and motive - the whiteness of the souls of great men - Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson, and many others, who strove selflessly to hold high their beliefs in the greatness of this nation, and who dedicated their lives to its service - are in the white of its stripes!

The truth that will not stoop to lie - the integrity of the principles that underlie our commonwealth, the unshakable faith and trust in God, that has come down to us from those long gone before, who have held high the light, that we might walk safely - are in the blue of its field of stars!

And every one of those stars shines with a new splendor of meaning - the symbol of a free people, living their lives in the blessings of Freedom - Freedom to worship God as they choose, Freedom to work, to laugh, to love, to live - God's most precious gift to man, to be guarded sacredly forever!

What is a Flag?

It is the soul of America - and it shall never die!

BERLIN (AP) — Singer Ray Charles wiped the sweat of an evening's performance from his brow and said: "I love my talent. I wouldn't trade it for anything, not even to have my sight."

As a child Georgia-born Charles was blinded by an optic nerve disease but went on to become a popular performer in the world with his own brand of "soul music."

This week, after a performance in West Berlin's Sportpalast, he talked about his blindness and his music. If he had the power to control things, would he give up his talent for his sight?

"That's crazy," was his surprisingly quick answer.

"There's no reason for me to give up my talent. It makes people happy. I love it and as long as I love it I wouldn't change it.

"What is left for me to see? I was blinded when I was 6. I know what the moon and stars and other things look like. There's nothing earth-shattering left to see."

Charles, who accompanies himself on the piano, plays a brilliant saxophone and also composes most of his hit songs, added: "Seeing or not seeing doesn't have anything to do with my music."

Barry Rilera of Santa Ana, Calif., who plays guitar in the Charles orchestra, said, "Charles has a fantastic ear. It doesn't matter when or on what level but if you make a mistake he'll hear it. He makes us play better."

Charles and his troop of bandsmen and "Raelets" — four girl singers — easily won over the Berlin audience with such songs as "I Got a Woman," "Georgia on My Mind," "Hallelujah, I Could Love Her So," a particularly suggestive "Baby, It's Cold Outside," and a stirring blues monologue done by Charles.

The 35-year-old Negro is known as a soulful musician and he was asked to explain what the soul in his music is.

"I tell you," he said, "the word is greatly overused. I've heard records that are supposed to be soul but they didn't do anything to me. Soul — that's when it makes your heart do something. When it touches you inside.

"When you play happy, then those that are listening feel your joy. When you play sad, they feel your sadness.

"My music comes from the way I feel."

TAX LIFE AND TIMES OF CHARLIE GREEN

Six years ago, Tax Foundation, Inc., traced the effect of the trends of government spending and taxing on Charlie Green, an imaginary but fairly typical white collar worker. In this issue of Monthly Tax Features, the Foundation assays anew Charlie's situation in the light of government spending and taxing trends since 1955.

Charlie, a married man, has a 12-year-old daughter in elementary school and a 14-year old son in junior high. He has worked hard to get ahead and now earns $10,000 a year (about $2,000 more than the average U. S. family of four receives). It is considerably more than the $6,800 he earned in 1955. Like most in his position, he suffers more than the averabe employee from inflation and high taxes. Charlie owns his home in a metropolitan suburb; it is now valued at $25,000. He commutes to work in the nearby city.

Total direct taxes (not counting hidden taxes) now take almost 30 percent of Charlie's income, compared with 24 percent of his smaller earnings ten years ago.

Inflation has knocked a big hole in the several raises Charlie has had in the past ten years. Since 1955 the Consumer Price Index has risen 17 percent, wiping out $1,037 of his after-tax increase.

Since another $1,242 of his increased income (since 1955) has gone for higher taxes, Charlie's net increase in income, after inflation and taxes, the Foundation points out, is not $3,200, but only $921!

"Do you owe a big gambling debt, boy? Don't worry, I'll pay it."

H.L. Hunt Says

"FEDERAL SERVICE"

CREDIT FOR PRISONERS

Many times it has seemed to the observers of the Washington wonderland of bureaucracy that a supreme peak of absurdity had been reached, which could never be surpassed. Just as often we have soon learned that each new peak could be overtopped by yet another and still more amazing twist of the bureaucratic mind.

Another one of these moments has come with the disclosure by the able and conscientious Senator John Williams of Delaware that convicts are now obtaining credit for "federal service" for work done while in prison. This credit makes them eligible for the same federal benefits that go to civil servants hired in the normal way, who have not run afoul of the law. If a prisoner should obtain civil service employment after his release, he could actually count his time in prison as part of the period of service which would eventually qualify him for early retirement.

A few years ago a ruling by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that prison terms would be held equivalent to civil service employment would have been utterly incredible. But nowadays there are so many examples of this kind of thinking that we tend to become resigned to them.

This is a temptation to which we must not give away. American freedom can never be preserved if our people lose their capacity for healthy indignation along with an awareness of the fantastic foolishness of such a policy as giving civil service retirement credit for a prison term. This and other examples of its kind should be held up to public view until major policy changes are made. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

KENNEDY, VIETNAM AND THE GOP

June 5, 1966, Drew Pearson reported that the United States got bogged down in Vietnam after Kennedy suffered his "humiliating experience" at the Bay of Pigs and "decided to throw the military of the United States behind the small Catholic minority in South Vietnam. And from Eisenhower's total of only one thousand military advisers, Kennedy rapidly escalated American troops. . to 33,000 Americans in South Vietnam."

On May 1, 1967, the Senate Republican policy committee, diagnosing the causes of the Vietnam impasse, stated that American troops increased from 700 men under Eisenhower to several thousand under Kennedy after the Bay of Pigs, and that "it became apparent that the Kennedy administration had opted for military intervention."

WASHINGTON -- The strongest opposition to Nelson Rockefeller as candidate for President is coming, not from his bitter Republican foe Barry Goldwater, but from his friend Jacob Javits, the liberal Republican from New York.

Most people don't know it, but after Maryland's Gov. Spiro Agnew sent up the first trial balloon for Rockefeller, Javits burned up the wires to the state house in Annapolis.

In high excitement, Javits insisted Rockefeller was not a candidate, and urged Agnew to drop the Rockefeller - for-president idea. The moderates should unite, said Javits, around Michigan's Gov. George Romney.

Inside reason why the GOP Senator from New York opposes Rockefeller for President is that Javits is hungry to become the first Jew in history to become Vice President of the United States. If Rockefeller should be nominated Javits would be out, because two New Yorkers could not run on the same ticket.

Knowing this, Sen. Javits played his cards very shrewdly. He began making noises about running for Governor of New York himself. This was before Nelson had made up his mind whether to run for a third term. And, while making up his mind, he found Sen. Javits making speeches all over the state indicating that he was not adverse to running for governor himself.

A "SACRED DEAL"

Finally the two Republicans, always good friends, got together. Nelson suggested that Javits stop nudging him for governor, and Javits, in turn, made a frank confession that he wanted to run for vice president. He was willing to support Rockefeller for governor if Rockefeller would support him for vice president.

Rockefeller agreed. According to Javits's friends, he also made a "sacred pledge" that he would put his money on Gov. George Romney of Michigan, thus giving the Republicans a well - balanced ticket -- a Midwesterner for president and a New Yorker for vice president.

Rockefeller's most able professional, Leonard Hall, then took over the Romney campaign, and Rockefeller was emphatic both in private and in public about his determination not to run for president.

Recently, however, the "sacred deal" appears not too sacred after all. Two things have happened. LBJ's ratings have dropped, and Rockefeller admirers, led by Gov. Agnew, have cooled toward Romney after personal exposure.

The Maryland governor is now trying to persuade Rockefeller to change his mind. When Agnew went to see Rocky in Albany, the latter stuck to his Javits pledge. His friends, however, are still hoping, and Javits is still fuming. A pledge is a pledge, says Javits, and he expects Rockefeller to keep his.

JAVITS AND NAZI VICTIMS

Meanwhile, Sen. Javits, who has a fine record in congress, has had some sour reaction from Jewish leaders because of his championship of Gen. Julius Klein, close friend of Sen. Tom Dodd, in the argument over a $75 million contract with Rheinmetall for a 20 MM gun for the U. S. Armed Forces.

Klein, a Chicago public relations man, acted as the paid agent for Rheinmetall even though that company had used Nazi slave labor during the war and had refused to make restitution to survivors of those horrible concentration camps.

Because Rheinmetall had refused to pay restitution to slave labor camp survivors, the West German defense minister had recommended that the United States refuse to sign the 20 MM contract. The closing of the historic Springfield Arsenal was also involved. The U. S. Defense Department had followed this advice and the U. S. State Department had also taken a firm stand that Rheinmetall must pay restitution to slave labor victims.

Gen. Julius Klein, however, though a former commander of the Jewish War Veterans, protested that the company was "innocent of such charges as have been alleged." The Jewish War Veterans, in turn, threatened to expel him.

Even though fully aware of the seriousness of the state department's Nazi claims against Rheinmetall, and even the Senate Ethics Committee had already begun its probe of Klein and Sen. Dodd, Javits wrote Klein this letter:

"Within the context of your representation of West German business concerns and individuals -- which is itself a matter of your business judgment and your personal disposition and not for me to pass on -- I feel you have done your utmost to secure justice for the victims of Nazism and a measure of reparation through aid to Israel."

Many Jews wonder what Klein did to get Javits to write such a letter at the very time Klein was under investigation by the ethics committee. They have their fingers crossed regarding Javits for vice president.

FEAR LBJ '68 DEFEAT

Secret Poll Taken by AFL-CIO leaders Reveals Rank and File Set to Rebel Against Old Chiefs.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: -- A worried national labor leadership now knows why there are chain - reaction rebellions amongst millions of their rank and file.

It took a secret poll -- for which they paid -- by the John Kraft opinion sampling organization actually to reaffirm what the land's most famous union chiefs already suspected.

Most of their rank and file just don't know them except as headline names and news-photos taken in some distant metropolis or capital.

The Kraft poll disclosed that there is a vast chasm between the leaders and the new class -- mostly the youth of the nation. That's why the rank and file has rejected more than one out of every ten compacts negotiated with their employers by their leaders.

The Kraft survey startled the leadership for political reasons as well as for the internal problems it raised.

Unless the trend is reversed, the AFL-CIO's political experts believe the rank and file will not follow labor's leadership in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Should this happen, they say candidly that President Johnson will be defeated.

And with him will go many of the liberal "friends" on whom the American labor movement depends for legislative power up on the Hill.

"The Kraft polls basically shows," said one high AFL-CIO official who helped arrange it, "that the younger members of the trade union movement are under 30. They have no memory of the depression, World War II, or the Korean war, for that matter. They don't remember the time there were virtually no vacations, no automatic pay increase, no hospitalization. They are little aware of the long trade - union battles and they take for granted all those jury contracts and always expect more."

This problem is not new to Walter Reuther, half of whose 1.5 million members are under 29. Swiftly this is becoming a problem even to the man of the hustings, I. W. "Abe" Abel, president of the United Steelworkers.

"Our members, young and older, are united," he said the other day. "But you can search mighty carefully through the Burns Harbor (Indiana) Bethlehem Steel plant and you won't find many -- or even one -- over 30. About a quarter of our 1.1 million members now are in that young age bracket."

What to do to build bridges to the young, only a few of whom are the mellow - yellow banana skin crowd?

There's one labor leader---an old shortstop -- who's trying new tactics to mix with the new society. Recently he went out to some of his Pennsylvania shops. They knew he was coming, so they baked some cakes. They picketed him with signs saying "Welcome, rookie of the year." They danced in the aisles in some plants. They got one mayor to give him the keys to the city.

He is Louis Stullberg, "rookie" president of one of the land's -- and the world's -- most influential policy-making unions, the International Ladies Garment Workers. He's been in office just one year -- successor to the illustrious and perpetually peppery Dave Dubinsky.

"They" are part of the 455,000 members of this union which mans and ladys the thousands of shops that make every stitch of female clothing for a huge $15 billion dollar market.

"I'm a traveling salesman, now", says Lou Stulberg. "I've been through New England and I'm returning. I've gone into New Jersey and Pennsylvania. This is just the beginning. Right now I'm covering half our membership, personally -- going into the plants, listening to my people's problems. Sure I shake hands. Sure I'm delighted when a cutter comes up and says, 'Thanks Mr. Stulberg for shaking hands right in the shop.'

"You can bet I'll continue it across the nation until I get to all our people. I want to see what's doing in every corner of our union.

"The rank and file is changing and I want their relationship with the union officers and with me to be a personal one. There is no such thing as a runaway rank and file. If they know you want to do right by them and if you prove you have an interest in their welfare, they're with you.

"It's hard on the feet and body. But it's good for the soul. I'm enjoying it. All leaders should go out and see their people. How else can one lead?"

Perhaps the rest of labor should let the ladies garment leader set the fashions in leadership. They could save so much time and money. They would need no polls, no review of their public relations techniques such as they are now making.

They could get it firsthand, like that rookie, onetime shortstop, Lou Stulberg.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

International Telephone and Telegraph and the American Broadcasting Company want to merge.

They were given the all clear signal by the Federal Communications Commission but the Justice Department intervened and approval has been withheld at least temporarily.

Precedent for the consolidation may have been established by Radio Corporation of America, which owns the National Broadcasting Company.

Because of its worldwide operations some fears have been expressed that ITT might try to influence the handling of international news.

ITT has repeatedly assured federal authorities that it will not tamper with network news presentations.

That is what ITT says. Now let's look at the record.

During the merger negotiations both ITT and ABC public relations men have put heavy handed pressure on news media.

Eileen Shanahan, a New York Times reporter, testified that ITT public relations men read a company statement to her in "accusatory and angry tones" and told her that he expected to "read it high up in your story."

On another occasion, a high company public relations official demanded to see a story that she had written before publication. She refused to give it to him.

While still writing a story on the merger, Stephen M. Aug, Associated Press reporter, testified that the ABC had protested to his New York office the first paragraph of his story, which had appeared on a news wire.

There were other complaints of pressure all defended as being within the companies' right to protest.

What ITT and ABC does is more important than what they say.

The experience of reporters with the companies indicates that they would not hesitate to influence the type of coverage they received in any story which involved them. In such a diversified giant as ITT the opportunities for well doctored news stories are numerous.

The application for the merger should be denied.

If you were suddenly to find yourself confined to a wheelchair for the remainder of your life, what would you give to be able to walk again? Think about it!

Fortunately most of us are able to walk on our own two feet. But there are an estimated 500,000 Americans who have multiple sclerosis or related neurological disorders and many of them are in wheelchairs. Couldn't you give a little of your time to help these MS patients?

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society needs men and women to volunteer to canvass their neighbors for the MS Hope Chest Drive. The monies raised support research into the cause, prevention and treatment of this crippling disease, and provide local patient services for those afflicted, as well as community and professional education.

The cause of this debilitating disorder remains unknown. There is no apparent cure. But scientists are working day and night seeking an answer to MS. That is why volunteers are needed - to enable the Society to raise finds to finance this vital research.

Think about it! Don't you have some time to give to the Sikeston Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society so that they can help those less fortunate than yourself.

A new roadside safety feature is appearing in Kansas and elsewhere in the nation.

Large directional reflective signs along Interstate 70 in Topeka, Kans. are mounted on posts that break harmlessly away when accidentally struck by a speeding vehicle. The same kind of break-away sign also is being tested on other Kansas roads in an effort to keep pace with a record high volume of traffic, according to the State Highway Commission.

Such signs, installed in nine Topeka area locations, are designed with "slip plates" just above the ground and immediately below the sign.

On impact, the slip plates separate, the sign supports are pushed forward, and the sign flies harmlessly over the top of the vehicle, thus reducing the injury-causing factors in the accident.

Other signs are being moved behind existing guard rails. Where they can not be moved, slip joints are being installed in the steel posts.

When an average vehicle hits a breakaway post at a speed in excess of 35 miles per hour, posts equipped with slip plates will separate.

Breakaway signs also are being tested in Texas, and Pennsylvania.

Among other developments being tested or considered in Kansas:

1. Slopes to ditches are being reduced so drivers, if forced to leave the highway, can more easily control their vehicles.
2. Edge striping along all two-lane routes is being considered.
3. To encourage better construction and material controls, a new book of standard specifications has been published. Highway plans for future construction also are being reviewed to reduce roadside obstacles.

WHAT IS A FLAG?

Flags everywhere - on public buildings - in private homes - in stores - fluttering in the summer breeze - flags everywhere - American flags!

Passers-by, on the busy streets of the city, hurry on their way, minds intent on their own small affairs. They look idly at the flags - but do they really see them?

That oblong piece of cloth, with its bright dyes, is the visible symbol of America today - an America more precious, more wonderful than ever before, because the gifts it has given us are threatened, as never before, with loss and destruction? It is the thrilling heart of America - the sign of our inheritance - the presence of all we hold most dear!

The courage and strength of the pioneers - the pathfinders who met trial and hardship dauntlessly, in the days when we were beginning to be a nation - are in the red of its stripes!

The high and stainless purity of mind and motive - the whiteness of the souls of great men - Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson, and many others, who strove selflessly to hold high their beliefs in the greatness of this nation, and who dedicated their lives to its service - are in the white of its stripes!

The truth that will not stoop to lie - the integrity of the principles that underlie our commonwealth, the unshakable faith and trust in God, that has come down to us from those long gone before, who have held high the light, that we might walk safely - are in the blue of its field of stars!

And every one of those stars shines with a new splendor of meaning - the symbol of a free people, living their lives in the blessings of Freedom - Freedom to worship God as they choose, Freedom to work, to laugh, to love, to live - God's most precious gift to man, to be guarded sacredly forever!

What is a Flag?

It is the soul of America - and it shall never die!

BERLIN (AP) — Singer Ray Charles wiped the sweat of an evening's performance from his brow and said: "I love my talent. I wouldn't trade it for anything, not even to have my sight."

As a child Georgia-born Charles was blinded by an optic nerve disease but went on to become a popular performer in the world with his own brand of "soul music."

This week, after a performance in West Berlin's Sportpalast, he talked about his blindness and his music. If he had the power to control things, would he give up his talent for his sight?

"That's crazy," was his surprisingly quick answer.

"There's no reason for me to give up my talent. It makes people happy. I love it and as long as I love it I wouldn't change it.

"What is left for me to see? I was blinded when I was 6. I know what the moon and stars and other things look like. There's nothing earth-shattering left to see."

Charles, who accompanies himself on the piano, plays a brilliant saxophone and also composes most of his hit songs, added: "Seeing or not seeing doesn't have anything to do with my music."

H.L. Hunt Says

"FEDERAL SERVICE" CREDIT FOR PRISONERS

Many times it has seemed to the observers of the Washington wonderland of bureaucracy that a supreme peak of absurdity had been reached, which could never be surpassed. Just as often we have soon learned that each new peak could be overtopped by yet another and still more amazing twist of the bureaucratic mind.

Another one of these moments has come with the disclosure by the able and conscientious Senator John Williams of Delaware that convicts are now obtaining credit for "federal service" for work done while in prison. This credit makes them eligible for the same federal benefits that go to civil servants hired in the normal way, who have not run afoul of the law. If a prisoner should obtain civil service employment after his release, he could actually count his time in prison as part of the period of service which would eventually qualify him for early retirement.

A few years ago a ruling by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that prison terms would be held equivalent to civil service employment would have been utterly incredible. But nowadays there are so many examples of this kind of thinking that we tend to become resigned to them.

This is a temptation to which we must not give away. American freedom can never be preserved if our people lose their capacity for healthy indignation along with an awareness of the fantastic foolishness of such a policy as giving civil service retirement credit for a prison term. This and other examples of its kind should be held up to public view until major policy changes are made. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

KENNEDY, VIETNAM AND THE GOP

June 5, 1966, Drew Pearson reported that the United States got bogged down in Vietnam after Kennedy suffered his "humiliating experience" at the Bay of Pigs and "decided to throw the military of the United States behind the small Catholic minority in South Vietnam. And from Eisenhower's total of only one thousand military advisers, Kennedy rapidly escalated American troops. . to 33,000 Americans in South Vietnam."

On May 1, 1967, the Senate Republican policy committee, diagnosing the causes of the Vietnam Impasse, stated that American troops increased from 700 men under Eisenhower to several thousand under Kennedy after the Bay of Pigs, and that "it became apparent that the Kennedy administration had opted for military intervention."

WASHINGTON -- The strongest opposition to Nelson Rockefeller as candidate for President is coming, not from his bitter Republican foe Barry Goldwater, but from his friend Jacob Javits, the liberal Republican from New York.

Most people don't know it, but after Maryland's Gov. Spiro Agnew sent up the first trial balloon for Rockefeller, Javits burned up the wires to the state house in Annapolis.

In high excitement, Javits insisted Rockefeller was not a candidate, and urged Agnew to drop the Rockefeller - for-president idea. The moderates should unite, said Javits, around Michigan's Gov. George Romney.

Inside reason why the GOP Senator from New York opposes Rockefeller for President is that Javits is hungry to become the first Jew in history to become Vice President of the United States. If Rockefeller should be nominated Javits would be out, because two New Yorkers could not run on the same ticket.

Knowing this, Sen. Javits played his cards very shrewdly. He began making noises about running for Governor of New York himself. This was before Nelson had made up his mind whether to run for a third term. And, while making up his mind, he found Sen. Javits making speeches all over the state indicating that he was not adverse to running for governor himself.

A "SACRED DEAL"

Finally the two Republicans, always good friends, got together. Nelson suggested that Javits stop nudging him for governor, and Javits, in turn, made a frank confession that he wanted to run for vice president. He was willing to support Rockefeller for governor if Rockefeller would support him for vice president.

Rockefeller agreed. According to Javits's friends, he also made a "sacred pledge" that he would put his money on Gov. George Romney of Michigan, thus giving the Republicans a well - balanced ticket -- a Midwesterner for president and a New Yorker for vice president.

Rockefeller's most able professional, Leonard Hall, then took over the Romney campaign, and Rockefeller was emphatic both in private and in public about his determination not to run for president.

Recently, however, the "sacred deal" appears not too sacred after all. Two things have happened. LBJ's ratings have dropped, and Rockefeller admirers, led by Gov. Agnew, have cooled toward Romney after personal exposure.

The Maryland governor is now trying to persuade Rockefeller to change his mind. When Agnew went to see Rocky in Albany, the latter stuck to his Javits pledge. His friends, however, are still hoping, and Javits is still fuming. A pledge is a pledge, says Javits, and he expects Rockefeller to keep his.

JAVITS AND NAZI VICTIMS

Meanwhile, Sen. Javits, who has a fine record in congress, has had some sour reaction from Jewish leaders because of his championship of Gen. Julius Klein, close friend of Sen. Tom Dodd, in the argument over a $75 million contract with Rheinmetall for a 20 MM gun for the U. S. Armed Forces.

Klein, a Chicago public relations man, acted as the paid agent for Rheinmetall even though that company had used Nazi slave labor during the war and had refused to make restitution to survivors of those horrible concentration camps.

Because Rheinmetall had refused to pay restitution to slave labor camp survivors, the West German defense minister had recommended that the United States refuse to sign the 20 MM contract. The closing of the historic Springfield Arsenal was also involved. The U. S. Defense Department had followed this advice and the U. S. State Department had also taken a firm stand that Rheinmetall must pay restitution to slave labor victims.

Gen. Julius Klein, however, though a former commander of the Jewish War Veterans, protested that the company was "innocent of such charges as have been alleged." The Jewish War Veterans, in turn, threatened to expel him.

Even though fully aware of the seriousness of the state department's Nazi claims against Rheinmetall, and even the Senate Ethics Committee had already begun its probe of Klein and Sen. Dodd, Javits wrote Klein this letter:

"Within the context of your representation of West German business concerns and individuals -- which is itself a matter of your business judgment and your personal disposition and not for me to pass on -- I feel you have done your utmost to secure justice for the victims of Nazism and a measure of reparation through aid to Israel."

Many Jews wonder what Klein did to get Javits to write such a letter at the very time Klein was under investigation by the ethics committee. They have their fingers crossed regarding Javits for vice president.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

FEAR LBJ '68 DEFEAT

Secret Poll Taken by AFL-CIO leaders Reveals Rank and File Set to Rebel Against Old Chiefs.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: -- A worried national labor leadership now knows why there are chain - reaction rebellions amongst millions of their rank and file.

It took a secret poll -- for which they paid -- by the John Kraft opinion sampling organization actually to reaffirm what the land's most famous union chiefs already suspected.

Most of their rank and file just don't know them except as headline names and newsphotos taken in some distant metropolis or capital.

The Kraft poll disclosed that there is a vast chasm between the leaders and the new class -- mostly the youth of the nation. That's why the rank and file has rejected more than one out of every ten compacts negotiated with their employers by their leaders.

The Kraft survey startled the leadership for political reasons as well as for the internal problems it raised.

Unless the trend is reversed, the AFL-CIO's political experts believe the rank and file will not follow labor's leadership in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Should this happen, they say candidly that President Johnson will be defeated.

And with him will go many of the liberal "friends" on whom the American labor movement depends for legislative power up on the Hill.

"The Kraft polls basically shows," said one high AFL-CIO official who helped arrange it, "that the younger members of the trade union movement are under 30. They have no memory of the depression, World War II, or the Korean war, for that matter. They don't remember the time there were virtually no vacations, no automatic pay increase, no hospitalization. They are little aware of the long trade - union battles and they take for granted all those jury contracts and always expect more."

This problem is not new to Walter Reuther, half of whose 1.5 million members are under 29. Swiftly this is becoming a problem even to the man of the hustings, I. W. "Abe" Abel, president of the United Steelworkers.

"Our members, young and older, are united," he said the other day. "But you can search mighty carefully through the Burns Harbor (Indiana) Bethlehem Steel plant and you won't find many -- or even one -- over 30. About a quarter of our 1.1 million members now are in that young age bracket."

What to do to build bridges to the young, only a few of whom are the mellow - yellow banana skin crowd?

There's one labor leader -- an old shortstop -- who's trying new tactics to mix with the new society. Recently he went out to some of his Pennsylvania shops. They knew he was coming, so they baked some cakes. They picketed him with signs saying "Welcome, rookie of the year." They danced in the aisles in some plants. They got one mayor to give him the keys to the city.

He is Louis Stulberg, "rookie" president of one of the land's -- and the world's -- most influential policy-making unions, the International Ladies Garment Workers. He's been in office just one year -- successor to the illustrious and perpetually peppery Dave Dubinsky.

"They" are part of the 455,000 members of this union which mans and ladys the thousands of shops that make every stitch of female clothing for a huge $15 billion dollar market.

"I'm a traveling salesman, now", says Lou Stulberg. "I've been through New England and I'm returning. I've gone into New Jersey and Pennsylvania. This is just the beginning. Right now I'm covering half our membership, personally -- going into the plants, listening to my people's problems. Sure I shake hands. Sure I'm delighted when a cutter comes up and says, 'Thanks Mr. Stulberg for shaking hands right in the shop.'

"You can bet I'll continue it across the nation until I get to all our people. I want to see what's doing in every corner of our union.

"The rank and file is changing and I want their relationship with the union officers and with me to be a personal one. There is no such thing as a runaway rank and file. If they know you want to do right by them and if you prove you have an interest in their welfare, they're with you.

"It's hard on the feet and body. But it's good for the soul. I'm enjoying it. All leaders should go out and see their people. How else can one lead?"

Perhaps the rest of labor should let the ladies garment leader set the fashions in leadership. They could save so much time and money. They would need no polls, no review of their public relations techniques such as they are now making.

They could get it firsthand, like that rookie, onetime shortstop, Lou Stulberg.

Mrs. Perkins Will Speak At Tea

Mrs. Marlin Perkins of St. Louis will speak at the annual tea of the extension councils of Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid counties at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the junior high school auditorium.

She will illustrate her talk with slides.

Mrs. Perkins travels with her husband, Marlin Perkins, director of the St. Louis Zoo, when he goes to many parts of the world to photograph his television program, Wild Kingdom. Mrs. Perkins is the still photographer on these journies, making a record for herself and her husband of the events of the journey.

She has written and illustrated "The Shattered Skull," the story of the search for prehistoric men in Africa. The material for this book was gathered from the Perkins' journey to Olduvai Gorge. In collaboration with her husband, Mrs. Perkins wrote "I Saw You From Afar," an account of their visit with the Bushmen of the Kalahari Desert in Africa. Pictures taken by Mrs. Perkins have appeared in two children's books, "Mogul Finds a Friend," and "The Lion Twins," both written by Elizabeth Stewart.

"Little Pierre," Mrs. Perkins' most recent book, has been the best selling children's book in St. Louis since its publication in August. It is the true story of a remarkable chimp growing up in the zoo.

Mrs. Perkins has returned from leading a four weeks safari across East Africa, and is now making plans to take another group to that continent in June of 1968.

The public is invited to the tea.

Change Made Without Influence

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — As she describes it, her change from atheism to belief in God came about without any identifiable cause or influence. It simply welled up, from some hidden spring within.

It was as if a "person was blind" and "one day his eyes become open and he can see the world," said Svetlana Alliluyeva, the daughter of the Soviet Union's late dictator, Joseph Stalin. "It is like this. It is the feeling that comes to you one day."

As to where it came from, or why, she said she didn't know. Yet her experience had biblical antecedents. And theology maintains that God often works incognito in people, even where He is unknown and unnamed.

"The true light that enlightens every man," the Gospel of John calls it. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it."

That was the situation of Stalin's daughter, reared and trained in an atmosphere not only of no religion but of vigorous antagonism to it.

"I was brought up in a family where there was never any talk of God," she said, except in a negative sense. "Since my childhood, I have been taught communism, and I did believe in it, as we all did, in my generation."

Then what sparked the religious turn in her? By her accounts, it had no origin that could be specified or explained. She said there was no persuasion, conversation, literature, teaching or even suggestion that led to it.

"It was not writing and not personal contacts," she said at her news conference last week. "Perhaps it is just what one may call religious feeling which some people have."

Whatever it was, she said, "I came to that conclusion myself without anybody's help or preaching."

A subtle and intriguing phenomenon. Yet in a theological contact, it is recognized as a regular operational mode of God, stirring even among men who are unaware of it, and without religious indoctrination, influence or institutions.

"It's something basic within man" commented the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Rapp, an Episcopal clergyman of Port Washington, N.Y. "Man is innately religious and can't help being religious. It's his nature, the way he was made. And it works in him, no matter what his circumstances."

As the World Council of Churches once put it, there is a "ceaseless work of the Holy Spirit among men" going on everywhere. "God has not left Himself without witnesses, even among men who do not yet know it.

"Wherever we go in the world, God is there before us. His light has preceded the bearers of the good news into the darkest places."

Only after Mrs. Alliluyeva had turned toward religion without outside inducements did she begin studying it, she said. "After that, I began to read more."

Five years ago, in May 1962, she was baptized in Moscow into the Russian Orthodox Church, a communion which stresses the mysteries of God's sovereignty in contrast to Western Christianity's tendency to try to codify and define it.

Illuminated Dresses Shown

NEW YORK AP -- It was all systems go for Diana Dew Thursday. Undulating models presented an illuminating demonstration of her electric dresses.

Twenty-three-year-old Diana -- who is also making paper dresses decorated with flower-seeds so that they may be disposed of in the garden and take root -- introduced prototypes of her brilliant ideas last January.

Now the bugs have been straightened out and the flashing battery-operated miniskirts and bell bottoms are ready for the current market.

"Some designers only have to worry about fabric deliveries." sighed Diana, who was glowing in neon-orange stockings and a fluorescent print dress though unwired.

"I have to worry about war priorities and strikes to get the transistor equipment I need."

The turn-on garments will retail for $125 to $250.

The 48 or so tubes and programmed computer systems of one dress, however, may be installed in another. In case of a switch, a shock or a blow-out, call your neighborhood TV-radio repairman, Diana advises.

Because Diana thinks fashion should communicate, one of her designs contains a pole-like throbbing red heart properly placed on a white Dr. Kildare minidress. A white star flashes on and off at naval level on a black and white short dress. On other minidresses are numerous square windows computerized to blink on and off like an apartment house complex at night.

Miss Nunnelee To Study In Europe

CHARLESTON - Judy Nunnelee will study abroad this summer as a member of the fifth Oklahoma Baptist University sponsored European Study Tour, June 12-Aug. 17.

The 10-week tour is divided into a short orientation session on the Shawnee campus, four weeks on the European continent, four weeks at Spurgeon's College in London and a nine-day tour of England and Scotland.

Eighteen hours of credit will be offered on the tour and each student is allowed to enroll in nine hours of classes.

Miss Nunnelee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nunnelee.

A curmudgeon to British publishing finally decided to retire at age 70. He was given the usual dinner. Associates, joyous at the prospect of his leaving, vied in elaborate praise. When the time came to respond, the old gentleman got up and said, "I had no idea I was held in such esteem, I shall stay on."

The bride's mother wore a two-piece melon spring wool dress with small hat and matching shoes. Mrs. DeKriek wore a mint green dress with matching hat. Both mothers wore white gardenias.

The reception was in the dining room. The serving table was centered with an arrangement of yellow rose buds in a silver container. Tea sandwiches, canapes, petit fours and pink champagne were served.

The couple flew from Memphis to New Orleans by jet where they spent five days sightseeing. They returned to Sikeston April 20. They are living at 504 Carroll in Sikeston.

Mrs. DeKriek is a 1961 graduate of East Prairie high school and is employed by First National Bank of Sikeston. Her husband, a 1959 graduate of Sikeston high school, attended Murray State University, Murray, Ky., and Arkansas State university in Jonesboro. He is manager of DeKriek Farm Equipment Company in Sikeston.

Mrs. Perkins Will Speak At Tea

Mrs. Marlin Perkins of St. Louis will speak at the annual tea of the extension councils of Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid counties at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the junior high school auditorium.

She will illustrate her talk with slides.

Mrs. Perkins travels with her husband, Marlin Perkins, director of the St. Louis Zoo, when he goes to many parts of the world to photograph his television program, Wild Kingdom. Mrs. Perkins is the still photographer on these journies, making a record for herself and her husband of the events of the journey.

She has written and illustrated "The Shattered Skull," the story of the search for prehistoric men in Africa. The material for this book was gathered from the Perkins' journey to Olduvai Gorge. In collaboration with her husband, Mrs. Perkins wrote "I Saw You From Afar," an account of their visit with the Bushmen of the Kalahari Desert in Africa. Pictures taken by Mrs. Perkins have appeared in two children's books, "Mogul Finds a Friend," and "The Lion Twins," both written by Elizabeth Stewart.

"Little Pierre," Mrs. Perkins' most recent book, has been the best selling children's book in St. Louis since its publication in August. It is the true story of a remarkable chimp growing up in the zoo.

Mrs. Perkins has returned from leading a four weeks safari across East Africa, and is now making plans to take another group to that continent in June of 1968.

The public is invited to the tea.

THE UNKINDEST CUT

In the news of one hundred years ago,
Two mounted duelists swung mighty saber blows.
What pity that such gallant blood was spilled.
I mean, the horses they accidentally killed.

RE-ENTRY PROBLEMS

A German factory makes nonrattling plastic keys with special locks that permit husbands to return home late and enter noiselessly (NANA-WINS). . . . A French wife, on the other hand, had a gadget installed in the door lock. When her husband inserts his key, it breaks a switch that stops an electric clock and tells the wife next morning just what time her errant spouse came in (Noel Anthony)

Change Made Without Influence

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — As she describes it, her change from atheism to belief in God came about without any identifiable cause or influence. It simply welled up, from some hidden spring within.

It was as if a "person was blind" and "one day his eyes become open and he can see the world," said Svetlana Alliluyeva, the daughter of the Soviet Union's late dictator, Joseph Stalin. "It is like this. It is the feeling that comes to you one day."

As to where it came from, or why, she said she didn't know. Yet her experience had biblical antecedents. And theology maintains that God often works incognito in people, even where He is unknown and unnamed.

"The true light that enlightens every man," the Gospel of John calls it. "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it."

That was the situation of Stalin's daughter, reared and trained in an atmosphere not only of no religion but of vigorous antagonism to it.

"I was brought up in a family where there was never any talk of God," she said, except in a negative sense. "Since my childhood, I have been taught communism, and I did believe in it, as we all did, in my generation."

Then what sparked the religious turn in her? By her accounts, it had no origin that could be specified or explained. She said there was no persuasion, conversation, literature, teaching or even suggestion that led to it.

"It was not writing and not personal contacts," she said at her news conference last week. "Perhaps it is just what one may call religious feeling which some people have."

Whatever it was, she said, "I came to that conclusion myself without anybody's help or preaching."

A subtle and intriguing phenomenon. Yet in a theological contact, it is recognized as a regular operational mode of God, stirring even among men who are unaware of it, and without religious indoctrination, influence or institutions.

"It's something basic within man" commented the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Rapp, an Episcopal clergyman of Port Washington, N.Y. "Man is innately religious and can't help being religious. It's his nature, the way he was made. And it works in him, no matter what his circumstances."

As the World Council of Churches once put it, there is a "ceaseless work of the Holy Spirit among men" going on everywhere. "God has not left Himself without witnesses, even among men who do not yet know it.

"Wherever we go in the world, God is there before us. His light has preceded the bearers of the good news into the darkest places."

Only after Mrs. Alliluyeva had turned toward religion without outside inducements did she begin studying it, she said. "After that, I began to read more."

Five years ago, in May 1962, she was baptized in Moscow into the Russian Orthodox Church, a communion which stresses the mysteries of God's sovereignty in contrast to Western Christianity's tendency to try to codify and define it.

Illuminated Dresses Shown

NEW YORK AP -- It was all systems go for Diana Dew Thursday. Undulating models presented an illuminating demonstration of her electric dresses.

Twenty-three-year-old Diana -- who is also making paper dresses decorated with flower-seeds so that they may be disposed of in the garden and take root -- introduced prototypes of her brilliant ideas last January.

Now the bugs have been straightened out and the flashing battery-operated miniskirts and bell bottoms are ready for the current market.

"Some designers only have to worry about fabric deliveries," sighed Diana, who was glowing in neon-orange stockings and a fluorescent print dress though unwired.

"I have to worry about war priorities and strikes to get the transistor equipment I need."

The turn-on garments will retail for $125 to $250.

The 48 or so tubes and programmed computer systems of one dress, however, may be installed in another. In case of a switch, a shock or a blow-out, call your neighborhood TV-radio repairman, Diana advises.

Because Diana thinks fashion should communicate, one of her designs contains a pole-like throbbing red heart properly placed on a white Dr. Kildare minidress. A white star flashes on and off at naval level on a black and white short dress. On other minidresses are numerous square windows computerized to blink on and off like an apartment house complex at night.

Miss Nunnelee To Study In Europe

CHARLESTON - Judy Nunnelee will study abroad this summer as a member of the fifth Oklahoma Baptist University sponsored European Study Tour, June 12-Aug. 17.

The 10-week tour is divided into a short orientation session on the Shawnee campus, four weeks on the European continent, four weeks at Spurgeon's College in London and a nine-day tour of England and Scotland.

Eighteen hours of credit will be offered on the tour and each student is allowed to enroll in nine hours of classes.

Miss Nunnelee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nunnelee.

A curmudgeon to British publishing finally decided to retire at age 70. He was given the usual dinner. Associates, joyous at the prospect of his leaving, vied in elaborate praise. When the time came to respond, the old gentleman got up and said, "I had no idea I was held in such esteem, I shall stay on."

Eugene Exman

A strong-minded wife took her husband to a psychiatrist. "Herman has a very severe inferiority complex," she told the doctor.

"Now, just how do you know that?" inquired the psychiatrist testily.

"Because I gave it to him," replied the wife.

STICK-IN-THE-MUD: REPRISE

Damascus Derby Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The betting public probably will give its main support to Damascus in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, but longshot Dawn Glory will be in a kind of favorite's role, too.

The colt who brought his Puerto Rican owners to the world's most glamorous horse race in their first fling at the sport will be carrying saddle cloth No. 8. That's the one that crossed the finish line first the past two years.

Every post position has been a winner at one time or another in the 92 Derbys, but for several it has been 25 years or more.

And for at least one, Lightning Orphan, the last win for post position No. 11 could be more than slightly prophetic.

It was in 1933 that Brokers Tip and Head Play roared down the home stretch while their riders flailed at each other with their whips in the only violent roughhouse in Derby history.

Since the invention of the film patrol, jockeys have avoided such tactics.

Civil rights leaders have threatened to disrupt this year's Derby and have hinted demonstrators might spread to the track.

Going from the inside post position that produced its last winner, Chateaugay, in 1963, will be Louis Rowan's Ruken, winner of his last three starts and victor in the Santa Anita Derby.

Mrs. Edith Bancroft's Damascus, carrying Bill Shoemaker in his 16th consecutive Derby ride, starts from the same No. 2 slot that sent Tim Tam to victory in 1958. Odds now have Damascus as the 2-1 favorite.

Perne L. Grissom's second try in the run for the roses, Dr. Isby, goes from the No. 3 gate which hasn't produced a winner for 25 years. Bill Hartack will be aboard, seeking his fifth Derby victory in eight rides.

Diplomat Way, Harvey Peltier's surprise winner in the Blue Grass Stakes, will start as No. 4, the position that sent Decidedly to victory in 1962. That was the year after Diplomat Way's rider, John Sellers, won his Derby on Carry Back.

Barbs Delight, owned by a trio of young Lexington horsemen, goes from gate No. 5, without a winner since Count Fleet and Johnny Longden turned the trick in 1943.

Wheatley Stable's Successor, the juvenile champion of 1966 who is still looking for his first win of 1967, starts as No. 6, which had its last winner in 1957 when Iron Liege nipped Gallant Man.

Proud Clarion, Darby Dan Farm's effort for two Derby victories in as many tries, will start from No. 7, last a winner in 1964 when Hartack got his fourth astride Northern Dancer.

Outside Dawn Glory, who will be wearing the number carried by both Lucky Debonair in 1965 and Kauai King last year, will be Field Master, seeking the first victory for No. 9 since Venetian Way in 1960.

Gentleman James, Michael Phipps' first entry in the Derby, will start from the same No. 10 gate that Dark Star left in his smashing defeat of Native Dancer in 1953.

Outside of Freeman Keyes' Lightning Orphan will be Second Encounter, wearing the same No. 12 that Hoop Jr. carried in 1945 and starting from the No. 12 gate that held Kauai King last year when addition of a mutuel field garbled saddle cloth numbers and post positions.

Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail will leave from Jet Pilot's No. 13 gate with Charles F. Parker's Ask The Fare going from the same No. 14 position that Carry Back had.

If all 14 start in the 4:30 p.m., EST, Derby, the race will gross $162,200 and hand the winner $119,700 for about two minutes work.

The 93rd Derby will be televised (CBS) from 4-5 p.m., EST, and broadcast by radio (CBS) from 4:15-4:45.

SEMO Thinclads Travel To Washington University

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State track team will wind up its road schedule Saturday, meeting Washington University at St. Louis Saturday. The Indians will be looking for their fifth dual meet win against only two losses.

The Southeast tracksters recently overwhelmed a Harding team noted for its fine distance men. Freshman pole-vaulter Dwain Bridges of Granite City, Ill., also got into the act, vaulting to a new school record of 14'9".

Indian trackmen have excelled in other events this season, with soph Terry Coff of St. Louis tossing the shot a record distance of 53'9". Senior record-holder Gene McClellan, also of St. Louis, has a career-best in the javelin throw with 209'.

In the high jump, Curtis Williams of Cape Girardeau has come within one-fourth inch of his own record of 6'8 3/4". In the 100-yard dash, Walt Smallwood of Webster Groves has tied his old record of 9.7.

The Indians will host the MIAA outdoor meet, to be held here May 12-13.

Pirates Rally To Beat LA; Three Way Tie For Second In NL

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Hart may be the biggest Met fan since Casey Stangel. Not for what the Mets do to the opposition. Which isn't much. For what he does to them.

And what he does to the Mets is amazin', absolutely amazin'.

"I can't explain it," the San Francisco Giants' third baseman said. "I just go up there swinging."

Whatever the cause, if Hart could play all his games against the Mets he'd probably break all of baseball's most cherished records.

He had a homer and scored twice Thursday night in the Giants' 3-1 victory over the Mets, boosting his season average against New York to .400.

But that isn't surprising. Last season he hit .415 against the Mets, collecting nine of his 33 homers and 20 of his 93 runs batted in. The season before, eight of his 23 homers came off Met pitching.

Two of his three homers this year have been against the Mets. The ninth-inning solo shot Thursday clinched it for the Giants, ho had to survive a mild Met threat in the eighth.

Pittsburgh rallied for a seven-run seventh inning and whipped Los Angeles 9-3 while Houston took Philadelphia 4-1 in the only other major league games played. Chicago at Atlanta in the National League was rained out. There were no games scheduled in the American League.

Hart started it against the Mets' Don Cardwell—who allowed only four hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh—with a walk in the second. Singles by Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes got one run.

The Mets tied it against Mike McCormick in the fourth, but the Giants went to 2-1 in the sixth on a double by Jesus Alou, a ground out and Willie Mays' ground single up the middle.

McCormick, who had a three-hitter going into the eighth, got into a jam with two pinch singles after one was out. Frank Linzy came on, got the next man to ground into an inning-ending double play and retired New York in order in the ninth.

The Pirates vaulted into second place, tied with St. Louis and Atlanta, two games back of idle Cincinnati, on the strength of their comeback victory against the Dodgers. Maury Wills was the big gun against his old Dodger mates with two singles and a double .

!!HOOKY!!

WHATEVER happened to the old American tradition of playing hooky to go fishing?

Remember the days when a lazy afternoon on the crick bank with a cane pole and gob of worms was far more important than geography. . . .science. . . .or math? When the smell of damp willows excited the nostrils more than chalk dust in a drowsy classroom? And the occasional flirtations of Mr. Whiskers whetted a guy's senses quicker than the flick of pigtails at the desk just ahead?

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

A lot of things have changed over the years. These days many youngsters know of piscatorial adventures only through the pages of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn.

Opening Day used to be the day in spring, schools in many parts of the land simply made the best of a bad thing and released all and sundry to play their various degrees of Calcutta skill upon local fish populations. This acceptance of opening day hooky relieved the pressures which spring imposed on school boys.

Today's school kids aren't so lucky . . .Each single day of school seems to have more importance than in bygone eras and fishing is depreciated. It is suggested, in other words, that the youngster is better off staying in school.

THINK A MINUTE!

Maybe so, but the thought has occurred to many ex-hooky players that the one day a year he spent at the old crick or pond each year did him more good than it did him harm.

STICK-IN-THE-MUD: REPRISE

Damascus Derby Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The betting public probably will give its main support to Damascus in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, but longshot Dawn Glory will be in a kind of favorite's role, too.

The colt who brought his Puerto Rican owners to the world's most glamorous horse race in their first fling at the sport will be carrying saddle cloth No. 8. That's the one that crossed the finish line first the past two years.

Every post position has been a winner at one time or another in the 92 Derbys, but for several it has been 25 years or more.

And for at least one, Lightning Orphan, the last win for post position No. 11 could be more than slightly prophetic.

It was in 1933 that Brokers Tip and Head Play roared down the home stretch while their riders flailed at eacn other with their whips in the only violent roughhouse in Derby history.

Since the invention of the film patrol, jockeys have avoided such tactics.

Civil rights leaders have threatened to disrupt this year's Derby and have hinted demonstrators might spread to the track.

Going from the inside post position that produced its last winner, Chateaugay, in 1963, will be Louis Rowan's Ruken, winner of his last three starts and victor in the Santa Anita Derby.

Mrs. Edith Bancroft's Damascus, carrying Bill Shoemaker in his 16th consecutive Derby ride, starts from the same No. 2 slot that sent Tim Tam to victory in 1958. Odds now have Damascus as the 2-1 favorite.

Perne L. Grissom's second try in the run for the roses, Dr. Isby, goes from the No. 3 gate which hasn't produced a winner for 25 years. Bill Hartack will be aboard, seeking his fifth Derby victory in eight rides.

Diplomat Way, Harvey Peltier's surprise winner in the Blue Grass Stakes, will start as No. 4, the position that sent Decidedly to victory in 1962.

That was the year after Diplomat Way's rider, John Sellers, won his Derby on Carry Back.

Barbs Delight, owned by a trio of young Lexington horsemen, goes from gate No. 5, without a winner since Count Fleet and Johnny Longden turned the trick in 1943.

Wheatley Stable's Successor, the juvenile champion of 1966 who is still looking for his first win of 1967, starts as No. 6, which had its last winner in 1957 when Iron Liege nipped Gallant Man.

Proud Clarion, Darby Dan Farm's effort for two Derby victories in as many tries, will start from No. 7, last a winner in 1964 when Hartack got his fourth astride Northern Dancer.

Outside Dawn Glory, who will be wearing the number carried by both Lucky Debonair in 1965 and Kauai King last year, will be Field Master, seeking the first victory for No. 9 since Venetian Way in 1960.

Gentleman James, Michael Phipps' first entry in the Derby, will start from the same No. 10 gate that Dark Star left in his smashing defeat of Native Dancer in 1953.

Outside of Freeman Keyes' Lightning Orphan will be Second Encounter, wearing the same No. 12 that Hoop Jr. carried in 1945 and starting from the No. 12 gate that held Kauai King last year when addition of a mutuel field garbled saddle cloth numbers and post positions.

Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail will leave from Jet Pilot's No. 13 gate with Charles F. Parker's Ask The Fare going from the same No. 14 position that Carry Back had.

If all 14 start in the 4:30 p.m., EST, Derby, the race will gross $162,200 and hand the winner $119,700 for about two minutes work.

The 93rd Derby will be televised (CBS) from 4-5 p.m., EST, and broadcast by radio (CBS) from 4:15-4:45.

SEMO Thinclads Travel To Washington University

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State track team will wind up its road schedule Saturday, meeting Washington University at St. Louis Saturday. The Indians will be looking for their fifth dual meet win against only two losses.

The Southeast tracksters recently overwhelmed a Harding team noted for its fine distance men. Sophomore miler Bill Wirtz of Overland turned in his finest performance in setting a school record of 4:13.7. Freshman pole-vaulter Dwain Bridges of Granite City, Ill., also got into the act, vaulting to a new school record of 14'9".

Indian trackmen have excelled in other events this season, with soph Terry Coff of St. Louis tossing the shot a record distance of 53'9". Senior record-holder Gene McClellan, also of St. Louis, has a career-best in the javelin throw with 209'.

In the high jump, Curtis Williams of Cape Girardeau has come within one-fourth inch of his own record of 6'8 3/4". In the 100-yard dash, Walt Smallwood of Webster Groves has tied his old record of 9.7.

The Indians will host the MIAA outdoor meet, to be held here May 12-13.

Pirates Rally To Beat LA; Three Way Tie For Second In NL

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Hart may be the biggest Met fan since Casey Stangel. Not for what the Mets do to the opposition. Which isn't much. For what he does to them.

And what he does to the Mets is amazin', absolutely amazin'.

"I can't explain it," the San Francisco Giants' third baseman said. "I just go up there swinging."

Whatever the cause, if Hart could play all his games against the Mets he'd probably break all of baseball's most cherished records.

He had a homer and scored twice Thursday night in the Giants' 3-1 victory over the Mets, boosting his season average against New York to .400.

But that isn't surprising. Last season he hit .415 against the Mets, collecting nine of his 33 homers and 20 of his 93 runs batted in. The season before, eight of his 23 homers came off Met pitching.

Two of his three homers this year have been against the Mets. The ninth-inning solo shot Thursday clinched it for the Giants, ho had to survive a mild Met threat in the eighth.

Pittsburgh rallied for a seven-run seventh inning and whipped Los Angeles 9-3 while Houston took Philadelphia 4-1 in the only other major league games played. Chicago at Atlanta in the National League was rained out. There were no games scheduled in the American League.

Hart started it against the Mets' Don Cardwell—who allowed only four hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh—with a walk in the second. Singles by Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes got one run.

The Mets tied it against Mike McCormick in the fourth, but the Giants went to 2-1 in the sixth on a double by Jesus Alou, a ground out and Willie Mays' ground single up the middle.

McCormick, who had a three-hitter going into the eighth, got into a jam with two pinch singles after one was out. Frank Linzy came on, got the next man to ground into an inning-ending double play and retired New York in order in the ninth.

The Pirates vaulted into second place, tied with St. Louis and Atlanta, two games back of idle Cincinnati, on the strength of their comeback victory against the Dodgers. Maury Wills was the big gun against his old Dodger mates with two singles and a double.

!!HOOKY!!

WHATEVER happened to the old American tradition of playing hooky to go fishing?

Remember the days when a lazy afternoon on the crick bank with a cane pole and gob of worms was far more important than geography. . . .science. . . .or math? When the smell of damp willows excited the nostrils more than chalk dust in a drowsy classroom? And the occasional flirtations of Mr. Whiskers whetted a guy's senses quicker than the flick of pigtails at the desk just ahead?

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

A lot of things have changed over the years. These days many youngsters know of piscatorial adventures only through the pages of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn.

Opening Day used to be the day in spring, schools in many parts of the land simply made the best of a bad thing and released all and sundry to play their various degrees of Calcutta skill upon local fish populations. This acceptance of opening day hooky relieved the pressures which spring imposed on school boys.

Today's school kids aren't so lucky . . .Each single day of school seems to have more importance than in bygone eras and fishing is depreciated. It is suggested, in other words, that the youngster is better off staying in school.

THINK A MINUTE!

Maybe so, but the thought has occurred to many ex-hooky players that the one day a year he spent at the old crick or pond each year did him more good than it did him harm.

Still, things have changed and the chance of school officialdom winking at a high incidence of hooky on the first. . .or any day of the fishing season is slight. So much for tradition.

About all a father can offer as a substitute for the day of hooky is a suggestion that he and junior get to their favorite fishing spot on weekends.

It won't be quite as much fun for the lad, but if he's imaginative, he can always pretend it's a school day.

We know that many school officials would like to take that day of hooky playing along with the student.....I would.

THE CONNALLY ACT

Published announcements state that the National Council of Churches will start a "drive to repeal the so - called Connally Act." This undoubtedly refers to the resolution providing for the adherence of the United States to the World Court of the United Nations. The Connally resolution provides that our country cannot be brought before the World Court unless our government gives prior consent to the action. It is not generally known that no communist nation adheres to the World Court, yet every communist nation may have one of its nationals elected to serve as a judge on that court. There are 15 judges, and 9 constitute a quorum. In case there were 9 judges sitting, 5 could render a decision. It might well happen that all five would be communists.

What would happen to our country if we were tried by a World Court having a majority of communist judges? Suppose the USSR should claim Alaska, or Mexico should claim the southwestern part of our country. These territories formerly belonged to Russia and Mexico. Communist judges would of course authorize their return. Suppose we were hauled before the court charged with aggression in Vietnam. Suppose China brought an action in the World Court for the return of Taiwan, accusing the United States of seizing that portion of her territory. As long as we have the Connally resolution, we need not submit such cases to the jurisdiction of the World Court. But if that resolution is repealed, we would be the victim of the court's decision, not only in those cases, but in any other case that our enemies chose to bring against us.

If the Connally resolution is repealed, our country might well be dismembered and our sovereignty destroyed. The maintenance of that resolution is essential to the safety of the United States of America and its people.

THE BLUSHING BRIDE

They tell of the blushing bride
Who to the altar goes,
Down the aisles of the church
Between the friend - filled rows,
There's Billy whom she motored with
And Bob with whom she swam;
There's Jack, she used to golf with him--
And Steve who called her "lamb."
There's Ted, the football man she owned
And Dan of tennis days,
There's Herbert too, and blonde Eugene
They took her to the plays;
And there is Harry, high school beau,
With whom she used to mush
No wonder she's a blushing bride,
Ye Gods! She ought to blush.

Researcher Claims Studies Link Smoking to Cancer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cancer can be induced in dogs by training them to smoke cigarettes, and the rate of growth parallels that of cancer in humans who smoke, a researcher says.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach called the results of his research "pathological evidence" that cigarette smoking causes cancer.

The tobacco industry maintains that only statistical, rather than pathological, proof has been offered linking cigarettes to cancer.

Auerbach, senior medical investigator at the Veterans Administration hospital at East Orange, N.J., told of his findings Wednesday at the American Cancer Society's 1967 scientific meeting.

"It shows without question that cigarette smoking in dogs produces exactly the same changes as in humans," Auerbach said.

In his 14-month study he used 10 beagles as a control group for a second group of 10 beagles which he taught to smoke up to 12 cigarettes a day.

He performed a tracheotomy and attached to each dog's trachea a tube connected to a smoking machine outside its pen. After the first day, the dogs smoked on their own, Auerbach said.

Autopsies showed the nonsmokers had no physical disabilities. The smoking dogs began to die of varying ailments after the first two weeks until five of the 10 smokers had died after 412 days, Auerbach said.

Autopsies showed the dogs who died first had slight changes in the tissue around the lungs and those who died or were killed during the last days of the research had advanced cancer cells lining the entire tract, he said.

Auerbach compared the stages of advancing cancer with tissue taken from humans who had been light, moderate or heavy smokers and found the profiles parallel, he said.

A new study began Tuesday, Auerbach said, using 96 dogs to seek to learn the differences between smoking filter and nonfilter cigarettes and the length of time needed for smoke-damaged tissue to be repaired once smoking stops.

It was partly because of Auerbach's earlier research that the cancer society concluded that cigarette smoking was a principal cause of cancer.

Auerbach said the new research may indicate if development of "a safe cigarette" is possible.

Medieval European craft guilds were usually composed of three classes of members: the masters, journeymen and apprentices. The purpose of the guild was to maintain the quality of consumer goods, educate new members of the profession, regulate wages and prices, and form a monopoly of the town market against the intrusion of outsiders. In time, The World Almanac research finds, many of the guilds also became social and benefit clubs that produced plays, held feasts and colorful parades, and generally looked after the needs of their members.

Cotton Institute Applies For Marketing Role

MEMPHIS -- The newly organized Cotton Producers Institute is applying to the Cotton Board for a contract to develop and conduct an expanded market development program for cotton as authorized under the cotton research and promotion order.

This would implement the plan approved by growers in a referendum last December providing for uniform assessment of $1 per bale for research and promotion.

The trustees, who convened here, had been selected earlier by certified cotton producer organizations in each state. They unanimously agreed to continue to utilize the staff and services of the National Cotton Council to carry out 1967 activities and develop plans for 1968.

Authority was granted also for the officers and executive committee to work with a special study committee of the council in determining recommendations for future operations.

Russell Giffen, Fresno, Calif., was elected president of the board of trustees, Monday, as transfer of existing CPI programs to the new Beltwide organization was effected.

Howard Alford, Lubbock, Texas, was elected vice president; C. R. Sayre, Greenwood, Miss., secretary; and William L. Lanier, Macon, Ga., treaurer.

These officers and the following will make up the executive committee: Kenneth E. Frick, Arvin, Calif.; Keith Walden, Tucson, Ariz.; H. M. (Mark) Rickman, La Mesa, N. M.

Roy Forkner, Lubbock, Texas.; Joe B. Pate, Jr., Lubbock, Texas.; Woodrow W. Hart, Sinton, Texas.; Jess G. Stratton, Clinton, Okla.

W. T. Robertson, Holly Ridge, Miss.; Harold F. Ohlendorf, Osceola, Ark.; A. L. Story, Charleston, Mo.; Paul Ransom, Monroe, La.

Hervey Evans, Jr., Laurinburg, N. C.; J. E. Mayes, Mayesville, S. C.; and P. R. Smith, Winder, Ga.

The Institute's current programs were thoroughly reviewed and opportunities for expanding research and promotion were outlined. Specific projects for 1968 will be adopted at a subsequent meeting later this year.

THE CONNALLY ACT

Published announcements state that the National Council of Chiurches will start a "drive to repeal the so - called Connally Act." This undoubtedly refers to the resolution providing for the adherence of the United States to the World Court of the United Nations. The Connally resolution provides that our country cannot be brought before the World Court unless our government gives prior consent to the action. It is not generally known that no communist nation adheres to the World Court, yet every communist nation may have one of its nationals elected to serve as a judge on that court. There are 15 judges, and 9 constitute a quorum. In case there were 9 judges sitting, 5 could render a decision. It might well happen that all five would be communists.

What would happen to our country if we were tried by a World Court having a majority of communist judges? Suppose the USSR should claim Alaska, or Mexico should claim the southwestern part of our country. These territories formerly belonged to Russia and Mexico. Communist judges would of course authorize their return. Suppose we were hauled before the court charged with aggression in Vietnam. Suppose China brought an action in the World Court for the return of Taiwan, accusing the United States of seizing that portion of her territory. As long as we have the Connally resolution, we need not submit such cases to the jurisdiction of the World Court. But if that resolution is repealed, we would be the victim of the court's decision, not only in those cases, but in any other case that our enemies chose to bring against us.

If the Connally resolution is repealed, our country might well be dismembered and our sovereignty destroyed. The maintenance of that resolution is essential to the safety of the United States of America and its people.

THE BLUSHING BRIDE

They tell of the blushing bride
Who to the altar goes,
Down the aisles of the church
Between the friend - filled rows,
There's Billy whom she motored with
And Bob with whom she swam;
There's Jack, she used to golf with him--
And Steve who called her "lamb."
There's Ted, the football man she owned
And Dan of tennis days,
There's Herbert too, and blonde Eugene
They took her to the plays;
And there is Harry, high school beau,
With whom she used to mush
No wonder she's a blushing bride,
Ye Gods! She ought to blush.

Researcher Claims Studies Link Smoking to Cancer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cancer can be induced in dogs by training them to smoke cigarettes, and the rate of growth parallels that of cancer in humans who smoke, a researcher says.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach called the results of his research "pathological evidence" that cigarette smoking causes cancer.

The tobacco industry maintains that only statistical, rather than pathological, proof has been offered linking cigarettes to cancer.

Auerbach, senior medical investigator at the Veterans Administration hospital at East Orange, N.J., told of his findings Wednesday at the American Cancer Society's 1967 scientific meeting.

"It shows without question that cigarette smoking in dogs produces exactly the same changes as in humans," Auerbach said.

In his 14-month study he used 10 beagles as a control group for a second group of 10 beagles which he taught to smoke up to 12 cigarettes a day.

He performed a tracheotomy and attached to each dog's trachea a tube connected to a smoking machine outside its pen. After the first day, the dogs smoked on their own, Auerbach said.

Autopsies showed the nonsmokers had no physical disabilities. The smoking dogs began to die of varying ailments after the first two weeks until five of the 10 smokers had died after 412 days, Auerbach said.

Autopsies showed the dogs who died first had slight changes in the tissue around the lungs and those who died or were killed during the last days of the research had advanced cancer cells lining the entire tract, he said.

Auerbach compared the stages of advancing cancer with tissue taken from humans who had been light, moderate or heavy smokers and found the profiles parallel, he said.

A new study began Tuesday, Auerbach said, using 96 dogs to seek to learn the differences between smoking filter and non-filter cigarettes and the length of time needed for smoke-damaged tissue to be repaired once smoking stops.

It was partly because of Auerbach's earlier research that the cancer society concluded that cigarette smoking was a principal cause of cancer.

Auerbach said the new research may indicate if development of "a safe cigarette" is possible.

Medieval European craft guilds were usually composed of three classes of members: the masters, journeymen and apprentices. The purpose of the guild was to maintain the quality of consumer goods, educate new members of the profession, regulate wages and prices, and form a monopoly of the town market against the intrusion of outsiders. In time, The World Almanac research finds, many of the guilds also became social and benefit clubs that produced plays, held feasts and colorful parades, and generally looked after the needs of their members.

Cotton Institute Applies For Marketing Role

MEMPHIS -- The newly organized Cotton Producers Institute is applying to the Cotton Board for a contract to develop and conduct an expanded market development program for cotton as authorized under the cotton research and promotion order.

This would implement the plan approved by growers in a referendum last December providing for uniform assessment of $1 per bale for research and promotion.

The trustees, who convened here, had been selected earlier by certified cotton producer organizations in each state. They unanimously agreed to continue to utilize the staff and services of the National Cotton Council to carry out 1967 activities and develop plans for 1968.

Authority was granted also for the officers and executive committee to work with a special study committee of the council in determining recommendations for future operations.

Russell Giffen, Fresno, Calif., was elected president of the board of trustees, Monday, as transfer of existing CPI programs to the new Beltwide organization was effected.

Howard Alford, Lubbock, Texas, was elected vice president; C. R. Sayre, Greenwood, Miss., secretary; and William L. Lanier, Macon, Ga., treaurer.

These officers and the following will make up the executive committee: Kenneth E. Frick, Arvin, Calif.; Keith Walden, Tucson, Ariz.; H. M. (Mark) Rickman, La Mesa, N. M.

Roy Forkner, Lubbock, Texas.; Joe B. Pate, Jr., Lubbock, Texas.; Woodrow W. Hart, Sinton, Texas.; Jess G. Stratton, Clinton, Okla.

W. T. Robertson, Holly Ridge, Miss.; Harold F. Ohlendorf, Osceola, Ark.; A. L. Story, Charleston, Mo.; Paul Ransom, Monroe, La.

Hervey Evans, Jr., Laurinburg, N. C.; J. E. Mayes, Mayesville, S. C.; and P. R. Smith, Winder, Ga.

The Institute's current programs were thoroughly reviewed and opportunities for expanding research and promotion were outlined. Specific projects for 1968 will be adopted at a subsequent meeting later this year.

AMONG PANELISTS who discussed motorist vision at convention of Missouri Optometric Association from left, were Jack Stapleton, chairman of Missouri State Highway Commission; Raymond I. Harris, St. Louis County coroner, and Dr. Merrill Allen, professor of optometry at Indiana University.

Night Drivers Should Be Able to See Well

CLAYTON -- Persons with only 20/40 vision should not be permitted to drive at night without eyeglasses that correct to 20/20, Dr. Merrill Allen said at a symposium on motorist vision.

Dr. Allen, professor of optometry at Indiana University and an authority on motorist vision, addressed the convention of the Missouri Optometric Association.

"It is unreasonable to expect a driver to operate a vehicle safely by day with 20/40 or less acuity. By night, no person with only 20/40 day acuity should ever be permitted to drive," he declared.

Although this may cause an outcry from many persons with 20/40 vision, he said, their vision can be corrected with eyeglasses.

Dr. Allen said studies also show that persons with color defects in their vision require twice as long to recognize and act on electric traffic signals and auto tail lights.

These persons also should not drive at night, he said. However, the color problem can be alleviated by changing the vehicle light system to green tail lights and bright orange red brake lights, he said.

He declared that tinted windshields cut down light transmission by 50 per cent, causing a hazard in night driving. About 95 per cent of the most expensive automobiles have these windshields, he said.

Noise also affects motorist vision, he said, because it affects the nervous system responsible for interpreting the image the eye transmits to the brain. This noise may come from a radio or children in the car, he added.

Jack Stapleton, chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission, said he believes painting reflectorized stripes on the center and sides of the road would be well worth the cost of $27 per mile. He noted, however, that the stripes lose their brightness in the rain.

Dr. Oscar Richards, head of the Biological Optics Research Division of American Optical Co., said the stripes tend to keep drivers four more inches away from the centerline.

St. Louis County Coroner Raymond I. Harris said of the 1000 fatality cases he has handled, he could not link a single one to glare. About 50 to 70 per cent of the fatalities involve persons under the influence of alcohol, he said.

Gains Made in M.U. Faculty

COLUMBIA -- Chancellor John W. Schwada of the University of Missouri, Columbia, said that the University is making gains in quality and quantity in faculty. He noted gains in the faculty-student ration in the last five years, gains that will continue this year, and said moreover that more classes are being taught by staff members of higher rank.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Columbia Rotary club today, the chancellor in answer to vague charges that the University is facing a "brain drain" pointed out that the faculty increase has exceeded enrollment growth on a percentage basis over the past few years.

"This growth has enabled us to strengthen our offerings in many areas," he said. "Of course we have not been able to do all that we would like toward the strengthening and expansion of existing programs. We operate with a finite budget which requires the making of many difficult choices in the allocation of funds."

On the question of "turnover," Chancellor Schwada said that the University rate has averaged less than five per cent annually over the last five years.

"Indications are that it will remain at that level this year," he said. "This rate is about equal to, or a little below, that experienced by comparable Big 8 and Big 10 universities with whom we checked."

The chancellor said that the University faculty had grown numerically from 652 in 1963 to 938 in 1966-67. Authorized resources will make it possible to add some 100 new positions for the next academic year, he said.

"We are obtaining the services of many excellent men and women, ranging from young teachers who have shown high potential to established scholars who have already proven themselves," he continued. "For example, four full professors (the top academic rank on the faculty) are leaving, but we are adding 18 at that rank.

"Virtually every divisional dean will testify that he has had the most successful year in recent history in recruiting distinguished new faculty."

The chancellor added that the University is not complacent about its progress and that he realizes "we will encounter occasional disappointments as well as successes" as we go about the undertaking of building a superior university.

Citing some figures on faculty gains and losses during the year, he said that Arts and Science will lose nine faculty members this year, but has already added 18 new teachers considered to have unusual ability; Education is losing five, but gaining 10; Engineering reports five resignations and eight replacements; the Medical School is losing three, gaining 12; and the School of Veterinary Medicine reports no losses and a gain of four new teachers. Recruiting has included faculty members from Stanford, Illinois, Florida, Southern Methodist, Michigan State, Texas, Pennsylvania, State, Rice, Purdue, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota university.

"In addition, I know at first hand that quite a number of our faculty have received and turned down attractive offers from other good universities."

SPRINGFIELD -- Three of Missouri's Federated Women's clubs were honored at the Assemblies of God Auditorium for helping young people to gain a better education.

Awards totaling $1,000 were presented to the winning clubs at the annual state federation convention here by James Bird, Missouri sales supervisor for an oil company, sponsor of the program.

First-place award of $500 went to the Art and Literature Club of Parkville, second- and third-place awards of $300 and $200 respectively were presented to the Woman's Club and Civic Association of Caruthersville and the Better Homes Club of Butler.

The cash prizes, which are used by clubs to further their education programs, are among 150 state and three national awards being made this year through the General Federation of Women's clubs and the oil company's educational program.

The Woman's Club & Civic won its award for providing educational and cultural opportunities for young people and its contributions to community fund drives. The club awarded a $500 scholarship to a student who plans a teaching career. It also sponsored a Girl's State representative, helped support the work of the community youth center and contributed funds to the Retarded Children's Center.

Now in its fifth year, the GFWC Oil Company educational program has been expanded to include three national awards totaling $5,000 in addition to the $50,000 in cash available to state winners.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Monsignor James H. Fitzpatrick, one of the new breed of activist priests, is director of The Health and Hospital Division, Catholic Charities of Brooklyn. With the sanction of his superior, Bishop McEntegart, Father Fitzpatrick conceived and started up the monumental $60 million Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens, and is a medical missionary to the sick and needy of every race and creed in one of the country's most populated urban areas.

Father Fitzpatrick believes that medicine should be taken to the people by the people. Less than 10 per cent of his undertaking is with government money.

His father, a New York fireman, died when he was 12. To get his education he worked as a detective at a race track and as a laborer on excavation projects for the Navy. His whole life as a priest has been in hospital work, which he feels is the forerunner of ecumenism.

Father Fitzpatrick says, "God created mankind for God, and God created man for man!" or as St. John said, "Little children love one another."

The Cornerstone of the Church

And we should like to have you with us.

AMONG PANELISTS who discussed motorist vision at convention of Missouri Optometric Association from left, were Jack Stapleton, chairman of Missouri State Highway Commission; Raymond I. Harris, St. Louis County coroner, and Dr. Merrill Allen, professor of optometry at Indiana University.

Night Drivers Should Be Able to See Well

CLAYTON -- Persons with only 20/40 vision should not be permitted to drive at night without eyeglasses that correct to 20/20, Dr. Merrill Allen said at a symposium on motorist vision.

Dr. Allen, professor of optometry at Indiana University and an authority on motorist vision, addressed the convention of the Missouri Optometric Association.

"It is unreasonable to expect a driver to operate a vehicle safely by day with 20/40 or less acuity. By night, no person with only 20/40 day acuity should ever be permitted to drive," he declared.

Although this may cause an outcry from many persons with 20/40 vision, he said, their vision can be corrected with eyeglasses.

Dr. Allen said studies also show that persons with color defects in their vision require twice as long to recognize and act on electric traffic signals and auto tail lights.

These persons also should not drive at night, he said. However, the color problem can be alleviated by changing the vehicle light system to green tail lights and bright orange red brake lights, he said.

He declared that tinted windshields cut down light transmission by 50 per cent, causing a hazard in night driving. About 95 per cent of the most expensive automobiles have these windshields, he said.

Noise also affects motorist vision, he said, because it affects the nervous system responsible for interpreting the image the eye transmits to the brain. This noise may come from a radio or children in the car, he added.

Jack Stapleton, chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission, said he believes painting reflectorized stripes on the center and sides of the road would be well worth the cost of $27 per mile. He noted, however, that the stripes lose their brightness in the rain.

Dr. Oscar Richards, head of the Biological Optics Research Division of American Optical Co., said the stripes tend to keep drivers four more inches away from the centerline.

St. Louis County Coroner Raymond I. Harris said of the 1000 fatality cases he has handled, he could not link a single one to glare. About 50 to 70 per cent of the fatalities involve persons under the influence of alcohol, he said.

Gains Made in M.U. Faculty

COLUMBIA -- Chancellor John W. Schwada of the University of Missouri, Columbia, said that the University is making gains in quality and quantity in faculty. He noted gains in the faculty-student ration in the last five years, gains that will continue this year, and said moreover that more classes are being taught by staff members of higher rank.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Columbia Rotary club today, the chancellor in answer to vague charges that the University is facing a "brain drain" pointed out that the faculty increase has exceeded enrollment growth on a percentage basis over the past few years.

"This growth has enabled us to strengthen our offerings in many areas," he said. "Of course we have not been able to do all that we would like toward the strengthening and expansion of existing programs. We operate with a finite budget which requires the making of many difficult choices in the allocation of funds."

On the question of "turnover," Chancellor Schwada said that the University rate has averaged less than five per cent annually over the last five years.

"Indications are that it will remain at that level this year," he said. "This rate is about equal to, or a little below, that experienced by comparable Big 8 and Big 10 universities with whom we checked."

The chancellor said that the University faculty had grown numerically from 652 in 1963 to 938 in 1966-67. Authorized resources will make it possible to add some 100 new positions for the next academic year, he said.

"We are obtaining the services of many excellent men and women, ranging from young teachers who have shown high potential to established scholars who have already proven themselves," he continued. "For example, four full professors (the top academic rank on the faculty) are leaving, but we are adding 18 at that rank.

"Virtually every divisional dean will testify that he has had the most successful year in recent history in recruiting distinguished new faculty."

The chancellor added that the University is not complacent about its progress and that he realizes "we will encounter occasional disappointments as well as successes" as we go about the undertaking of building a superior university.

Citing some figures on faculty gains and losses during the year, he said that Arts and Science will lose nine faculty members this year, but has already added 18 new teachers considered to have unusual ability; Education is losing five, but gaining 10; Engineering reports five resignations and eight replacements; the Medical School is losing three, gaining 12; and the School of Veterinary Medicine reports no losses and a gain of four new teachers. Recruiting has included faculty members from Stanford, Illinois, Florida, Southern Methodist, Michigan State, Texas, Pennsylvania, State, Rice, Purdue, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota university.

"In addition, I know at first hand that quite a number of our faculty have received and turned down attractive offers from other good universities."

The general relief roll had 179 cases with 202 persons receiving $12,268 or $68.54 per case and $60.73 per person.

TV Show Mortality Rate High This Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1966-67 television season is history, its races run, its victors hailed. Until the reruns started it was a pretty rough time with an extraordinarily high mortality rate for new shows.

When the season started in September, 34 new series were bidding for favor in the evening schedules of the three major networks. By midseason, 12 already had been canceled and replaced. Among the early dropouts were some illustrious show business names -- Garry Moore, Milton Berle, Jean Arthur and Tammy Grimes among them.

By next September, only nine of the original 1966 starters will have survived. Several which will disappear over the summer were permitted to totter along only because the networks had nothing better with which to replace them.

The single most interesting fact is that the well-established old-timers continued to lead the popularity lists. They were "Bonanza," Red Skelton, Lucy, Jackie Gleason and "Beverly Hillbillies," to mention a few. Not a single new show climbed into the season's top ten.

Two new ones, "Family Affair" and "Rat Patrol" managed to get into the top 20, and two midseason replacements, "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" and a new "Dragnet" series also have done well.

Viewers responded in impressive numbers to one-shot shows in a range from the Academy Awards show and Bob Hope's Christmas show-perennial hits —to variety hours starring such stars as Dick Van Dyke, Lucille Ball and Jim Nabors.

The networks were impressed. All three are promissing more specials than ever next season.

There were some interesting success stories. Jackie Gleason's show, which had fallen into something of a slump, pulled itself up by a series of musicals built around the old "Honeymooners" shows and became one of the most popular shows on the air.

"Mission Impossible," an action-adventure series was drooping miserably in a Saturday evening spot behind the wobbly "Pistols 'n' Petticoats." Then the network switched the positions of the shows and the program shot up into the upper third of the popularity list.

THE PRACTICE OF PROGRESS

Less than 200 years ago in Europe, architects and builders -- as they checked the progress of their construction jobs -- often gave on-the-spot instructions to foremen in charge of groups of building craftsmen. Perhaps it was the pitch of the roof which was not quite right. . . or the quality of the tile being used. Just as in today's world of construction, old-time builders did their best to please their patron's every wish.

At the beginning of the 19th century, construction men began more independently to try to develop new methods to meet new and varied demands from more people, rather than merely accepting what might been handed down from father to son as "correct." This was the beginning of the age of scientific analysis and research into many new branches of knowledge, including building techniques. From these early stirrings of independent thought and trial and error have blossomed, in five short generations, the mighty outpourings of improved materials and methods that so well meet the challenge of today's diversified building needs.

THE PROBLEM

'DON'T give it a thought,'
you said,
And I knew you meant
A thought of fear or doubt,
Or of discontent.

So I gave it thoughts of hope
And of quietude.
I gave it thoughts of love--
And they worked for good.

TV Show Mortality Rate High This Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1966-67 television season is history, its races run, its victors hailed. Until the reruns started it was a pretty rough time with an extraordinarily high mortality rate for new shows.

When the season started in September, 34 new series were bidding for favor in the evening schedules of the three major networks. By midseason, 12 already had been canceled and replaced. Among the early dropouts were some illustrious show business names -- Garry Moore, Milton Berle, Jean Arthur and Tammy Grimes among them.

By next September, only nine of the original 1966 starters will have survived. Several which will disappear over the summer were permitted to totter along only because the networks had nothing better with which to replace them.

The single most interesting fact is that the well-established old-timers continued to lead the popularity lists. They were "Bonanza," Red Skelton, Lucy, Jackie Gleason and "Beverly Hillbillies," to mention a few. Not a single new show climbed into the season's top ten.

Two new ones, "Family Affair" and "Rat Patrol" managed to get into the top 20, and two midseason replacements, "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" and a new "Dragnet" series also have done well.

Viewers responded in impressive numbers to one-shot shows in a range from the Academy Awards show and Bob Hope's Christmas show-perennial hits —to variety hours starring such stars as Dick Van Dyke, Lucille Ball and Jim Nabors.

The networks were impressed. All three are promissing more specials than ever next season.

There were some interesting success stories. Jackie Gleason's show, which had fallen into something of a slump, pulled itself up by a series of musicals built around the old "Honeymooners" shows and became one of the most popular shows on the air.

"Mission Impossible," an action-adventure series was drooping miserably in a Saturday evening spot behind the wobbly "Pistols 'n' Petticoats." Then the network switched the positions of the shows and the program shot up into the upper third of the popularity list.

THE PRACTICE OF PROGRESS

Less than 200 years ago in Europe, architects and builders -- as they checked the progress of their construction jobs -- often gave on - the -spot instructions to foremen in charge of groups of building craftsmen. Perhaps it was the pitch of the roof which was not quite right. . . or the quality of the tile being used. Just as in today's world of construction, old - time builders did their best to please their patron's every wish.

At the beginning of the 19th century, construction men began more independently to try to develop new methods to meet new and varied demands from more people, rather than merely accepting what might been handed down from father to son as "correct." This was the beginning of the age of scientific analysis and research into many new branches of knowledge, including building techniques. From these early stirrings of independent thought and trial and error have blossomed, in five short generations, the mighty outpourings of improved materials and methods that so well meet the challenge of today's diversified building needs.

THE PROBLEM

'DON'T give it a thought,'
you said,
And I knew you meant
A thought of fear or doubt,
Or of discontent.

So I gave it thoughts of hope
And of quietude.
I gave it thoughts of love--
And they worked for good.

BULLDOG BARKER

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Barker Staff Feels Elation As Year's End Approaches

GRADUATION NEARS and everyone begins to make plans for the summer and fall. Barker staffers have only one more issue to follow this, and the newspaper tasks for this year will be over.

This is the 27th issue of the Bulldog Barker, and as it goes to press the staff feels the closeness of graduation and the twinge of dismay because this is nearing the close of their high school journalism career.

Since the staff printed its first newspaper on September 16, each member of the staff has undergone various trials.

Staff devoted Thursday afternoons for the work at the printers, all the mistakes they made throughout the year seem routine as the staff looks back on the may days of work spent in preparation of this newspaper for the students and faculty.

Pressure of completing stories on time, having to rewrite and completely alter some of them, have been felt since the first working day of the journalism class.

When the newspaper is completed and ready for press, the yearbook deadline must be met. Journalism has been a never-ending job this year, but the reward is the pleasure of seeing the finished product on Friday afternoon.

Barker results can be seen every Friday, but the highlight of the year for the staffers will be the arrival of the 1965 Growlers in Aguust. This event will make all the work and problems worthwhile.

Next year's group of journalists will find the same problems and frustrations facing them in the fall. They will believe it impossible to meet all the deadlines in a short time, but they, too, will soon learn the routine.

Staffers hope that the future journalists will derive as much benefit and satisfaction from their journalism work as they have.

Sophs, Juniors Take Note Of College Admission Tests

NOW IS THE TIME for underclassmen to begin taking action regarding admission to college.

A majority of college-bound students mistakenly believe that by browsing through a few catalogues, filling out a few forms, and taking a few tests they can smoothly make the transition from high school to college.

A conference with the counselor, early in the student's high school career, is a good beginning.

The counselor will probably recommend that the student take the Premliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test or the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test and possibly both in his junior year.

Scores from these two tests give the student an idea of how he compares scholastically with his peers throughout the nation.

Counselors will also recommend that the student become familiar with the large collection of the most recent catalogues from colleges and universities in all parts of the country.

Most colleges require either the American College Test of the Scholastic Aptitude Test plus three of the CEEB Achievement Tests.

Most of these achievement tests are intended to be taken in the senior year, but others cover subjects usually offered for only one year.

Some students should be aware that many colleges have "early admission" and "early decision" programs for outstanding applicants.

These programs usually require that applications and necessary test scores be filed by the end of the student's junior year.

Students must not wait until their senior year to begin filing college and scholarship applications.

With the assistance of a counselor, he can plan far in advance and he may know the security of having been accepted by the school of his choice, months in advance of graduation.

Senior Joe Schuhart Has Boat Of The Week

"Car of the Week" gives in to spring this week and features a boat instead of a car. The boat belongs to Joe Schuchart and his brother Emil. Joe is an active senior and a football letterman. His brother is a former graduate of Sikeston high school and now a student in the University of Missouri.

Joe's boat is a seventeen foot "Blackhawk Runabout" terestingly enough Blackhawk boats were manufactured in Sikeston. The boats of fiberglass construction and has a semi-vee hull that not only provides good cornering but high speed.

The Blackhawk is powered by a 90 horsepower Johnson outboard. This is an 89 cubic inch V-4 engine with a four barrel carb. When Joe and his brother purchased the boat, it had a 40-horsepower Johnson on which it was traded in 1965 for the 90. Joe either got a fast motor or he had a fast boat because his rig is very fast for the horsepower and size.

Those who have knowledge of boats and motors will know that of the major brands Johnson and Evinrude are usually noted for dependability more than speed. Joe's rig has outrun more than a few 100 and 110 horsepower Mercurys on boats of equal size. This is really outstanding since Mercury outboards are considered very fast motors.

Joe's boat has done 40 miles per hour plus with three people and full gas tanks aboard.

Joe's boat has many other features too. Some of these are a convertible top, built in 12 gallon gas tank, folding windshield, running lights, spotlight, dual electric horns and single lever gearshift control. One of the more prominent features is the dashboard. On it are a cigarette lighter, 24-hour rally clock, fuel guage, perature gauge, electric choke control and light and horn controls.

Students Receive Certificates Of Merit

JUNIOR MARY JANE COPE is the recipient of the merit award from Bruce Lewis, member of the Board of Education.

Are To Speak At Graduation

Students Select Theme For Commencement Introductions, May 26

Nine speakers have been chosen to participate in the commencement program on Friday, May 26.

In order of the amount of votes received from the judges the speakers will be Vicki Schindler, Charles Stamp, Tom Phillips, Brian Underwood, Steve Spear, Darla Scoles, Sally Faulkner, Mary Anne Bruce and Doris Ray.

These seniors will choose a theme for the program and the addresses will coincide with this theme.

Judges were Robert Walker, director of speech activities; Mrs. Jack Yount, sponsor of the senior class; Mrs. Catherine Matthews, chairman of the social studies department and Lawrence Aeschlimann, chairman of the English department.

Douglas Morrison and Jerry Smithers, seniors in Southeast Missouri State College and student teachers in Sikeston high school, were also judges.

Gary Grant, highest ranking junior in National Forensic League, represented the students as judge.

Speakers will have specific duties, consisting of main speeches, prayer, and introductions according to their rank on the list of nine.

Principal speakers will select a theme consisting of four parts. Each address will be five minutes in length.

Introductions will be made for the president of the board of education, Dr. A. D. Martin, Supt. Lynn Twitty, and Principal Roger Sherman.

Benediction and invocation will also be given by the students.

Seniors gave a two-minute address appropriate for commencement, and it was recorded on a tape. Judges listened to the tape and rated the students with special notice given to voice quality and content.

Staff Works To Finish Yearbook Pages

Great surprises are in store for all the persons who purchased a '67 Growler. It will be a book of priceless memories and countless experiences.

Growler this year will feature colored end sheets, tinted pages, and a uniquely decorative cover. Approximately three-fourths of the pages are complete and have been shipped to the Paragon Press in Montgomery, Ala.

Senior, junior, and sophomore individual pages have been alphabetized and identified.

Group pictures of the '67 football and basketball squads have been completed.

Miss Sikeston and high school royalty pages have been designed and sent to the publisher. Outstanding students from all three classes have had their pictures snapped in unusual background settings and these pages are finished.

Group pictures of specific organizations have been taken. Sophomore and junior class officers pages are finished, and the senior officers will be taken shortly.

Journalism students will work on into the summer after school has been dismissed in order to make the Growler "just what the students want."

Approximately 30 pages, consisting of track, baseball, graduation, NFL, FHA, will be completed andmailed withinthe next few weeks.

Events Mark School End; On May 26

Displays of the year's work will be shown Monday evening, May 15, from 6:30 - 8 o'clock at the annual open house.

Pop concert of the Sikeston high school late division band will immediately follow the exhibitions.

Seating for the public will be on the bleachers set up in front of the outdoor stage for the band concert.

All the athletes of Sikeston high school will be treated to the "all-sports chicken fry" on Tuesday evening, May 16, in the high school cafeteria.

Annual Sikeston high school awards assembly is scheduled for Wednesday, May 17, at 2:30, and the last hour will be dropped.

Various awards will be published in the Barker that will be distributed on Friday, May 19, the senior edition.

Seniors will practice for the baccalaureate services on Friday, May 19, and the services will be Sunday evening, May 21.

Music department will present a musical review on Monday evening, May 22, for the public. Choir, band and orchestra will combine their talents in the finale, "March of Freedom."

Seniors will check in books on Wednesday, May 24.

Gary Wiss To Attend Convention

Gary will also be a participant in the summer workshop of the councils at the University of Missouri, June 12-15.

Later on in the summer he will go to Pennsylvania to take part in the national conference.

Gary represented the high school on the sophomore pilgrimate to jefferson City last year.

He was president of the sophomore class, and he is now the junior class president.

Gary has been a member of the student council representing his homeroom for the past two years.

He was the top scorer on Sikeston's basketball squad this past year, and he played baseball and was a member of the team the lasttwo years in high school.

"Hearts that are delicate and and kind and tongues that are neither --- these make the finest company in the world."

Wayne Limbaugh Receives Numerous Athletic Honors

Senior Wayne Limbaugh has proved in his high school career to be one of the most active and outstanding athletes in school.

He participated in football, basketball, and baseball, winning recognition in each sport.

Wayne lettered three years in football. He was third-string quarterback during his sophomore year, second-string quarterback his junior year, and first - string quarterback his senior year.

During the past gridiron season Wayne scored more points than any other football player in both the Northern and Southern Divisions.

He was voted All-Conference first - string quarterback and awarded a trophy for scoring the most points in the Northern Division.

Wayne scored 14 touchdowns (new school record) and ended the season with a total of 84 points. He also set a school record by carrying the ball 78 times for a total of 813 yards.

Bulldogs ended the season with a 7-1-1 record, finishing second in the conference.

Wayne was starting guard for the Bulldogs during the basketball season, and he scored 205 points. He also won honorable mention All-Conference honors and lettered during his junior year.

Wayne lettered the past three years in baseball, and he played the shortstop position for the Bulldogs.

Wayne played with the baseballers last year during the sub-district, district, sectional and regional championships before they lost in the state competition.

He has hopes to attend Southeast Missouri State College or Murray State next year.

Nine Seniors

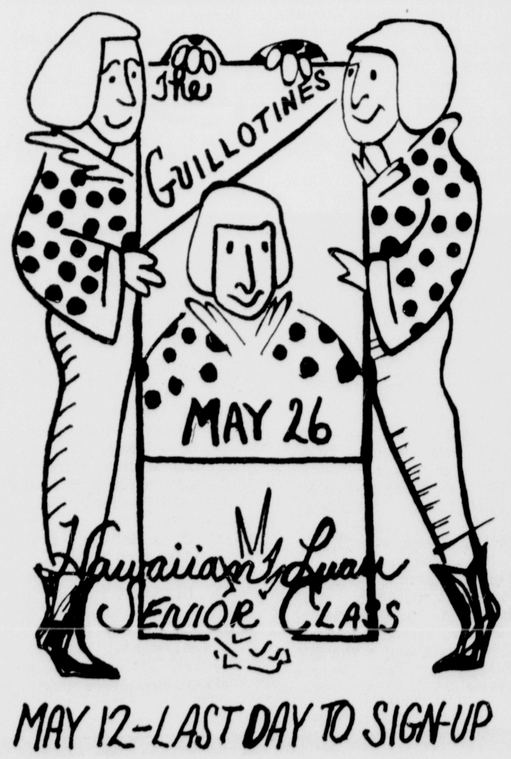
Senior Girls Receive Invite For Breakfast

Reception breakfast for senior girls is to be held next Tuesday morning.

All senior girls who are planning to attend college in the fall are cordially invited to attend this breakfast given by the American Association of University Women.

In previous years, the American Association of University Women have sponsored various different types of entertainment in honor of senior girls. They have given luncheons, teas and ordinary "jam sessions."

Mrs. Mildred Robinson is the president of this organization.



MAY 12-LAST DAY TO SIGN-UP

Eight Students Represent FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America are holding their state convention at Lindbergh high school in St. Louis today and tomorrow.

Competition among students will take place today and tomorrow.

Several students left for St. Louis yesterday with Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, sponsor of the local FBLA, to organize business displays and make accomodations in motels for students from all over the state.

Approximately 500 students are expected to participate in the convention.

Janet Butrum, Peggy Tanner and Mike Andrews have entered the Mr. and Miss FBLA contest.

Phonda Snow will take part in the spelling competition.

Eureda Powers, Betty Powers, Larry Proffer and Steve Jones, under the supervision of Jim Cornett, director of vocational education, will compete in parliamentary procedure.

Winners of the state contests will be sent to San Francisco in June for the national convention.

Students will return to Sikeston tomorrow afternoon.

Rumor has it Mr. Collins has decided to omit the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" on the eve of graduation. However, seniors refuse to believe this report knowing the late division band, composed mainly of seniors, helped win an excellent rating at the music contest in Cape.

BULLDOG BARKER

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Barker Staff Feels Elation As Year's End Approaches

GRADUATION NEARS and everyone begins to make plans for the summer and fall. Barker staffers have only one more issue to follow this, and the newspaper tasks for this year will be over.

This is the 27th issue of the Bulldog Barker, and as it goes to press the staff feels the closeness of graduation and the twinge of dismay because this is nearing the close of their high school journalism career.

Since the staff printed its first newspaper on September 16, each member of the staff has undergone various trials.

Staff devoted Thursday afternoons for the work at the printers, all the mistakes they made throughout the year seem routine as the staff looks back on the may days of work spent in preparation of this newspaper for the students and faculty.

Pressure of completing stories on time, having to rewrite and completely alter some of them, have been felt since the first working day of the journalism class.

When the newspaper is completed and ready for press, the yearbook deadline must be met. Journalism has been a never-ending job this year, but the reward is the pleasure of seeing the finished product on Friday afternoon.

Barker results can be seen every Friday, but the highlight of the year for the staffers will be the arrival of the 1965 Growlers in Aguust. This event will make all the work and problems worthwhile.

Next year's group of journalists will find the same problems and frustrations facing them in the fall. They will believe it impossible to meet all the deadlines in a short time, but they, too, will soon learn the routine.

Staffers hope that the future journalists will derive as much benefit and satisfaction from their journalism work as they have.

----------Staff.

Sophs, Juniors Take Note Of College Admission Tests

NOW IS THE TIME for underclassmen to begin taking action regarding admission to college.

A majority of college-bound students mistakenly believe that by browsing through a few catalogues, filling out a few forms, and taking a few tests they can smoothly make the transition from high school to college.

A conference with the counselor, early in the student's high school career, is a good beginning.

The counselor will probably recommend that the student take the Premliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test or the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test and possibly both in his junior year.

Scores from these two tests give the student an idea of how he compares scholastically with his peers throughout the nation.

Counselors will also recommend that the student become familiar with the large collection of the most recent catalogues from colleges and universities in all parts of the country.

Most colleges require either the American College Test of the Scholastic Aptitude Test plus three of the CEEB Achievement Tests.

Most of these achievement tests are intended to be taken in the senior year, but others cover subjects usually offered for only one year.

Some students should be aware that many colleges have "early admission" and "early decision" programs for outstanding applicants.

These programs usually require that applications and necessary test scores be filed by the end of the student's junior year.

Students must not wait until their senior year to begin filing college and scholarship applications.

With the assistance of a counselor, he can plan far in advance and he may know the security of having been accepted by the school of his choice, months in advance of graduation.

Senior Joe Schuhart Has Boat Of The Week

"Car of the Week" gives in to spring this week and features a boat instead of a car. The boat belongs to Joe Schuchart and his brother Emil. Joe is an active senior and a football letterman. His brother is a former graduate of Sikeston high school and now a student in the University of Missouri.

Joe's boat is a seventeen foot "Blackhawk Runabout" terestingly enough Blackhawk boats were manufactured in Sikeston. The boats of fiberglass construction and has a semi-vee hull that not only provides good cornering but high speed.

The Blackhawk is powered by a 90 horsepower Johnson outboard. This is an 89 cubic inch V-4 engine with a four barrel carb. When Joe and his brother purchased the boat, it had a 40-horsepower Johnson on which it was traded in 1965 for the 90. Joe either got a fast motor or he had a fast boat because his rig is very fast for the horsepower and size.

Those who have knowledge of boats and motors will know that of the major brands Johnson and Evinrude are usually noted for dependability more than speed. Joe's rig has outrun more than a few 100 and 110 horsepower Mercurys on boats of equal size. This is really outstanding since Mercury outboards are considered very fast motors.

Joe's boat has done 40 miles per hour plus with three people and full gas tanks aboard.

Joe's boat has many other features too. Some of these are a convertible top, built in 12 gallon gas tank, folding windshield, running lights, spotlight, dual electric horns and single lever gearshift control. One of the more prominent features is the dashboard. On it are a cigarette lighter, 24-hour rally clock, fuel guage, perature gauge, electric choke control and light and horn controls.

Students Receive Certificates Of Merit

JUNIOR MARY JANE COPE is the recipient of the merit award from Bruce Lewis, member of the Board of Education.

Are To Speak At Graduation

Students Select Theme For Commencement Introductions, May 26

Nine speakers have been chosen to participate in the commencement program on Friday, May 26.

In order of the amount of votes received from the judges the speakers will be Vicki Schindler, Charles Stamp, Tom Phillips, Brian Underwood, Steve Spear, Darla Scoles, Sally Faulkner, Mary Anne Bruce and Doris Ray.

These seniors will choose a theme for the program and the addresses will coincide with this theme.

Judges were Robert Walker, director of speech activities; Mrs. Jack Yount, sponsor of the senior class; Mrs. Catherine Matthews, chairman of the social studies department and Lawrence Aeschlimann, chairman of the English department.

Douglas Morrison and Jerry Smithers, seniors in Southeast Missouri State College and student teachers in Sikeston high school, were also judges.

Gary Grant, highest ranking junior in National Forensic League, represented the students as judge.

Speakers will have specific duties, consisting of main speeches, prayer, and introductions according to their rank on the list of nine.

Principal speakers will select a theme consisting of four parts. Each address will be five minutes in length.

Introductions will be made for the president of the board of education, Dr. A. D. Martin, Supt. Lynn Twitty, and Principal Roger Sherman.

Benediction and invocation will also be given by the students.

Seniors gave a two-minute address appropriate for commencement, and it was recorded on a tape. Judges listened to the tape and rated the students with special notice given to voice quality and content.

Gary Wiss To Attend Convention

Gary will also be a participant in the summer workshop of the councils at the University of Missouri, June 12-15.

Later on in the summer he will go to Pennsylvania to take part in the national conference.

Gary represented the high school on the sophomore pilgrimate to jefferson City last year.

He was president of the sophomore class, and he is now the junior class president.

Gary has been a member of the student council representing his homeroom for the past two years.

He was the top scorer on Sikeston's basketball squad this past year, and he played baseball and was a member of the team the last two years in high school.

"Hearts that are delicate and and kind and tongues that are neither --- these make the finest company in the world."

Staff Works To Finish Yearbook Pages

Great surprises are in store for all the persons who purchased a '67 Growler. It will be a book of priceless memories and countless experiences.

Growler this year will feature colored end sheets, tinted pages, and a uniquely decorative cover. Approximately three-fourths of the pages are complete and have been shipped to the Paragon Press in Montgomery, Ala.

Senior, junior, and sophomore individual pages have been alphabetized and identified.

Group pictures of the '67 football and basketball squads have been completed.

Miss Sikeston and high school royalty pages have been designed and sent to the publisher. Outstanding students from all three classes have had their pictures snapped in unusual background settings and these pages are finished.

Group pictures of specific organizations have been taken. Sophomore and junior class officers pages are finished, and the senior officers will be taken shortly.

Journalism students will work on into the summer after school has been dismissed in order to make the Growler "just what the students want."

Approximately 30 pages, consisting of track, baseball, graduation, NFL, FHA, will be completed andmailed withinthe next few weeks.

Events Mark School End; On May 26

Displays of the year's work will be shown Monday evening, May 15, from 6:30 - 8 o'clock at the annual open house.

Music department will present a musical review on Monday evening, May 22, for the public. Choir, band and orchestra will combine their talents in the finale, "March of Freedom."

Seniors will check in books on Wednesday, May 24.

Wayne Limbaugh Receives Numerous Athletic Honors

Senior Wayne Limbaugh has proved in his high school career to be one of the most active and outstanding athletes in school.

He participated in football, basketball, and baseball, winning recognition in each sport.

Wayne lettered three years in football. He was third-string quarterback during his sophomore year, second-string quarterback his junior year, and first - string quarterback his senior year.

During the past gridiron season Wayne scored more points than any other football player in both the Northern and Southern Divisions.

He was voted All-Conference first - string quarterback and awarded a trophy for scoring the most points in the Northern Division.

Wayne scored 14 touchdowns (new school record) and ended the season with a total of 84 points. He also set a school record by carrying the ball 78 times for a total of 813 yards.

Bulldogs ended the season with a 7-1-1 record, finishing second in the conference.

Wayne was starting guard for the Bulldogs during the basketball season, and he scored 205 points. He also won honorable mention All-Conference honors and lettered during his junior year.

Wayne lettered the past three years in baseball, and he played the shortstop position for the Bulldogs.

Wayne played with the baseballers last year during the sub-district, district, sectional and regional championships before they lost in the state competition.

He has hopes to attend Southeast Missouri State College or Murray State next year.

Senior Girls Receive Invite For Breakfast

Reception breakfast for senior girls is to be held next Tuesday morning.

All senior girls who are planning to attend college in the fall are cordially invited to attend this breakfast given by the American Association of University Women.

In previous years, the American Association of University Women have sponsored various different types of entertainment in honor of senior girls. They have given luncheons, teas and ordinary "jam sessions."

Mrs. Mildred Robinson is the president of this organization.

MAY 12-LAST DAY TO SIGN-UP

Eight Students Represent FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America are holding their state convention at Lindbergh high school in St. Louis today and tomorrow.

Competition among students will take place today and tomorrow.

Several students left for St. Louis yesterday with Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, sponsor of the local FBLA, to organize business displays and make accomodations in motels for students from all over the state.

Approximately 500 students are expected to participate in the convention.

Janet Butrum, Peggy Tanner and Mike Andrews have entered the Mr. and Miss FBLA contest.

Phonda Snow will take part in the spelling competition.

Eureda Powers, Betty Powers, Larry Proffer and Steve Jones, under the supervision of Jim Cornett, director of vocational education, will compete in parliamentary procedure.

Winners of the state contests will be sent to San Francisco in June for the national convention.

Students will return to Sikeston tomorrow afternoon.

Rumor has it Mr. Collins has decided to omit the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" on the eve of graduation. However, seniors refuse to believe this report knowing the late division band, composed mainly of seniors, helped win an excellent rating at the music contest in Cape.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L. L. D.

THE CASE OF THE SMILING BUTCHER

Dorothy went to Schultz' Butcher Shop and discovered that Schultz' son, who was waiting on her, was a gyp off the old block. While he smiled at her, like a ham actor, she detected him putting a metal disc on the scale to increase the weight of her purchase.

Returning the smile pleasantly, Dorothy said nothing about the skulduggery. Instead, she paid her bill and made a bee-line for the nearest police station where she filed charges against Schultz' son for obtaining money under false pretenses. In Court, Dorothy was vehement.

"I saw him put the extra weight on the scale," she told the judge. "But like any crook, I figured if I gave him enough rope he'd tie himself up."

"It's absurd," answered Schultz's son. "I didn't obtain any money under false pretenses. When Dorothy paid her bill, she knew the weight was wrong. The only one who may have been fooled was me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you tip the scale of justice against the scale tipping butcher by convicting him?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in order for money to be obtained under false pretenses, the person deceived must have relied upon a false representation believing it to be true. In this case, concluded the judge, Dorothy knew the weight was off before she paid her bill but paid it anyway.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you made the statement that interfaith marriage is risky at best and you are against it.

Now I would like to ask what you think about one party changing over and accepting the religious faith of the other. My husband is very devout and I am lukewarm about my religion. My parents would not like the idea of my changing over, but this would not bother me.

So far as I know you have never expressed an opinion on this. Will you please do so in print? --- DIFFERENT IDEAS

Dear Different: A mixed marriage stands a much better chance if the lukewarm party changes over and joins the devout one. Serious difficulties often develop when both parties are strong believers and each closes one eye and pretends there is no problem. The children of such marriages are the real victims. Often they are left to choose between the mother's religion and the father's religion. This can produce guilt, ambivalence and anxiety.

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend I took a girl skiing, out to dinner and to a dance. This set me back $14.00 which is not exactly a drop in the bucket for a 16-year-old boy who has to work for every cent.

I had a good time and so did the girl. But on the way home, after dropping her off, I came to a very startling realization. What was it all for, anyway? Here I spent $14.00 and had nothing to show for it. Is it too much to expect a token of gratitude instead of a mere: "Good night; I had a very nice time"?

I think I was taken for a sucker and I am pretty burned up about it. What's your opinion? --- JIM

Dear Jim: I don't know what you mean by "a token of gratitude" but it seems to me the girl expressed her gratitude adequately when she told you she had a very nice time. I gather you feel she should have smooched it up a little in exchange for the $14.00. If you would settle for a girl who hangs such a cheap price tag on herself you can't be worth much, Buddy.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from the grandmother who tried to protect her grandchild from an angry mother when the youngster picked a rose from the neighbor's garden.

I am not a mother, but I was a grade school teacher for 30 years and I have helped train hundreds of children.

When a child brought me flowers which I suspected had been snatched along the way we would have a class discussion about respect for the property of others and plain, everyday honesty.

If the mothers of these children had spent a little time explaining these important principles of behavior, the youngsters would not have helped themselves to someone else's property.

Unfortunately it's the children who suffer when parents fail to teach them the basic rules of society. And, today, we see an appalling amount of evidence that far too many parents have failed. --- RETIRED MARM

Dear Friend: Too bad you retired. From the sound of your letter your wisdom is badly needed.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen - Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The grammar school children have started a campaign to raise money to buy a flag pole for the new flag which the school board has bought. Sikeston students attending the state music meet at Columbia last week made an excellent showing, getting second ratings in all events entered in competition with high school students from all over the state. Catherine Ann Cook entered in violin, Eddie Orear in trombone, and Bill Van Horne in voice and baritone horn.

On Friday of last week principal Wm. E. Mahew presented small and large Bulldogs to students in the high school winning the honor by achievements in scholastic, athletic and musical and dramatic sides of school life. The only large Bulldog awarded this year, and signifying the highest achievement in extracurricular and scholastic work, went to John Webb Bowman. Small Bulldogs were awarded to Peggy Donnell, Mack Roberts, Hazel Gray, Bill Van Horne, Mary Jane Sikes, and Mary Louise Montgomery. Moore Greer will be awarded a small Bulldog later.

More than 4,000 WPA and volunteer workers labored in mud and water Thursday to prevent a second inundation in four months of more than half of the Birds Point-New Madrid spillway. Flood conditions and local rains had so softened the ground around the 4,000-foot ring levee hastily thrown up around the 1,000 foot crevasse in the old front line levee just south of Ringo's Store that three large tractors were completely submerged in the soft mud and poles were set up to mark the spots where they had disappeared.

There Is One Who Knows

HOWEVER self-sufficient we may appear to be, most of us want to be understood. We want at least one person to know us as we think and hope we really are. Then we feel that perhaps we can more nearly become, in our daily living, what we wish to be.

"Know thyself" is an ancient adage generally attributed to Socrates. We try to apply it to ourselves, but too often we become lost in the maze of contradictions and confusions we discover. St. Paul must have known this, for he says, "I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want; but I do the very thing I hate" (Romans 7:15, Revised Standard Version).

Few take the time or the trouble or care enough to discover, behind the defensive facade often presented to the world, the real person within. Motives are misinterpreted, words and actions misconstrued. Deeds, too, often reveal facets of character which would repel and alienate rather than attract.

Nevertheless, there are those who see beyond the curtness, the shyness, the brashness or the withdrawnness, to the real person within. Often they make discoveries of rare and lovely treasure and are able to set free this hidden beuaty to make glad the lives of others and to enrich their own.

However, no matter how much we understand of ourselves, and how much we are understood, there remains, deep in the heart of man, that which perplexes and baffles. It is difficult perhaps to be completely honest with ourselves. Our friends, at least when they are with us, tend to gloss over our faults. Therefore, in our desire to understand ourselves and to be understood, there seems to be no fixed point of judgment.

But there is One "who knows my heart's most secret depths, yet loves me without end." For countless generations man has known this in his heart, and some of the most beautiful verses in the Bible speak of God's loving understanding of man. Here is what some of the writers have said:

"Thou, O Lord, knowest me . . .He knoweth our frame; He remembereth that we are dust. . .The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man. . .O God, Thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from Thee. . . He knoweth the secrets of the heart. . .Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, Thou understandest my thought afar off," or, to quote the Revised Standard Version, "Even before a word is on my tongue, lo, O Lord, Thou knowest it altogether."

With this knowledge that there is One who knows the "man within" as none other in all the world, comes the dawning of a new faith for ourselves, giving us a sense of assurance and confidence, so that when we hear His voice saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it," we are able to follow that inner voice, for we realize that there are strengths within, unknown to ourselves, and a core of goodness and of truth that we do not quite realize.

Although still seeing through a glass darkly, we are able to say with St. Paul, "Now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." Or, as it has been so beautifully translated, "Then shall I understand, as all along I have myself been understood."

Know thyself! Perhaps we never shall, but we can rest in His assurance that He knows so well our weakness, our power, the very essence of our being, and that as our day and our special needs are, so shall be our strength. Because He knows and loves and recognizes that which is good and lovely in our lives, we shall be more than conqueror through Him who loves us because we know that all along we are being understood.

-By Brigadier Christine E. McMillan

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. (Psalm 23:4)

PRAYER: Our gracious and loving Father, we express our heartfelt gratitude for Thy loving care, protection and guidance through times of danger, sorrow, and loneliness. We beseech Thee to help us to lead others to Christ by being Christians ourselves. We ask Thee in the name of Jesus, our Redeemer. Amen.

Franchise Show Set for May 12-14

ST. LOUIS -- The oldest and the newest in the own-your-own-business franchise opportunity field will showcase their lures to free enterprise minded persons at the first Missouri Business Opportunity Show, St. Louis, Chase Park Plaza Hotel, May 12-14.

They are representatives of an industry which provided private business opportunities for more than 450,000 individual franchises outlets.

STABILITY

Each year I need spring's sure return
More than I did the year before;
Our way of life is changing fast,
We know not what may lie in store;
For UFOs are all about
And men will soon fly to the moon;
And jet around the earth in hours;
Our world sings to a changing tune.
These changes came so very fast
They've made me just a little dizzy
And future ones, I have no doubt,
Will leave me spinning in a tizzy.
I know that I shall learn to live
With these new ways, though they are strange;
I also know that spring will come,
For Nature, bless her! does not change.

Emmaline Ledbetter

WEATHER REPORT

A spell is cast
On old and young,
Our hearts beat fast,
Gay songs are sung;

And Spring has sprung!

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L. L. D.

THE CASE OF THE SMILING BUTCHER

Dorothy went to Schultz' Butcher Shop and discovered that Schultz' son, who was waiting on her, was a gyp off the old block. While he smiled at her, like a ham actor, she detected him putting a metal disc on the scale to increase the weight of her purchase.

Returning the smile pleasantly, Dorothy said nothing about the skulduggery. Instead, she paid her bill and made a bee-line for the nearest police station where she filed charges against Schultz' son for obtaining money under false pretenses. In Court, Dorothy was vehement.

"I saw him put the extra weight on the scale," she told the judge. "But like any crook, I figured if I gave him enough rope he'd tie himself up."

"It's absurd," answered Schultz's son. "I didn't obtain any money under false pretenses. When Dorothy paid her bill, she knew the weight was wrong. The only one who may have been fooled was me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you tip the scale of justice against the scale tipping butcher by convicting him?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in order for money to be obtained under false pretenses, the person deceived must have relied upon a false representation believing it to be true. In this case, concluded the judge, Dorothy knew the weight was off before she paid her bill but paid it anyway.

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you made the statement that interfaith marriage is risky at best and you are against it.

Now I would like to ask what you think about one party changing over and accepting the religious faith of the other. My husband is very devout and I am lukewarm about my religion. My parents would not like the idea of my changing over, but this would not bother me.

So far as I know you have never expressed an opinion on this. Will you please do so in print? --- DIFFERENT IDEAS

Dear Different: A mixed marriage stands a much better chance if the lukewarm party changes over and joins the devout one. Serious difficulties often develop when both parties are strong believers and each closes one eye and pretends there is no problem. The children of such marriages are the real victims. Often they are left to choose between the mother's religion and the father's religion. This can produce guilt, ambivalence and anxiety.

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend I took a girl skiing, out to dinner and to a dance. This set me back $14.00 which is not exactly a drop in the bucket for a 16-year-old boy who has to work for every cent.

I had a good time and so did the girl. But on the way home, after dropping her off, I came to a very startling realization. What was it all for, anyway? Here I spent $14.00 and had nothing to show for it. Is it too much to expect a token of gratitude instead of a mere: "Good night; I had a very nice time"?

I think I was taken for a sucker and I am pretty burned up about it. What's your opinion? ---JIM

Dear Jim: I don't know what you mean by "a token of gratitude" but it seems to me the girl expressed her gratitude adequately when she told you she had a very nice time. I gather you feel she should have smooched it up a little in exchange for the $14.00. If you would settle for a girl who hangs such a cheap price tag on herself you can't be worth much, Buddy.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from the grandmother who tried to protect her grandchild from an angry mother when the youngster picked a rose from the neighbor's garden.

I am not a mother, but I was a grade school teacher for 30 years and I have helped train hundreds of children.

When a child brought me flowers which I suspected had been snatched along the way we would have a class discussion about respect for the property of others and plain, everyday honesty.

If the mothers of these children had spent a little time explaining these important principles of behavior, the youngsters would not have helped themselves to someone else's property.

Unfortunately it's the children who suffer when parents fail to teach them the basic rules of society. And, today, we see an appalling amount of evidence that far too many parents have failed. --- RETIRED MARM

Dear Friend: Too bad you retired. From the sound of your letter your wisdom is badly needed.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen - Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Sikeston students attending the state music meet at Columbia last week made an excellent showing, getting second ratings in all events entered in competition with high school students from all over the state. Catherine Ann Cook entered in violin, Eddie Orear in trombone, and Bill Van Horne in voice and baritone horn.

On Friday of last week principal Wm. E. Mahew presented small and large Bulldogs to students in the high school winning the honor by achievements in scholastic, athletic and musical and dramatic sides of school life. The only large Bulldog awarded this year, and signifying the highest achievement in extracurricular and scholastic work, went to John Webb Bowman. Small Bulldogs were awarded to Peggy Donnell, Mack Roberts, Hazel Gray, Bill Van Horne, Mary Jane Sikes, and Mary Louise Montgomery. Moore Greer will be awarded a small Bulldog later.

More than 4,000 WPA and volunteer workers labored in mud and water Thursday to prevent a second inundation in four months of more than half of the Birds Point-New Madrid spillway. Flood conditions and local rains had so softened the ground around the 4,000-foot ring levee hastily thrown up around the 1,000 foot crevasse in the old front line levee just south of Ringo's Store that three large tractors were completely submerged in the soft mud and poles were set up to mark the spots where they had disappeared.

There Is One Who Knows

HOWEVER self-sufficient we may appear to be, most of us want to be understood. We want at least one person to know us as we think and hope we really are. Then we feel that perhaps we can more nearly become, in our daily living, what we wish to be.

"Know thyself" is an ancient adage generally attributed to Socrates. We try to apply it to ourselves, but too often we become lost in the maze of contradictions and confusions we discover. St. Paul must have known this, for he says, "I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want; but I do the very thing I hate" (Romans 7:15, Revised Standard Version).

Few take the time or the trouble or care enough to discover, behind the defensive facade often presented to the world, the real person within. Motives are misinterpreted, words and actions misconstrued. Deeds, too, often reveal facets of character which would repel and alienate rather than attract.

Nevertheless, there are those who see beyond the curtness, the shyness, the brashness or the withdrawnness, to the real person within. Often they make discoveries of rare and lovely treasure and are able to set free this hidden beuaty to make glad the lives of others and to enrich their own.

However, no matter how much we understand of ourselves, and how much we are understood, there remains, deep in the heart of man, that which perplexes and baffles. It is difficult perhaps to be completely honest with ourselves. Our friends, at least when they are with us, tend to gloss over our faults. Therefore, in our desire to understand ourselves and to be understood, there seems to be no fixed point of judgment.

But there is One "who knows my heart's most secret depths, yet loves me without end." For countless generations man has known this in his heart, and some of the most beautiful verses in the Bible speak of God's loving understanding of man. Here is what some of the writers have said:

"Thou, O Lord, knowest me . . .He knoweth our frame; He remembereth that we are dust. . .The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man. . .O God, Thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from Thee. . . He knoweth the secrets of the heart. . .Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, Thou understandest my thought afar off," or, to quote the Revised Standard Version, "Even before a word is on my tongue, lo, O Lord, Thou knowest it altogether."

With this knowledge that there is One who knows the "man within" as none other in all the world, comes the dawning of a new faith for ourselves, giving us a sense of assurance and confidence, so that when we hear His voice saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it," we are able to follow that inner voice, for we realize that there are strengths within, unknown to ourselves, and a core of goodness and of truth that we do not quite realize.

Although still seeing through a glass darkly, we are able to say with St. Paul, "Now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." Or, as it has been so beautifully translated, "Then shall I understand, as all along I have myself been understood."

Know thyself! Perhaps we never shall, but we can rest in His assurance that He knows so well our weakness, our power, the very essence of our being, and that as our day and our special needs are, so shall be our strength. Because He knows and loves and recognizes that which is good and lovely in our lives, we shall be more than conqueror through Him who loves us because we know that all along we are being understood.

PRAYER: Our gracious and loving Father, we express our heartfelt gratitude for Thy loving care, protection and guidance through times of danger, sorrow, and loneliness. We beseech Thee to help us to lead others to Christ by being Christians ourselves. We ask Thee in the name of Jesus, our Redeemer. Amen.

STABILITY

Each year I need spring's sure return
More than I did the year before;
Our way of life is changing fast,
We know not what may lie in store;
For UFOs are all about
And men will soon fly to the moon;
And jet around the earth in hours;
Our world sings to a changing tune.
These changes came so very fast
They've made me just a little dizzy
And future ones, I have no doubt,
Will leave me spinning in a tizzy.
I know that I shall learn to live
With these new ways, though they are strange;
I also know that spring will come,
For Nature, bless her! does not change.

Gay songs are sung;

And Spring has sprung!

Today is Friday, May 5, the 125th day of 1967. There are 240 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, the rationing of sugar began throughout the United States as a result of shortages caused by World War II.

On this date:

In 1778, George Washington nounced to his army at Valley Forge that France had become an ally of the United States in its fight against Britain.

In 1821, Napoleon Bonaparte died on the island of St. Helena.

In 1847, the American Medical Association was organized.

In 1941, Haile Selassie returned to Addis Ababa as emperor of Ethiopia.

In 1945, Grand Admiral Doenitz admitted that Germany's struggle against the Allied powers had become helpless.

In 1955, Western Germany became a sovereign state.

Ten years ago — The Italian Cabinet, headed by Premier Antonio Segni, resigned in the midst of a conflict over Italy's role in NATO.

Five years ago—An allegedly Communist-inspired revolt was put down in Venezuela.

One year ago — General Motors announced a limited production cutback because of a decline in sales—and the stock market tumbled.

The round bales lay scattered everywhere, as if the field were all done up in pin curls. -- Rev. Charles S. Macy

Former Resident's Husband Killed

Ellis Strong, 36, route two, Celina, Tenn., a farmer, was fatally injured in an accident Saturday at 7:30 a.m. He was the husband of the former Thelma Mitchell, a former resident of Sikeston.

The state patrol reported that three men, all single, had passed a curve at a high rate of speed, lost control of their car on the highway two miles south of Moss, Tenn., and seven miles from Celina.

Strong was standing across the street and had delivered strawberry crates and was talking to a store neighbor, when the car left the road tore down a gas pump and came across the street and struck Strong and a friend. Strong died instantly. The friend is in serious condition.

The highway patrol and sheriff's office of Clay county investigated, and according to Mrs. Strong a charge of second degree murder, intoxication and several other charges have been filed.

The statement was signed by Matt Meyer, president of the newspaper.

The demise of the World Journal Tribune leaves the New York Post as the city's only Manhattan afternoon newspaper. The New York Times and the New York Daily News are morning newspapers.

For many of those affected by the closing, it was the second day of mourning in less than a year.

On August 15 last year the owners of the World Journal Tribune announced that the Herald Tribune, which was to have been the morning member of the merged company, had ceased publication.

The Herald Tribune at the time had not been published for 114 days because of labor difficulties.

The Herald Tribune, formed by a merger in 1924, actually dated back to the early 19th century. James Gordon Bennett established the Herald in 1835 and Horace Greeley's Tribune was born in 1841.

The merger of the morning Herald Tribune with the two afternoon dailies, the World Telegram and The Sun and the Journal - American, was announced after months of rumors.

John Hay Whitney, former ambassador to Britain and owner of the Herald Tribune; Jack Howard, president and general editorial manager of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, and William Randolph Hearst Jr., chairman of the Hearst Corp., joined in a partnership incorporated as the World Journal Tribune, Inc.

In addition to the morning Herald Tribune, it planned to publish the evening World Journal and a Sunday edition, the World Journal Tribune.

When the daily Herald Tribune folded, the new afternoon paper became the World Journal Tribune.

The federal government studied the proposed merger, looking for possible antitrust violations, then announced it would not stand in the way. Later the government was to order the World Journal Tribune to make some of its syndicated columns from the three merged papers available to the city's other afternoon daily, the New York Post.

In the discussion that followed Summers told the audience that the school boards should determine future trends of the county's educational needs and population. By studying these trends, piecemeal reorganization from time to time until the county has only one or two districts can be avoided.

The study would show whether the county would eventually need to have only one or two districts and could take this as the initial step in the reorganization plan.

If reorganization is planned for the county, some parts of county school districts might better serve the students if these districts became part of districts not in New Madrid county, Summers said.

For example, the northern part of the Matthews district might want to join the Sikeston district since Sikeston would be closer than a centrally located school in New Madrid county. A similar situation might exist with students in the Parma district who live close to Malden.

It is not always practical to follow county boundaries to make up one district, he said.

Lyle Bird, president of the county school board, said that the county board had no intention of calling for the reorganization of districts as a result of the group's survey. He pointed out that the study was made only for the information of the school boards and that the individual boards would have to be the ones to propose any reorganizations.

Students Demonstrate U.S. Policy Loyalty

ATCHISON, Kan. (AP) - A loyalty parade was staged Thursday by 250 St. Benedict's College students who marched around the campus and downtown, carrying signs reading "The U.S. For Us."

Leading the march was the Atchison High School band. The parade was organized by John Settich and John Bolderson, sophomores from St. Louis. They said final exams held down the number of marchers.

"This loyalty parade," Bolderson said in a brief speech at the end of the march, "witnesses our concurrence with the United States' commitment to preserve self - determination for people of Southeast Asia against communist aggression."

About 50 dissenters countered at the rally with pamphlets and signs such as this, "Opposition To Government Policy Does Not Equal Disloyalty."

The two groups dispersed quietly.

The statement was signed by Matt Meyer, president of the newspaper.

The demise of the World Journal Tribune leaves the New York Post as the city's only Manhattan afternoon newspaper. The New York Times and the New York Daily News are morning newspapers.

For many of those affected by the closing, it was the second day of mourning in less than a year.

On August 15 last year the owners of the World Journal Tribune announced that the Herald Tribune, which was to have been the morning member of the merged company, had ceased publication.

The Herald Tribune at the time had not been published for 114 days because of labor difficulties.

The Herald Tribune, formed by a merger in 1924, actually dated back to the early 19th century. James Gordon Bennett established the Herald in 1835 and Horace Greeley's Tribune was born in 1841.

The merger of the morning Herald Tribune with the two afternoon dailies, the World Telegram and The Sun and the Journal-American, was announced after months of rumors.

John Hay Whitney, former ambassador to Britain and owner of the Herald Tribune; Jack Howard, president and general editorial manager of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, and William Randolph Hearst Jr., chairman of the Hearst Corp., joined in a partnership incorporated as the World Journal Tribune, Inc.

In addition to the morning Herald Tribune, it planned to publish the evening World Journal and a Sunday edition, the World Journal Tribune.

When the daily Herald Tribune folded, the new afternoon paper became the World Journal Tribune.

The federal government studied the proposed merger, looking for possible antitrust violations, then announced it would not stand in the way. Later the government was to order the World Journal Tribune to make some of its syndicated columns from the three merged papers available to the city's other afternoon daily, the New York Post.

In the discussion that followed Summers told the audience that the school boards should determine future trends of the county's educational needs and population. By studying these trends, piecemeal reorganization from time to time until the county has only one or two districts can be avoided.

The study would show whether the county would eventually need to have only one or two districts and could take this as the initial step in the reorganization plan.

If reorganization is planned for the county, some parts of county school districts might better serve the students if these districts became part of districts not in New Madrid county, Summers said.

For example, the northern part of the Matthews district might want to join the Sikeston district since Sikeston would be closer than a centrally located school in New Madrid county. A similar situation might exist with students in the Parma district who live close to Malden.

It is not always practical to follow county boundaries to make up one district, he said.

Lyle Bird, president of the county school board, said that the county board had no intention of calling for the reorganization of districts as a result of the group's survey. He pointed out that the study was made only for the information of the school boards and that the individual boards would have to be the ones to propose any reorganizations.

Students Demonstrate U.S. Policy Loyalty

ATCHISON, Kan. (AP) - A loyalty parade was staged Thursday by 250 St. Benedict's College students who marched around the campus and downtown, carrying signs reading "The U.S. For Us."

Leading the march was the Atchison High School band. The parade was organized by John Settich and John Bolderson, sophomores from St. Louis. They said final exams held down the number of marchers.

"This loyalty parade," Bolderson said in a brief speech at the end of the march, "witnesses our concurrence with the United States' commitment to preserve self-determination for people of Southeast Asia against communist aggression."

About 50 dissenters countered at the rally with pamphlets and signs such as this, "Opposition To Government Policy Does Not Equal Disloyalty."

The two groups dispersed quietly.
